GOVERNORS FOR STATES' RIGHTS

HARMON TO LEAD FIGHT

JUDGE SANBORN DENOUNCED

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., Sept. 14.—Following a bitter attack by Gov. Aldrich of Nebraska this morning on the decision of United States Circuit Judge Sanborn in the Minnesota rate cases, the conference of Governors took action late this afternoon which is revolutionary in respect to the scope and function of that organization by appointing Gov. Harmon of Ohio, Gov. Hadley of Missouri, and Gov. Aldrich to appear in behalf of all the States before the Supreme Court when the rate cases come before it on appeal this Fall.

This action was not taken without a full realization of its significance as an alliance of the States as such to protest and assert jointly their rights not only to govern intra-State commerce, but, as the tone of discussion indicated, in other respects, too, if other questions arise. It was not taken without a feeble protest from Gov. Gilchrist of Florida, afterward withdrawn, and another from Gov. Kitchin of North Carolina, who alone voted in the negative when the question was finally put.

With these protests the other Governors in attendance showed their impatience by calling for the question. The one exception was Gov. McGovern of Wisconsin, who declared himself strongly in favor of the action suggested, but urged that the vote be deferred until to-morrow. The rest would have none of this, and the objectors were swept aside in a burst of enthusiasm.

It was remarked afterward that the conference in taking this course and putting Gov. Harmon at the head of the fight for States' rights had given him a commanding place in the public eye which would come at a time to effect his fortunes as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. It was evident, however, that in voting this commission the Governors, Democratic and Republican alike, took no heed of considerations of party politics.

Gov. Harmon, who took no part in the debate, was asked what he himself thought of the action of the conference.

"I think it is what should have been done," he said. "There is no use of our sitting around and discussing problems of vital interest and then taking no action on them."

Gov. Wilson of New Jersey, who also held aloof from the discussion, was asked whether he thought the action taken was wise.

"I voted for it," he replied dryly, and avoided further questioning.

O'Neal Presents a Plan.

The wave of determination that swept over the conference was started by Gov. O'Neal of Alabama, the man who at the opening session on Tuesday stirred up a hornets' nest by opposing the initiative, referendum and recall. There had been no discussion at the morning session of the papers read by Gov. Aldrich and Gov. Hadley on "The Right of the State to Fix Intra-State Traffic Rates" because Dr. Anna Shaw was waiting to be heard on woman suffrage. When the afternoon session began there was no indication that the subject would be pursued further and Gov. McGovern read a paper on "State Control of Public Utilities." Without waiting for any discussion of this new topic Gov. O'Neal took the floor and harked back to the rate case.

"The most important question with which we have to deal," he said, "is whether the Supreme Court will decide that the States have or have not any power to fix intra-State rates. If it decides that they have no such power, because inter-State commerce would be affected, what will be the effect? The necessary result would be that the States would be without power to regulate their own internal commerce. As Gov. Harmon suggested in conversation with me this morning, the States should be properly represented by counsel when these cases come up in the Supreme Court. If they are lost it will be the most deadly blow ever struck at the rights of the States. It will reduce them to the position of mere provinces of a centralized power."

Gov. O'Neal moved first that a committee of nine Governors be appointed by the chair, which was just then occupied by Gov. Spry of Utah, to engage counsel to represent the States jointly before the Supreme Court. The motion was seconded by five or six Governors in chorus.

Gov. O'Neal changed his motion to a committee of five, and Gov. Hadley moved as an amendment that Gov. Harmon be Chairman of the committee. This Gov. O'Neal accepted.

Gov. Gilchrist of Florida said the little matter of compensation for the counsel to be employed had been overlooked, and he wanted to know who was going to pay it. He said such action as proposed was not within the function of the conference, and that the question was one of great delicacy.

"If I was Gov. Harmon I would decline to serve," he said.

"Are you afraid it would embarrass him?" inquired Chairman Spry.

Gov. O'Neal said some of the States

TOO BASHFUL TO GO HOME.

Since John E. Wilson Married He Has Kept Aloof from Kirkwood.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 14.—Probably the most bashful man living is John E. Wilson, whose home is in Kirkwood, a fashionable suburb, where he is the President of a big construction company. Since he eloped early in January to Lincoln, Neb., and was wedded to Miss Ella North, daughter of a wealthy merchant in Kirkwood, he and his bride have traveled through nearly every State in the Union.

Mr. Wilson has tried to muster enough courage to return to Kirkwood and undergo the ordeal of receiving congratulations, but has failed, and Mrs. Wilson returned to Kirkwood a week ago alone. Mr. Wilson had gained sufficient courage to start on the trip. They were at Indianapolis when the start was made, but his courage oozed out by the time the train reached Springfield, Ill., and he went back to Indianapolis, while his bride came to Kirkwood, commissioned to survey the situation and prepare for the return of her husband.

Previously they got as far as East St. Louis twice, but there Mr. Wilson balked. Mrs. Wilson is on her way to-night to Indianapolis to get her husband to come on immediately.

When the news of the elopement last January was made public Kirkwood was loath to believe the report. Mr. Wilson was a confirmed bachelor of 48 years, wealthy and handsome and influential in Kirkwood's business and civic affairs. He had been reckoned as hopeless by the mothers of marriageable daughters, though his eligibility was never questioned. His bashfulness was his one weakness. When he would meet a woman on the street and was recognized by her his face would flush and he would be as embarrassed as a schoolboy.

The business of the construction company is being cared for by Mr. Wilson's brothers. George North, the aged father of Mrs. Wilson, thinks it is time his bashful son-in-law was returning and resuming his place in Kirkwood's affairs. He is not in sympathy with Mr. Wilson's failing.

RESCUE THE FARWELL TRUST

Chicago Banks Take Over Accounts and Officers Contribute $750,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—A flurry was caused in financial circles by the announcement of the retirement of the Farwell Trust Company from the banking field. Rumors that the institution was in difficulties were denied by George M. Reynolds, President of the Continental and Commercial National Bank, who is in close touch with its condition.

The institution of which Mr. Reynolds is the head and the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company, and the Bank of Nova Scotia will take over the accounts of the Farwell Bank. It is understood that officers of the company have contributed $750,000 in cash with which to meet all demands of depositors.

Granger Farwell, the head of the Farwell Trust Company, will continue handling public service corporation and irrigation securities, in which he was engaged before the trust company was organized four years ago.

"The Farwell Bank was not called, was not embarrassed, is not broken, and there will not be any loss to anybody," declared Mr. Reynolds. "The situation is simply this: That the institution dealt in securities, as is generally known. Mr. Farwell was a follower of the policy of completing a work before selling the bonds. For instance, he would put his own money in an irrigation project, develop the company physically, and then, after it was completed, sell the securities. That plan did not bring quick returns. The action was taken to prevent anybody closing in on them. The stockholders took care of the depositors, and the amount was comparatively small. The institution has no obligations except to other banks with which it is doing business. They are small and are amply secured."

The official report of the company on Sept. 2 was: Time certificates of deposit, $200,807; demand deposits subject to checks, $506,470; demand certificates of deposit, $100,610; total, $807,887.

BOY, 18, TAKES BRIDE OF 50.

Marries Wealthy Marcella Davis of Yonkers—Love Match, She Says.

Through a visit of John Christopher of 24 Orchard Place to the Yonkers Police Headquarters yesterday it became known that his son, David, 18 years old, had been married to Marcella Davis, a woman of 50, who owns three large furniture stores in that city. Mr. Christopher asked the police how he could have the marriage annulled. He said that his son had sworn falsely to the City Clerk when he applied for a license, and declared that he was 21. The police advised Mr. Christopher to consult counsel, and he said he would do this.

The new Mrs. Christopher said at her home, 176 Ashburton Avenue, yesterday that the marriage was performed at the City Hall on Wednesday. "David came to work for me two or three months ago," she said, "and I liked him the minute I saw him. It was a case of love at first sight with love on both sides."

David said he would not permit his parents to annul the marriage, adding: "I used to pass Marcella's office when I was attending St. Joseph's parochial school. I was in the graduating class, and it was only a couple of weeks before commencement when on the pretext of wanting work I went into the office and Marcella said she would take me. I got $7 a week, but she never let me do any work."

The first intimation David's parents got of the courtship or marriage was when they got a note from their son stating: "I've been dead in love with Marcella, and we got married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. We are happy. From your loving son, DAVID."

The youthful bridegroom is small for his age. His wife is a large woman.

DIES IN CAR LEADING BAND.

Debellis and His Musicians Were Going to Play in a Brooklyn Church.

Dominic Debellis, a band leader, dropped dead last night in a street car in Brooklyn. Debellis, who was well known as a musician among the churches of Manhattan and Brooklyn, was bound for a church at Seventeenth Street and Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn.

With the members of a band he boarded a special car at Brooklyn Bridge, and as it passed through the streets Debellis stood on the front platform and wielded his baton while the band played. As the car sped up Union Street the wand dropped from the leader's hand and he fell to the platform.

At Park Circle an ambulance was called from the Swedish Hospital. Debellis was taken from the car. He had died of heart failure. The band went on and played their engagement, but not until after the concert did they learn that their leader was dead.

CHINESE REBELLION IS SPREADING FAST

Fear That Cheng-Tu, Besieged by Rebels, Is Short of Food—Heavy Firing Reported.

THE CITY STILL ISOLATED

Consul Orders Aliens in Sze-Chuen to Go at Once to Places of Safety—Anti-Foreign Outbreaks.

CHUNG-KING, Sept. 14.—The revolution is fast gaining ground.

It is believed that no food has entered Cheng-Tu for many days, and probably the besieged are already on short rations.

Heavy firing is reported from that quarter between the loyal garrison and the rebels, among whom there are probably many soldiers.

Among the missionaries who have arrived here in safety are the Canadians stationed at Lu-Chow, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. P. Jolliffe, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ferguson, and E. R. Brecken. Lu-Chow is about 150 miles to the southeast of Cheng-Tu.

The British Consul, who is temporarily in charge of American interests in this district, to-day issued an order that all American and British citizens in the upper districts of the Province of Sze-Chuen must start immediately for the nearest place of safety before the situation becomes more grave.

PEKING, Sept. 14.—Cheng-Tu remains isolated. The Taotai of Chung-King reports that the situation at Cheng-Tu is serious. The daily rice supply has been cut off, and he fears that a shortage of provisions will result in disturbances inside the walls.

All the approaches to Cheng-Tu are held by rioters, the number of whom is being constantly augmented.

There are reports of disturbances at Sui-Fu, where the British refugees recently arrived, and of fighting at Kia-Ting, near by.

Rumors of violent anti-foreign outbreaks come from Wanh-Sien, east of Cheng-Tu, on the Yang-tse-Kiang, and a station of the China Inland Mission. This is a British mission. The American Baptist Mission Union has a station at Kia-Ting.

A Japanese gunboat is proceeding to Wanh-Sien.

Unpublished edicts order a large force of Wu-Chang troops to start immediately by the quickest route for Sze-Chuen, and instruct Tuan-Fang, Director General of the Hankow—Sze-Chuen Railway, who is expected at I-Chang to-morrow, to hasten the movement of the troop trains.

The relief force from Wu-Chang will take four weeks at least to reach Cheng-Tu, and the full gravity of the situation in the capital of Sze-Chuen Province is now realized.

The arrested ringleaders of the rebellion include the President and the Vice President of the Sze-Chuen Provincial Assembly. The latter was arrested at Han-Kow, whither, it is believed, he had journeyed with the intention of fomenting agitation in Hu-Peh Province.

The missionaries generally are hastoning to the nearest points of safety.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—A delayed cablegram received late to-day by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society in this city states that all its missionaries in the disturbed district of Western China are safe and that some have reached Chung-King from outlying places.

The cablegram came from the Canadian Methodist Foreign Mission Board at Toronto, the message having been sent to that society by mistake. The dispatch read:

"Cablegram received to-day, signed your mission, states Sui-Fu mission arrived safely and well at Chung-King. Kia-Ting missionaries en route. No telegraphic communication with Ming-Yuan, Ya-Chow, or Cheng-Tu, but believed to be safe."

ALARM FELT FOR MISSIONS.

Methodist Board Hears by Cable That Conditions Are Serious.

Great uneasiness was expressed yesterday at the headquarters of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions, at 150 Fifth Avenue, regarding the safety of the five-score missionaries known to be located at Cheng-Tu, the capital of the Province of Szechwan, Western China, where the rebellion of the Chinese soldiers against the Government is reported to be.

This cablegram was received by the board on Tuesday from Dr. J. H. McCartney, head of the board's mission at the City of Chung-King:

> There is a serious rebellion in the district of Cheng-Tu. The soldiers refuse to obey instructions and are trying to bring force against the Government control of the railway. The schools are closed in consequence. Business has been suspended and unless stopped uprising may lead to general rebellion.
> Conditions are precarious. The missionaries are concentrating at Chung-King. Four foreign gunboats provide full protection. Chung-King is quiet. The uprising is not at present directed against foreigners.

Dr. Homer C. Stuntz, the First Assistant Corresponding Secretary of the Board, promptly cabled back to Dr. McCartney for all possible further information, but none has yet been obtained or is likely to be obtainable. Cheng-Tu, the city in revolt, is about 175 miles from Chung-King, from which Dr. McCartney cabled, and the revolutionists have cut the telegraph wires between them.

Boat Communication Is Dangerous.

It is about a four-day journey between the two cities, and passengers generally go by boat. But in Summer the Yan-tse River, because of its currents and rapids, is dangerous, and a large percentage of the vessels which attempt to go from one port to another are wrecked before they have gone many miles.

"We have received no information about the uprising except Dr. McCartney's cable," said one of the officers of the Mission Board yesterday. "There are about 500 Protestant missionaries, representing different boards, in the Province of Szechwan, and about 100 in the neighborhood of Cheng-Tu, the capital. We hope that the revolt is confined to Cheng-Tu, and will not spread to other cities.

"We have been sending out an unusual number of missionaries to this particular province in the last few years, because it is the most remote of all the provinces in China, and is a virgin missionary soil. It is inhabited by a virile, warlike, uneducated and primitive people. It is isolated from the more civilized eastern part of China by mountain ranges and torrential rivers—barriers which steam and electricity have not yet passed.

Missionaries Start University.

"The Chinese Government has been planning recently to civilize its wild tribes by a military movement, and we ourselves have been recently hard at work establishing a university there. This is being developed just outside Cheng-Tu by four missions, the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, the Friends' Foreign Mission Association of Great Britain and Ireland, the General Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church of Canada, and the Board of Foreign Mis-

TIE BOYS TO A TREE WITH THREAT TO KILL

HOLD AXE OVER THEIR HEADS

Just Wanted to Scare Them, Says the Farmer, When the Police, Summoned by Autoist, Arrive.

Nineteen-year-old Patrick Lloyd, 28 Garfield Street, and Joseph Nowak, who is only 16, of 141 Elm Street, Yonkers, were walking through a patch of woods near Yonkers Avenue, Yonkers, yesterday afternoon. On the edge of the woods is a farm owned by Castandan Danto and his son, Folgenso. There being no fence to indicate where the farm begins, the boys unknowingly trespassed on the Danto property.

Young Danto saw them, however, and, pistol in hand, he gave chase, threatening to shoot them. The boys, believing that he would carry out his threat, finally stopped in Midland Avenue and held up their hands as he ordered.

As they did so an automobile came along operated by Joseph Hendee of 124 West 109th Street and containing two women. Hendee saw the man with the pistol and the two boys and without stopping his car drove to a telephone and told Police Capt. Hugh D. Brady that a hold-up was going on.

Policeman Ford was dispatched to the scene, but before he arrived the boys, their hands raised above their heads, were marched to the farmhouse, in front of which stood Danto's father.

The elder Danto got a rope and an axe, and the boys were led to a tree. The younger man made a noose, which he placed around Nowak's head, while the elder Danto with the axe threatened to kill the youth if he screamed or made any effort to get away.

The boy did yell, however, and his cries brought Mrs. Danto to a window of the house. She ran down and pleaded with her husband and son to let the boys go, but they turned a deaf ear to her, and led the boys away until Mrs. Danto cried out that the police were coming. At this warning Lloyd and Nowak were freed and father and son ran into the house.

Ford came up and learned the boy's story, he went to the house where Folgenso told him that the boys had been stealing and that he and his father had been trying to scare them so that they would keep away. Father and son were taken to the police station, where they were locked up on a charge of attempt to kill. A second charge of violating the Sullivan Weapon Law was laid against Folgenso.

BOY CAUGHT SETTING FIRES.

Boasted to Police of Similar Work in the Last Two Years.

While Mrs. Mary Fosdick and Mrs. Anna Schneider of 537 Crescent Avenue, Brooklyn, were seated in front of their houses yesterday they saw a half-grown boy light papers on the sidewalk and toss them against a window curtain in the basement of a house directly across the street, at 538 Crescent Avenue. The boy continued to throw the lighted papers until the curtain caught fire. As it blazed up he ran away. The two women hurried across the street and helped extinguish the fire with pails of water.

Half an hour later one of the women saw the same boy enter the basement of Alexander Pettit's grocery store at 551 Crescent Avenue. Suspicious of his errand, she notified her husband, and they went together to the basement. They found a fire blazing in the woodbin. This like the first fire was extinguished by a bucket brigade. The boy had escaped through the rear yard, stealing a bicycle belonging to one of the grocer's children. He was captured later by Sergeant William Benkler of the Liberty Avenue Station. He gave his name as Tony Scaldia of 531 Pine Street, Brooklyn, and said he was 11 years old. He boasted, the police said, that he had started many fires in the last two years and said that only a few months ago he had completed a term of a year in a protectory for starting a fire in a paper-box factory at First Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street, Manhattan.

TENEMENT FLATS BLOWN UP.

Brother of One Intended Victim Has Been Marked by Black Handers.

The five-story tenement at 314 East Twelfth Street was badly damaged early this morning by a bomb explosion which occurred on the third floor landing.

The bomb was placed outside the door of Paul Jebbia's flat, which was partly wrecked. The flat opposite, occupied by Joseph Chicbalo, and that of Michael Fardella, immediately below, were also damaged.

One of the boarders in the Jebbia household is Benjamin Siragusa, a son-in-law and a brother of Joseph Siragusa, a dairyman, who has been receiving many Black Hand letters and whose home at 349 East Fourteenth Street was damaged by a bomb last month.

The dairyman has persistently refused to pay tribute, and the police believe that Joseph Siragusa's enemies are now trying to intimidate him by attacking his brother and the latter's family. Benjamin Siragusa was out when the bomb exploded, and no one was seriously hurt by it. About $500 damage was done.

DESERTED WIFE FORGIVES.

Mrs. Trumbull Reconciled to Artist Who Ran Away with Brooklyn Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Edward Trumbull, the ex-flower girl of London, whose husband, the American artist, recently went through a marriage ceremony with Katherine Dreier, a society girl of Brooklyn, leaving his wife and two children almost penniless, has forgiven his desertion and will join him soon in America, says a cablegram received here to-night.

Mrs. Trumbull said that her husband's mother, Mrs. Faxson of Detroit, had sent her money, and that she has a letter from her husband begging her forgiveness.

JAMESON FINNEY LEFT A WIDOW

MADE NOW AT HER REQUEST

She Identified His Body After the Carlton Fire and Confessed the Secret Then to Miss Ada Dwyer.

A wedding announcement in THE TIMES this morning makes known for the first time that Jameson Lee Finney, the American actor who was burned to death in the Carlton Hotel, London, on Aug. 9, leaves a widow. He was married on July 12 last to Miss Emily Jex of this city.

The wedding announcement came from Miss Ada Dwyer, the actress, who was a close friend of Mr. Finney and who makes it at the request of the widow.

Mrs. Finney, née Jex, who lives with her widowed mother and widowed sister, Mrs. Gregory Sutton, at the Plaza when in this city, is now with her mother and sister at Vichy, France. They are expected home early in November.

News of his marriage came as a great surprise to the late actor's many friends in this city. They had understood that he was a bachelor, and he had not taken even his closest friends into his confidence regarding his marital affairs. Even Miss Dwyer, who off the stage is Mrs. Harold Russell, and who was named as a beneficiary in Mr. Finney's will, did not share the actor's secret.

Mrs. Dwyer said she first learned of the marriage when Mrs. Finney imparted it to her at Mr. Finney's funeral. Mrs. Finney, said Miss Dwyer, was so wrought up over the tragic death of her husband that she did not go into particulars regarding the marriage, and Miss Dwyer doesn't know where it took place or any of the attending circumstances.

Miss Dwyer is playing in "The Deep Purple" at the West End Theatre this week. This is the last play in which Mr. Finney had a part. He was on a vacation in London at the time of the fire and was found smothered to death in his bathroom, after the flames had been extinguished. It was his wife and Miss Dwyer who made the identification, for the body of the actor was burned almost beyond recognition.

"I know very little about Mr. Finney's marriage," said Miss Dwyer last night. "I was in London during that terrible time of the fire and helped to identify my dear friend's charred body. Miss Jex, whom I had known for several years and who had long been a dear friend of Mr. Finney, was also in London. She told me that she had married Mr. Finney on July 12. I was so wrought up over Mr. Finney's death that I paid little attention to what she told me, and as she did not seem to care to go into particulars I asked her nothing about it. I was greatly surprised, of course, to learn that the marriage had taken place, for Mr. Finney had dropped no hint of it, although I had seen a great deal of him.

"The other day I received a letter from Mrs. Finney, in which she asked me to notify several of Mr. Finney's friends here in New York that the marriage had taken place. Before I could do this I received to-day a cablegram from her asking me to make a public announcement of the marriage. This I immediately did.

"I cannot imagine why Mr. and Mrs. Finney should wish to keep their marriage a secret even from their closest friends, unless it was that it took place so soon after the death of Mr. Finney's mother," Miss Dwyer continued. "She died the latter part of April, you know, and it was a great blow to Mr. Finney. That was in New York, and Miss Jex and I saw a great deal of him during that time of sorrow.

"I suppose it was Mr. Finney's purpose to make the announcement of his marriage some time later, but death stepped in to change his plans. I know he thought a great deal of Miss Jex. She was about his own age, and she, with myself, was named as a beneficiary in his will. I have no idea what property Mr. Finney left, and won't know until the will is probated."

Mrs. Finney is said to be wealthy. She spends her Summers with her mother in Paris or Vichy.

EMBARRASSING DOG BITE.

Very Necessary Part of Policeman's Trousers Torn Away.

Policeman John J. Sexton of the Greenwich Street Station found it necessary to ride to the station on a pushcart last night after he had been set upon by a mongrel dog which bit him on the right leg and tore a large section of cloth from the portion of his trousers near his pistol pocket. Sexton and Patrolman McNamara had been rounding up a number of pushcart pedlers at Washington and Cortlandt Streets when the dog attacked them.

Sexton tried hard to beat the dog off with his nightstick, but the dog held on till McNamara came to Sexton's aid. The damage done to Sexton's trousers was such that it was deemed advisable for him to make the trip in some vehicle that would permit him to remain seated. His trip was greatly enjoyed by a large audience of Jersey commuters who risked missing a train to witness the performance. The dog escaped.

When Sexton reached the station an ambulance was called from New York Hospital and the wound on his leg, which was a slight one, was cauterized. Then one of Sexton's fellow policemen went out and bought a package of safety pins. The remnants of Sexton's trousers were pinned together and he went home.

MOLASSES KILLS MANY FISH.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 14.—The latest result of the collapse of the molasses reservoir on Monday, when a considerable section of the city was inundated by the sticky fluid, has been brought to the attention of the municipal authorities by residents along the shores of Lake Pontchartrain, who say that millions of fish have been killed by the emptying of the syrup into the basin.

Dr. W. T. O'Reilly, City Health Officer, however, says that he does not think the matter a serious menace to the public health; but the people in the vicinity declare the odor to be unbearable. Millions of dead sardines, shrimp, crakers, and other fish are floating on the lake, whose waters for a long distance have the appearance of a great sheet of white paper, caused by the white bodies of the fish.

Many little crabs that managed to escape are to be seen climbing upon stumps that project out of the water and along the sea-wall.

THE POPE'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Water That Supplied the Vatican Found to be Cholera Infected.

ROME, Sept. 14.—It is believed that the Vatican and the surrounding neighborhood have had a narrow escape from cholera infection.

The Mayor of a small village on Lake Bracciano, seventeen miles from Rome, last night telephoned to the Director of the Health Office here asking him to send doctors immediately to examine a woman who was suspected of having contracted cholera. When the doctors arrived they found the woman dead and were able to diagnose the case as one of cholera.

They discovered that her contaminated clothing had been thrown into a stream near by and they learned that the stream was a tributary of the little river which supplies the Vatican with water for working purposes and kitchen use. All the district around the Vatican is supplied with the same water for industrial purposes.

A hasty message was sent to Rome, and workmen were dispatched to break the water pipes, which they succeeded in doing before daybreak. The Pope and Mgr. Bisleti, the Papal Major Domo, were surprised at the sudden cutting off of the electric light through the lack of water. It was only discovered later by the Vatican officials that radical measures had to be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

ROME, Sept. 14.—The engineers of the Vatican have planned a new road leading direct from the Apostolic Palace to the Gardens, which will enable the Pope to step from his own apartment immediately into the fresh air.

At present the Pontiff must pass through Raphael's Loggie and the Lapidarian Museum before reaching the gate of the Gardens.

WOMAN IN AUTO KILLED.

Car Turned Over and Wrecked in Attempt to Avoid a Pedestrian.

Miss Josephine Noble of Glen Head, L. I., was instantly killed at 2:30 this morning when a motor car in which she was riding ran into a curbstone, turning from Eastern Parkway into Bedford Avenue. The car was driven by Harold Swaine, and was occupied by another man and woman.

Swaine threw the steering gear of the car abruptly as he turned the corner, to avoid striking a pedestrian. Dr. Truax of the Swedish Hospital found that Miss Noble had been killed by a compound fracture of the skull. The other occupants of the car were slightly injured. The car turned turtle, but all of its occupants were thrown out, without being pinned under it.

AID FROM MRS. ROOSEVELT.

She Tows the Sayville Hose Cart to a Fire with Her Automobile.

SAYVILLE, L. I., Sept. 14.—Mrs. John E. Roosevelt, who married a cousin of Col. Roosevelt, and her two daughters, the Misses Gladys and Eugenie, were driving their big automobile past the house of the local fire company yesterday when the alarm bell sounded. The firemen, having no horses, are usually compelled to pull their apparatus through the streets themselves, but Mrs. Roosevelt directed them to fasten the hose cart to her automobile, and towed it to the fire in record time.

Mrs. Roosevelt waited until the fire was out, and then took the hose cart back to headquarters. The Roosevelt residence at Sayville was partly destroyed by fire recently. Mrs. Roosevelt, when thanked for her assistance, said she was glad to do something partly to repay the firemen for their good work at her home.

WOMEN ON 260-MILE DRIVE

Mrs. Strauss and Daughter En Route for New York Home from Cooperstown.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Driving their family horse, a thoroughbred, hitched to a coupé, Mrs. Lehman Strauss and her fifteen-year-old daughter, Mildred, reached this village to-day on their 260-mile drive from Cooperstown, in Otsego County, where they have been spending the Summer, to their home in New York.

Mrs. Strauss's husband is a New York horse man. She and her daughter have been just a week driving from Cooperstown, having been detained for several days on account of rain. In an interview Mrs. Strauss said:

"We are driving this way because we both love horses, and because we have an opportunity of seeing the country. We care nothing for automobiles. If you talk with an automobilist he will boast: 'Why, we came over the last 150 miles in so many hours and so many seconds.' We prefer to travel to admire the scenery and enjoy ourselves.

"We have passed over some of the finest roads. New York State highways certainly eclipse any I have ever traversed. My daughter and myself have driven through England, Ireland, Norway, Sweden, France, and Germany."

PIERCED BY A FISHING ROD.

Operation Followed at Sea Upon Passenger of Bermuda Liner.

The Royal Mail liner Tagus arrived last night from Bermuda. One of the passengers was Ralph Edward Cropley of Summit, N. J., bond salesman for Bond & Goodwin of 11 Broadway. Mr. Cropley, who is convalescing from an operation performed aboard the vessel by Dr. J. C. Cormack, the ship's surgeon, shortly before its arrival at Bermuda on Sept. 7, remained aboard the steamer over night and will be removed to his home to-day. The operation followed an accident to Mr. Cropley the first day out, when his abdomen was pierced by a fishing rod which he was repairing for Second Officer Kitson. He had pressed his weight against the rod when his foot slipped and the rod was driven into his body.

When the steamer, which left New York on Sept. 6, arrived at Bermuda it was found that Mr. Cropley's condition was so serious that his removal from the ship was impossible.

The operation, Dr. Cormack says, was successful, and the speedy recovery of Mr. Cropley is expected.

It was said that there were twenty honeymoon couples aboard the Tagus when she arrived.

ROBS McBURNEYS OF GEMS.

Burglar Enters House Near Lenox and Carries Off $5,000 Worth.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 14.—The country residence of Dr. Charles McBurney of New York, near here, was robbed last night while Dr. and Mrs. McBurney were entertaining at dinner. The thief climbed a porch and entered a second-story window leading into the apartments of Mrs. Austin F. Riggs, a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. McBurney. He carried off several necklaces set with diamonds and emeralds, diamond brooches, pins, gold chains, and a watch, belonging to Mrs. Riggs, and from Dr. McBurney's room took a box containing many articles of jewelry and a watch. The value of the jewelry is $5,000.

Mrs. Riggs discovered the losses at 10:30 o'clock on going to her rooms. The police were then sent for. Last year the Stockbridge home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hoffman was robbed in the same way and the jewelry taken was never recovered.

STOLYPIN SHOT; CZAR PRESENT

THE ASSASSIN ARRESTED

EXPECTED TO BE SLAIN

Said on Taking Office in 1906 He Hoped Order Would Be Restored First.

ONE EXTRAORDINARY ESCAPE

Explosion at His House Killed 28 Persons—"Stolypin's Necktie" a Synonym for the Hangman's Noose.

KIEFF, Russia, Sept. 14.—The Russian Premier, P. A. Stolypin, was attacked while attending a gala performance at the Opera to-night. He was wounded twice by his assailant.

One bullet entered the Prime Minister's hand, while the other penetrated the body, grazing the liver and lodging in the spine.

It is reported that the Premier's wounds are mortal.

The Premier's assailant, a lawyer named Bogroff, was arrested.

Two bullets were fired from behind the Premier by Bogrof. The audience tried to lynch the assassin. Some reports have it that a musician also was wounded. The Minister of Finance, M. Kokovsoff, was sitting beside the Premier at the time of the attack.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 14.—Alexander Stolypin, a political writer of The Novoe Vremya, who is a brother of the Premier, telegraphed from Kieff that a bullet perforated the Premier's lung.

According to dispatches to the newspaper here the liver was perforated and the wound is mortal. According to the same dispatches, after the wounded Premier was removed from the body of the house, the audience insisted upon singing the National anthem.

The Emperor, who is paying a week's visit to Kieff, to-day received deputations from the Western Zemstvos, which were elected under the Stolypin law and are generally composed of Government adherents. The Emperor wished them success and invoked divine aid in their labors.

Similar care to avoid partisanship was exhibited at a reception to the nobility, at which there was a brilliant gathering of Polish magnates, headed by Prince Sanguszko and Prince Radziwill.

At the unveiling of the monument to Alexander II., this afternoon, 300,000 persons were present. The Emperor, at the head of the troops, saluted the monument.

A garden party at Merchants' Park last evening, which was attended by members of the royal family, was notable for the absence of police, the grounds being guarded by student volunteers.

On the afternoon of Aug. 25, 1906, revolutionists exploded a bomb in Premier Stolypin's country house near St. Petersburg in the course of a public reception. Twenty-eight persons were killed and thirty-three injured, the latter including the Premier's fifteen-year-old daughter and three-year-old son. The Premier had a wonderful escape from death, for only a moment before the explosion he had stepped inside his study at the rear of the salon to speak to Prince Shakovsky. He was only slightly injured in the face and neck by flying splinters, but he was long prostrated by the shock.

Among those who were killed by the explosion were Gen. Zameatin, the Premier's personal secretary, who was Chief of Communications in the war with Japan; Prince Nakashidge, M. Khovostoff, ex-Governor of the Province of Penza, and Col. Federoff, chief of the Premier's personal guard. The tremendous force of the explosion blew out the front of the residence and carried away the ceilings above and the floors below, as well as the walls of the adjoining rooms. Persons were literally blown to pieces. Those who were not killed instantly were horribly maimed or lacerated.

Four Terrorists drove up to M. Stolypin's villa late in the afternoon, after the list of visitors had been closed. Two of them were dressed as officers of gendarmes, the third was dressed as a driver, and was on the box of the carriage, and the fourth was in civilian clothes. The plotters evidently tried to make it appear that they were escorting a political prisoner. Two of the men entered the villa under the pretext of making an important report to the Premier. The servants refused to admit them, and they tried to force an entrance. There was a struggle, in the course of which one of the Terrorists dropped a bomb. The explosion followed. Two of the revolutionists were torn to pieces and the others were badly injured.

In the gendarme officer's coat which one of the Terrorists wore was found the "death sentence" on the Premier that he had tried to execute. The police learned that the crime was committed by the "Fighting Organization" of the Social Revolutionists in retaliation for the war which the Government had been waging against them. It became known that an attempt upon M. Stolypin was frustrated ten days earlier by the discovery of the beginning of a subterranean passage from the crypt of a church adjoining his residence.

Premier M. Stolypin did much to suppress the Terrorist outbreaks which, when he entered office, threatened to result in revolution. His conduct of his office had been satisfactory to the Czar and the Government, but had been attended with severe repressive measures. He was formerly Governor of Saratoff, in which capacity he was an object of hatred on the part of revolutionists, who made an attempt upon his life in 1905. In May, 1906, he was appointed Minister of the Interior, and on July 22 of the same year an imperial ukase appointed him Premier, although he still retained the portfolio of Minister of the Interior.

Before long "Stolypin's Necktie" became a synonym for the hangman's noose throughout Russia. Prosecutions proceeded with great rapidity under his direction and the advent of a more liberal form of Government was checked. He quarreled frequently with the Duma, and was victorious in his disputes with that body owing to the confidence of the Czar that he enjoyed. When Stolypin accepted the Premiership he was perfectly conscious of his peril. He said at the time:

"I have no doubt that attempts will be made upon my life, but I hope that order will be restored and stability established in Russia before they are successful."

Recently M. Stolypin had taken the most extraordinary precautions against an attempt upon his life. He always rode in a high-powered armor-plated automobile. The top is of leather with no glass, the danger of which, when splintered by dynamite, was learned from experience in the assassinations of the Grand Duke Sergius and Minister of the Interior de Plehve. A score of guards and detectives, generally in plain clothes, followed the automobile, some on motor cycles and others in carriages. In his drives in St. Petersburg M. Stolypin usually took a different route each day.

M. Stolypin resigned as Premier and Minister of the Interior on March 20 of this year, but three days later he reconsidered his action and consented to remain in office. He presented his resignation to the Emperor because the Council of the Empire had rejected his Zemstvo bill. Later, however, it was learned that the Emperor had used his personal influence to retain M. Stolypin in office.

Kieff, the oldest city in Russia, called the "Mother of Russian Cities," is 670 miles south of St. Petersburg and about 300 miles north of Odessa. It is the capital of the Government of the same name and the residence of the Governor General of Little Russia. It is the spot on which Christianity was first introduced in Russia and is full of fine ancient buildings.

OTTOMAN EMPIRE IN CHOLERA'S GRIP

TROOPS SPREAD INFECTION

Sanitary Measures Hopelessly Inadequate—Officials Simply Letting the Disease Run Its Course.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 14.—The whole Ottoman Empire is in the grip of the cholera, and the deaths will be numbered in the thousands, though the failure of any attempt to keep official records makes even an approximate estimate impossible.

Scarcely a town or village from Bagdad to Skutari has escaped. In Northern Asia Minor, where the scourge first appeared, whole villages have been wiped out. In some districts the tax gatherer in making his rounds has not found a living person, those of the inhabitants who had survived the epidemic having fled to other parts.

The troops returning to the camps near here from Albania have been a prolific source of infection.

In most cases the sanitary measures taken are hopelessly inadequate, and the disease is simply running its course.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The Public Health and Marine Hospital Service has apparently received no recent reports regarding the cholera situation in Turkey. Up to last Friday, when the latest report was issued by the service, no advices had been received indicating the spread of cholera in the Ottoman Empire, though it was briefly mentioned that cases existed in Turkey in Europe and Turkey in Asia. Outside Italy, where the disease has for months reached the proportions of an epidemic, cases are sprinkled all around the Mediterranean coasts.

In Italy alone the cases reported in the week ended Sept. 9 numbered 1,653, with 602 deaths. The terrible mortality resulting from the disease is indicated by the fact that out of 19 cases in Rome 12 died; out of 104 in the Province of Naples, 46 died; 61 died out of 153 in Leghorn, and 32 out of 56 in the City of Genoa.

In the same week there were reported in Vienna 1 case; in Montenegro, 2 cases; in Russia, 572 cases, with 313 deaths; in Siam, 191 deaths; in the Straits Settlements, 18 deaths, and in Singapore, 7 deaths.

Prince Arthur Not Betrothed.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The report of the betrothal of Prince Arthur of Connaught to Princess Irene, daughter of the Grand Duchess Xenia Alexandrovna, who is a sister of Emperor Nicholas, is officially denied.

SIX PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Opposition Which the President Will Meet in the West Pointed Out by Means of Queries.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The Progressive National Committee has begun to send out literature addressed directly to the President's proposed attempt to recover lost ground with Republicans in the "enemy's country," which is the West beyond Indiana. To-night the committee issued the following tables of States whose electoral vote went to the Democrats in last Fall's election, showing just how much President Taft, if he should be nominated, will have to do to carry the country.

*States which were Republican in 1908, but became Democratic in 1910.

"To secure his re-election, President Taft must recover not less than sixty-three Electoral votes from States carried by the Democrats in 1910, without losing any votes in the progressive States which then stayed in the Republican column. Can he do it?

"Can he get back his native State of Ohio? Can he develop any strength in the States on the Atlantic Coast which left him last year, without making corresponding losses in the West?

"Not counting his own State, there are only five States, all on the Atlantic seaboard, where he can expect to make any considerable recovery—Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, and New York. But there are nine States in the Middle West and Far West where the revolt against the Payne-Aldrich tariff, the Wickersham railroad policy, Ballingerism, and Lorimerism menace the success of any standpat candidate for any office. The States are Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, and Wisconsin.

Based on the protests of Western Republicans who are in touch with the progressive headquarters, the opposition which the President must meet in his Western tour expresses itself in the following six questions:

"1. The people will ask the President why he considered that a reduction of the duties on agricultural products so urgent as to require a special session of Congress while he compelled the country to await the revision of the much-debated, well-studied, well-understood and discredited wool schedule, until he should publish the report of his Tariff Board?

"2. The people are not confused about reciprocity. It will reduce the cost of living or it will not. If it will not, it is a pretense; if it will, it must reduce the prices of farm products. The President must explain this.

"3. The people will expect the President to state plainly whether he is in favor of Aldrich's central bank plan or opposed to it. They want to know why a central banking organization, under the Aldrich plan, will not be controlled by the great moneyed interests which centre in Wall Street.

"4. Remembering that Richard Achilles Ballinger came from the State of Washington to the Cabinet, as a representative of the public-land States of the Northwest, and that later his own State by an overwhelming vote sent his critic Poindexter to the Senate, they will want to know the President's exact attitude on the several conservation questions; the public land question; the question of the preservation and the use of National forests; the development of the Alaska coal fields; the construction and control of railroads in Alaska. They will expect Mr. Taft to be explicit—to outline a definite policy so they may know whether his inclination is toward the development of natural resources by such large and enterprising syndicates as that of Guggenheim and Morgan, or by pioneers, prospectors, and small business men, with the protection and assistance of the Government.

"5. The people will be anxious to learn the President's policy toward the industrial trusts. They believe a public servant's policy with regard to railroad combinations is indicative of his probable policy toward industrial trusts. They have not forgotten that it is of record that the present Administration proposed to allow the railroads to enter into pooling agreements and attempted to legalize the ownership by one railroad of a majority of the stock of another competing with it; in brief, to legalize railroad trusts. The people want to know if that is the President's policy regarding industrial trusts.

"6. And, finally, the people will want to learn from the President what his attitude will be toward the progressives in his own party if he should be nominated and re-elected. In the unforgotten Norton letter it was acknowledged on behalf of the President that he had dealt with the progressives as if they had been Democrats because they had opposed his railroad policy as regards legalized pooling, and in other matters. Will the President construe his renomination (if he should be renominated, and his re-election, if he should be re-elected) as a mandate to read the Republican insurgents out of the party a second time?"

had appropriations that could be used for the benefit of all the States.

"My State," said Gov. Gilchrist, "is not going to ask money or any aid from Alabama. The States that have such litigation on can look out for themselves. If you want to do something about it bundle up the speeches of Hadley and Aldrich and O'Neal and send them down there to the Supreme Court, and that will clear up the whole subject."

Gov. Hawley of Idaho supported Gov. O'Neal's motion, as did Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia.

"This is by far the most important matter that has come before us," said Gov. Smith, "and it is the most important matter that could come before us. It is not simply a question of abandoning States' rights, but it is a fact that if our Governments have no jurisdiction over intra-State problems, if the opinion of Judge Sanborn is to become the law of this country, the twilight zone will be so broadened that we will never see daylight again in the matter of rate regulation. Intra-State corporations will return to the old conditions and do exactly as they please. We should co-operate and stand side by side in this case. What can the committee do? It can at once be the means of bringing together the Governors of those States having these cases in the Supreme Court and of joining the work and wisdom of their Attorneys General. It may be the means of saving the States from so ruinous a construction of the law and the consequences that will follow if the opinion of Sanborn ever becomes law."

Gov. Hay of Washington heartily indorsed the action proposed, and said his State would participate if he had to go down in his own pocket for the money.

Question Pressed to a Vote.

Up to this point the proposition had been for the committee to employ counsel. Gov. Stubbs of Kansas now came forward with a proposal that the committee of Governors itself appear before the Supreme Court, and for that purpose suggested that it consist of Govs. Harmon, Hadley, and Aldrich. Gov. Gilchrist said he would support this plan, and Gov. O'Neal accepted it as a substitute.

Gov. Noel of Mississippi, seeing that Gov. O'Neal was being left off the committee, moved that the Chair appoint two additional members. There were cries of "No!" from several directions, some of the radical Governors seeming to want Gov. O'Neal left off because of his failure to agree with them over the initiative, referendum, and recall. A vote was taken, which was so evenly divided that it left the Chairman in doubt, and Gov. Noel, seeing the strength of the opposition, withdrew the amendment.

Gov. Kitchin of North Carolina was the next to demur.

"The proposed action," he said, "seems to me to be beyond the scope of this conference. If Minnesota has a case pending, she is amply able to take care of it. Alabama is in the same position. So far this conference, from the first year of its existence, has never undertaken to do any executive business of this character. The United States Constitution forbids one State making a compact with another, and this looks very much like going into some sort of a compact. If we take this action the criticism that was leveled at us when the conference was called the House of Governors will be renewed."

Gov. Gilchrist suggested an adjournment to think it over, but was as nearly hooted down as possible in so polite a body.

Gov. Hadley of Missouri referred to the railroad cases in which he was concerned while Attorney General of his State, and said:

"Since these questions came up we have seen the power of the States gradually whittled away. It is time for them to assert their rights in vigorous fashion.

"If they do not they are likely to become mere arrondissements, with power only to levy taxes for the payment of local officers."

Gov. Cruce of Oklahoma declared, in answer to Gov. Gilchrist, that if the States which are now fighting these cases lose them in the Supreme Court it will then be too late for the lawyers of Florida, no matter how able they may be, to do anything to protect the rights of their own State.

"It seems to be the unanimous sentiment," said Gov. Shafroth of Colorado, "that the States should be in control of intra-State rates. If this view is presented by the three Governors named the Supreme Court is bound to be more impressed with the seriousness of the matter, and to take notice, than if it were presented by any number of able lawyers."

"Do you reckon they'll bulldoze the court?" asked Gov. Gilchrist.

"Not that," replied Gov. Shafroth, "but it will have an effect in bringing it to recognize the seriousness of the matter."

"I am as strongly in favor of this action as anybody here," said Gov. McGovern of Wisconsin, "but I cannot agree that it is not a departure from the rules of this conference. The rule has been that it should take no action on any question. It is a wise rule, but there are occasions when it is best to make exceptions to the rules. However, if Gov. Gilchrist and Gov. Kitchin want more time to consider it I would favor putting it over till to-morrow."

"But I'm in favor of it the way Stubbs has put it up," said Gov. Gilchrist. "I don't want a delay."

Gov. Kitchin said he was ready to vote, and explained that his opposition was solely on the ground that it was outside the functions of the conference.

The motion was put and carried without an audible response when the noes were called for, but Gov. Kitchin said afterward that he had voted in the negative.

The other Governors who were present and voted in the affirmative were: O'Neal, Alabama; Shafroth, Colorado; Gilchrist, Florida; Smith, Georgia; Hawley, Idaho; Stubbs, Kansas; Crothers, Maryland; Foss, Massachusetts; Noel, Mississippi; Hadley, Missouri; Norris, Montana; Aldrich, Nebraska; Bass, New Hampshire; Wilson, New Jersey; Burke, North Dakota; Harmon, Ohio; Cruce, Oklahoma; Tener, Pennsylvania; Pothier, Rhode Island; Spry, Utah; Mann, Virginia; Hay, Washington; Glasscock, West Virginia; McGovern, Wisconsin.

Minnesota's Firm Stand.

The paper of Gov. Aldrich, which furnished the basis for the discussion and action of the afternoon, was a long and comprehensive review of legal points involved in the Nebraska and Minnesota rate cases, concluding with an unsparing criticism of Judge Sanborn's position. He said:

"I invite your attention to an examination of the elaborate opinion recently written by Judge Sanborn in the Minnesota freight and passenger rate cases. Admitting the rate law would net the railroads remunerative rates, he holds that the same are void by reason of the fact that they directly regulate and substantially burden inter-State commerce.

"It is the duty of the courts not to legislate, but simply to apply in a just and common sense way, without fear or favor, legal principles to each case as it comes up with its own peculiar facts and its own peculiar circumstances. When courts will uniformly apply legal principles in the same way, to the same or similar cases, then we can eventually have a fixed rule for those particular matters.

"But when courts are continually making different applications of the same principles, to the same or similar circumstances, then we have a chaotic, unsettled, and unsatisfactory condition.

"In other words, when, by a long course of square and fair, sensible and just applications of these legal principles, so that there will be some certainty as to what a decision will be, then this chaotic condition will cease and the feeling of distrust that the public in many States now have for inferior Federal courts will vanish.

"Probably a whole lot of this trouble comes from the fact that in many instances these inferior courts are composed of lawyers who owe their position not so much to legal attainments and profound learning as they do to political service rendered. That explains why in so many instances these court opinions sound very like the argument of a lawyer who holds the brief of a railroad company rather than an important, influential, and powerful position at the hands of the judicial system of our country.

"I say that it is the overwhelming weight of authority, more, I deem it the law without any exception whatever, that the State of Minnesota, in this rate regulating, has the right to promulgate schedules and reasonable rates and charges, which the common carriers of that State must obey, and in so doing this regulation may incidentally affect inter-State traffic. But it is the overwhelming weight of authority that this does not nullify the law.

"And in concluding my remarks upon this Sanborn decision, I say:

"First, that it is unjust and unsound.

"Second, that it has failed to look into the operations of the statute complained of in its broadest sense.

"Third, that it does not view the entire scope of this law in determining whether it violates the inter-State commerce clause.

"Fourth, that it ignores and does not consider the full power of the State to make such a regulation and the fairness of that law.

"Fifth, that its conclusions are based on isolated instances and extreme cases which is contrary to the well-settled law of this country.

"Sixth, that it does not take into consideration nor in any way attempt to show what is the volume of traffic affected in particular instances as compared to the general volume of traffic of the companies.

"And last, and possibly most important of all, it does not show or take into consideration whether the readjustment of inter-State rates caused by the reduction of local rates is non-compensatory.

"I know not what other States may do, I know not what other States may think, but I can speak for my own State and say that she demands the right and the privilege to be allowed to do the things which her sovereignty, her independence, and her liberty says she may do.

"I say that my State will not only insist, but it will carry forward, at any and all hazards, its inherent governmental functions, and in doing this it stands in line with an unbroken chain of decisions coming down from the highest judicial body in the land, from the earliest day to the present.

"It will respect courts and court decisions, but as a condition precedent to all this it demands that court opinions stay within well-marked lines and respect the sovereign power of these States in the regulation and control of their own purely internal commerce.

"At all times it asks these courts to do homage to the scheme of representative government, and let the courts remember that tyranny clothed in the garb of judicial ermine has features as hideous as though in the hands of a Czar."

Gov. Hadley in his address on the same subject at the morning session said in part:

"The question as to the right to regulate within their limits the rates of transportation of railroad companies engaged in inter-State commerce, which is now pending before the Supreme Court of the United States for decision, is, in my opinion, one of the most important if not the most important question with which that court has had to deal in recent years, for the question of transportation is the most important question of commerce and, in fact, of civilization itself.

"Manifestly, it is through the railroads of the country that the life blood of its commerce flows. And those who have the power, and by virtue of the power exercise the privilege of controlling the means and determining the rates of transportation, have the power and exercise the privilege of levying tribute upon the labor and the frugality of the people whom they serve. And the experience of the American people has shown that it cannot be safely left to those who control the operation of these great enterprises to fix the rates of transportation free from the regulation of effective competition of the superior authority of governmental control.

"The right of the States to regulate the transportation in intra-State commerce of railroads engaged in inter-State commerce is now vigorously denied, for the reason that it is claimed the fixing of rates in intra-State commerce of necessity determines, or, at least, directly affects, the rates of transportation in inter-State commerce. This contention has but recently been sustained by the United States Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota in a decision known as the Minnesota rate cases.

"A number of cases involving the reasonableness, and, therefore, the constitutionality, of the acts of the several States, or orders of their boards of Railroad Commissioners fixing maximum rates for passenger and freight traffic, were pending before the Supreme Court of the United States at the time this decision was rendered. In all of these cases the same contention had been made in the Circuit Court as was advanced and sustained by Judge Sanborn in the Minnesota rate cases. Following the decision of Judge Sanborn, the submission of these cases pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, which had already been argued and submitted, was set aside, and they were down again for argument at the October term of that court.

"Whether the decision in the Minnesota rate cases was the cause of this action of the Supreme Court is, of course, only a matter of conjecture. But during the coming term of the Supreme Court there will be heard cases arising out of controversies between a number of the States and the railroads doing business therein as to the constitutionality of maximum freight and passenger rate laws, in each of which the contention will doubtless be vigorously urged that the laws of these States or the orders of their Boards of Railroad Commissioners are unconstitutional, because by fixing rates for transportation within the States inter-State commerce is directly burdened and affected.

"The importance and the far-reaching effect of the decision that will be rendered upon this point can hardly be overestimated. If the right of regulation of the rates of transportation in intra-State commerce shall be denied the several States, then there will be enjoyed by the railroad companies the right to fix intra-State rates of transportation free from any supervision or regulation. And they will thus be enabled to levy a tribute upon the people of the several States, the amount of which will be limited only by their own necessities or desire for gain. Further than this, the denial of the right of the several States to regulate the rates of transportation in intra-State traffic will, as an inevitable and logical result, result in the denial of the right of the States to regulate or supervise the conduct of any business inter-State in its character if thereby the conduct of that business in inter-State commerce is directly affected or burdened.

"Some people see in the present situation such difficulties that they contend that Government ownership and operation of railroads is the only practical solution. I do not believe that Government owenership and operation of railroads is either a necessary or advisable solution. But it will doubtless be necessary that we should 'cut and dry' many times before we finally determine upon the correct policy for dealing with this important and intricate problem."

The woman suffragists made their appeal to the Governors at this morning's session. Many requests have been made for hearings by societies and associations advocating one reform or another. All these have been refused, but the suffragists could not be withstood. The Governors allotted them half an hour, and met that much earlier this morning when the Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw was scheduled to speak. She was not able to get to Spring Lake until later, but other suffragists were on hand, and for the first time the big parlor of the Monmouth Hotel, where the sessions are held, was crowded. It was an animated gathering, too, and as chatty as a matinée party. When it was found that Dr. Shaw had not arrived Mrs. J. W. Brannan of the Woman's Political Union of New York made a brief address, as did Mrs. Van Winkle of Newark, who said it was time for each of the Governors, including the Chief Executive of New Jersey, to align himself on one side or the other of the question.

Dr. Shaw was roundly applauded when she was introduced by Chairman Noel.

"What are the purposes of government?" she asked. "They are threefold; the protection of person and property; the administration of justice and the development of society. Now it cannot be said that none of these three things concerns women, at least since the Supreme Court has decided that we have souls and are persons. They concern all persons, and it requires the entire population of an entire community to solve the problems that arise under them.

"Some time when your questions are referred to the entire people of an entire community we shall by working all the time frame the sort of government we want to live under. You men in your wisdom have failed to find it yet, nor will you ever find it so long as you debar resolutely and unqualifiedly one half of the human beings of the community."

WON HER CHILDREN, BUT 'TWAS TOO LATE

Mrs. Starbuck Dies of Morphine in Hospital Before the Good News Reaches Her.

HER LIE TO COURT FORGIVEN

And Her Husband Had Agreed to Surrender the Children to Her Custody When She Succumbed to a Drug.

Mrs. Grace Lowther Starbuck, who died on Wednesday in the J. Hood Wright Hospital of an overdose of morphia, taken to ease the pain of a chronic ailment, would have received in a few hours, had she lived, the news that her long battle for the custody of her little son and daughter, waged for more than a year in the courts, was to end in the attainment of her wish. Her lawyer, Alexander Simpson, was on his way to tell her that the lawyers representing her husband, Ferdinand Starbuck, a dry goods commission merchant of 109 Worth Street had arrived at an agreement with him, giving her the children's custody.

Mrs. Starbuck was taken to the hospital from 544 West 113th Street on Tuesday afternoon unconscious. Among the measures taken to revive her from the effects of the narcotic was to tell her that her long fight had been won. But she was too far gone even to be aroused by the news.

It was in August, 1910, that she resisted an order of Supreme Court Justice Bischoff giving to her husband the custody of her two children, Ferdinand, aged 12, and Catherine, 11, pending the trial of counter-suits for divorce. She declared that she did not know the children's whereabouts, but admitted later she had misinformed the court. The children were discovered at Arlington, N. J., and recovered by agents of Mr. Starbuck, who asked, through his lawyer, that his wife receive no punishment. Justice Bischoff decided to let the contempt proceedings drop. In a letter addressed to him on Aug. 28, when the children had been recovered, she wrote:

"Mr. dear Judge Bischoff: This afternoon I called at your home to open my heart to you. I knew right along where my children were, but they had begged so hard for me to protect them that I made up my mind to tell a falsehood to the court. * * * You may punish me any way you see fit, Judge, but I love my children so dearly that I would gladly die for them. But one favor may I ask, and that is, that you will see the children [illegible] hear from them their treatment all by yourself. And if you cannot trust [illegible], put them in some one's care until the case is tried, as I want them happy if I go to jail."

Gives His Body to College in Will.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 14.—Dr. S. F. Kessler, for twenty years Professor of Anatomy at Ensworth Medical College here, and a member of the Municipal Board of Health, announced last night that he had willed his body to the college and that after his death the students may use it as a basis for study. Dr. Kessler's action was taken after he had read a dispatch to the effect that the late Dr. Thomas F. Dwight had willed his body to Harvard University.

FRENCH GOLD STOCK MYSTERIOUSLY LOW

One Suggested Cause Is That the Military Treasuries Are Being Replenished.

BOURSE WEAKER YESTERDAY

Foreign Institutions Said to Have Withdrawn $100,000,000 from German Banks Since the Agadir Coup.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—The extraordinary diminution of $3,414,800 gold, and $1,851,400 silver in the stock of the Bank of France is shown by the report for the week ending yesterday.

At present the bank is giving only about 10 per cent. in gold change at its bureaus, and foreign visitors find it almost impossible to get more.

One explanation of this decrease in the national gold stock, as well as of the heavy calls which French banks have been making on their German clients, is that an instalment of the Argentine loan, recently concluded in Berlin, Paris, and London, is due, and has to be paid in gold.

It is, however, said in some well-informed quarters that the authorities found it advisable to replenish the military treasuries throughout the country.

According to a statement printed in The Siècle to-night foreign institutions have withdrawn $100,000,000 from German banks since the Agadir coup, French banks having taken $50,000,000, and English banks, $30,000,000.

That France has been able to apply financial pressure to Germany directly as well as indirectly is explained by the fact that certain French banks subsidize important banking concerns in Belgium and Switzerland.

The Bourse was much weaker in all directions to-day owing to apprehensions regarding to-morrow's settlement. Operators were compelled to realize heavily, as lenders appeared to be disinclined to offer the usual facilities.

GERMANY HAS FRENCH REPLY.

Belief That a Considerable Time Will Be Taken in Examining It.

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—The French reply to Germany's note regarding Morocco reached Berlin this evening, and it is expected that the French Ambassador, M. Cambon, will present it to Foreign Minister von Kiderlen-Wächter some time to-morrow. The contents of the reply, however, have already been transmitted to the German Foreign Office informally through the German Ambassador at Paris.

An examination of the various points of the reply, it is understood, will require a considerable period. Probably another exchange of views regarding the details will be necessary.

The Imperial Chancellor had a long audience with the Emperor at Potsdam before his Majesty's departure this evening for Danzig.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—As showing the tense state of public feeling over the Moroccan situation a report gained circulation this morning that twenty-five Uhlans, belonging to one of the crack regiments of Germany, had crossed the frontier near Luneville.

The Minister of the Interior immediately investigated the report and denied it.

JENA, Sept. 14.—Discussing the Moroccan situation at the Social Democratic Congress to-day, Herr Bebel, the leader of the Socialists in the Reichstag, denounced the reports that the Socialists would proclaim a political general strike in case of war, and declared that such tactics would be nonsensical. The opposition of German Socialists to such methods was well known, he said.

Herr Bebel added that the Socialists would support a judicious colonial policy and demand for Germany full equality in the commerce and industrial development of Morocco, but he believed that it would be criminal and frivolous to engage in war on account of Morocco.

20,000 HOMELESS BY ETNA'S ERUPTION

DISCHARGE STILL INCREASES

CATANIA, Sept. 14.—The river of lava from Mount Etna is still advancing, sweeping all before it. Many thousands of persons have been driven from their homes.

Hoping to arrest the advance of the flaming lava, the peasants erect before their vineyards and humble homes crosses of sticks and place on top of them pictures of the Madonna and the Saints. Crowds of peasants gather to kneel and beat their breasts, calling for mercy, and declaring that this must be a punishment for their sins.

Mgr. Arista, Bishop of Acireale, has gone to the front to encourage the faithful, conduct services, lead the processions, and impart a benediction to the people.

The house of Guiseppe Rampolla, a relative of Cardinal Rampolla, has been overwhelmed by the lava, which will, it is expected, soon enter the Alcantara River. Three thousand years ago the lava from Etna swept into the same river, the bed of which is now sixty feet deep.

The entire crest of Etna has been changed by the present disturbance, ragged elevations having appeared, which look like the teeth of an immense saw.

The 20,000 inhabitants of Castiglione and Francavilla turned their backs on their homes to-day, fleeing with their portable property, farm animals, and household pets, before the advancing flood of lava. Both towns are threatened with destruction.

The discharge from the craters and new fissures increases in volume. The main stream, pouring down the northeastern side of the volcano, has made its way sluggishly over the foothills, toward the base, crossed the railway, and invaded the Valley of the Alcantara. To-day the front, fifty feet high and a third of a mile wide, broke over a long declivity and, gathering velocity, forced the peasant dwellers in its path to make a hurried retreat. It spread through and burned the orange and lemon groves and, engulfing the many springs in the neighborhood, cut off the water supply of several villages.

Many pathetic incidents have resulted from the present visitation. A young peasant who recently returned from America had invested his small savings in a vineyard. This was destroyed, and when he saw the last vine gone he threw himself on the ground, determined to die by the flames. Carabineers rescued him by force.

CABLE AGREEMENT NEAR.

T. F. Clark Says Companies' British Character Will Not Be Affected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The protracted negotiations between the Western Union, Anglo-American, and Direct United States Cable companies have now reached the stage of a conditional agreement, which will be considered at a meeting convened for Sept. 29.

Although objections are raised in some quarters to what one paper calls "the great cable combine by means of which all the Atlantic lines will come under American control, so that in future communications between Great Britain and Canada must pass over American wires," little doubt is entertained that the agreement will be ratified at the forthcoming meeting.

Thomas F. Clark, Vice President of the Western Union Company, to-day issued a statement to the effect that the agreement does not in any way affect the British character of the Anglo-American and Direct Companies.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PANAMA, Sept. 14.—President Arosemena issued a decree yesterday summoning the Assembly in extraordinary session. No reason was given for this act, but it is rumored that the chief purpose is to permit an amendment of the laws which conflict with certain agreements made by the republic with the American Government of the Canal Zone. The move will necessarily increase the already large treasury deficit.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The jewelry which belonged to Belle Elmore, the American actress for whose murder her husband, Dr. Crippen, was hanged, was disposed of at auction to-day. It brought about $800, the best price being $325 for a single stone brilliant ring. The "flaming sun" brooch which figured in the trial of Crippen brought $100.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 14.—Queen Wilhelmina has abandoned her intention to open the States General on Sept 19 in person, in consequence of the determination of the Socialists to make a monster demonstration in favor of universal suffrage in the streets simultaneously with the passage of the royal procession.

QUAYAQUIL, Sept. 14.—The new Cabinet was organized to-day. The Minister of Foreign Affairs is Julio Arias.

sions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, U. S. A.

"A tract of over sixty acres has been bought recently outside Cheng-Tu, near the south gate. Temporary buildings have already been erected. Colleges and teachers' residences have been started and permanent administration, library, convocation, science, engineering and medical buildings have been planned. If the present revolt is anything like the last revolt of 1895, these University buildings will probably be destroyed.

"We are naturally solicitous regarding the fate of our missionaries. They are practically bottled up in the city. We understand that there are several small English and German gunboats in the gorges of the upper Yangtse. How near they are to Cheng-Tu and how able they would be to protect the missionaries at our half-built university we do not know."

List of Cheng-Tu Missionaries.

While awaiting further advices from the scene of the uprising, the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions has prepared a list of the Protestant missionaries in Cheng-Tu, who are the only Chinese missionaries in immediate danger so far as is known. Here is the list:

METHODIST EPISCOPAL BOARD.—The Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Beech from Elizabeth, N. J.; Dr. and Mrs. Claude W. Freeman from Burlington, Ont.; the Rev. and Mrs. George B. Neumann from New Britain, Conn.; the Rev. and Mrs. Elrick Williams from Urbana, Ill., and the Rev. and Mrs. James M. Yard from Nichols, Conn.

WOMAN'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY—Miss Clara J. Collier from Chester, Vt.; Miss Georgia E. Day from Keosauqua, Iowa; Miss Anna L. Golisch from Afton, Iowa; Miss Ruth B. Smith from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Miss Winifred L. Stout from Hurley, S. D.

CHINA INLAND MISSION—Mr. and Mrs. Findlay Andrew and Mr. and Mrs. A. Grainger.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND MISSIONARY SOCIETY—The Rev. James R. Stewart.

CANADIAN METHODIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY—The Rev. and Mrs. F. E. L. Abrey, Miss May Austin, M. D., the Rev. T. W. Bateman, P. M. Bayne, Miss M. E. Brimston, the Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Cascallen, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Crutcher, the Rev. A. J. Elson, Miss L. H. Hambly, George G. Harris, J. W. A. Henderson, the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Johns, the Rev. Gordon R. Jones, Miss L. A. Ker, D. S. Kern, the Rev. and Mrs. O. L. Kilborn, Miss Lottie Lawson, Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Lindsay, Miss D. MacNaughton, Dr. F. D. McKinley, the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Mortimore, the Rev. and Mrs. James Neave, Miss Lucy Norman, Miss Lary L. Perkins, the Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Robertson, the Rev. Walter Small, Miss Smith, Dr. W. J. Sheridan, the Rev. Dr. J. L. Stewart, R. E. S. Taylor, Dr. J. E. Thompson, Miss C. Wellwood, and S. P. Westaway.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY—The Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Ferguson and F. S. Doane.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION—C. D. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Service, and Dr. and Mrs. William Wilson.

In a description of the revolted district which he recently sent to the Methodist Board, Bishop J. W. Bashford of Shanghai said that the district is one of the most densely populated portions of the globe. Within a radius of about fifteen miles from the capital city are fifteen walled cities, and between these are a large number of towns and market places. The population within this radius is estimated at 5,000,000.

The Cheng-Tu plain is irrigated in all directions by water distributed at Kuanhsien through innumerable channels, scientifically organized by a system of dikes, sluices, culverts, and viaducts. Little's "Geography of the Far East" says that the Cheng-Tu plain is the most densely populated spot on earth, save the county in which London is located.

Cheng-Tu, the capital of the Province of Szechwan, is an ancient city with a great history. The modern city, which is surrounded by a wall about sixteen miles in circumference, is little more than an aggregation of streets, with a large Manchu city at the western end. The Manchu people are more vigorous than their Chinese neighbors. Cheng-Tu is one of the wealthiest of Chinese cities, and supports a population of about 350,000.

NOMINATIONS MADE FOR CANADIAN POLLS

Contests in 220 Constituencies on Sept. 21 to Decide Reciprocity Issue.

A MEMBER ALREADY ELECTED

Laurier and Aids Out for Two Seats—Both Parties Have a Strong List of Candidates.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 14.—One member has already been elected to Canada's twelfth Parliament. He is W. M. German, K. C., of Welland, Ont. Mr. German has always been a stanch Liberal and follower of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but refused to line up with the rest of the party in favor of American reciprocity.

Two other prominent party men who adopted the same attitude—Lloyd Harris of Brantford, Ont., and Clifford Sifton, former Minister of the Interior—were not renominated, and will not be found in the new House.

In all the remaining 220 constituencies contests have been assured by the official nominations, which took place to-day. The nominations, which definitely fix the party lines for the election to be held a week from to-day, produced no surprises. A great majority of those who had seats in the old Parliament entered the field again to-day, Mr. Sifton being the most notable of the few who are retiring.

All the members of the Laurier Government have been renominated, some of them in more than one riding. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, for example, is running in his old riding of Quebec East and also in the county of Soulanges, the latter being one of the few French Conservative seats in the last Parliament. Rodolphe E. Lemieux, late Postmaster General and now Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has been renominated in Gaspe and nominated also in Rouville, the county which his predecessor in office, L. P. Brodeur, represented. Dr. H. S. Beland, the new Postmaster General, has been renominated in Beauce and nominated also in Montmagny. On the Conservative side there is only one of these double nominations, that of Rodolphe Forget, a Montreal millionaire, who is running in Charlevoix and Montmorency. He sat for Charlevoix in the last House. In the Yukon district and in the remote Quebec ridings of Gaspe and Chicoutinmi-Saguenay polling will not take place next week, the law providing that elections in these comparatively inaccessible constituencies may be deferred.

The announcement was also made today from Port Arthur that the election in Thunder Bay and Rainy River, the extreme Northwestern Ontario riding, has been postponed. The Conservatives had counted upon a gain in this riding, but can hardly hope to carry it in what will practically be a by-election. It will not affect the general result.

Both parties go into the campaign with an unusually strong list of candidates having regard to local conditions in the ridings. Reciprocity has brought to the front the most influential farmers in the country, and an imposing array of manufacturers in the towns and cities. Political prophets seem to agree that next week's election will be close, with a majority not exceeding twenty either way.

The battle, which has hitherto been largely directed from party headquarters in Ottawa, to-day became the business of individual constituencies. Most of the stumping has been done.

R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, is closing his campaign in his native province of Nova Scotia, and will get the news on election night probably in his home city of Halifax. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is coming to Ottawa to close his campaign, going from here to Quebec, where he will get the returns.

Parliament had a membership of 221, of whom 132 were supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and 89 opponents. Ontario was represented in the last Parliament by 35 Liberals and 51 Conservatives, Quebec by 53 Liberals and 12 Conservatives, Nova Scotia by 12 Liberals and 6 Conservatives, New Brunswick by 11 Liberals and 2 Conservatives, British Columbia by 2 Liberals and 5 Conservatives, Manitoba by 2 Liberals and 8 Conservatives, Saskatchewan by 9 Liberals and 1 Conservative, Alberta by 4 Liberals and 3 Conservatives, Prince Edward Island by 3 Liberals, and 1 Conservative, and Yukon by 1 Liberal.

At the last election the Liberals polled a vote of 596,533 and the Conservatives 579,571, the vote by Provinces being: Ontario—Liberal, 224,821; Conservative, 236,919; Quebec—Liberal, 158,338; Conservative, 129,634; New Brunswick—Liberal, 40,716; Conservative, 34,945; Nova Scotia—Liberal, 56,588; Conservative, 54,500; Prince Edward Island—Liberal, 14,496; Conservative, 14,286; Manitoba—Liberal, 30,915; Conservative, 37,149; British Columbia—Liberal, 13,412; Conservative, 23,956; Alberta—Liberal, 23,777; Conservative, 22,185, and Saskatchewan—Liberal, 52,415; Conservative, 25,997.

COUNT WARD IN TROUBLE

His Affairs Placed in Hands of the English Official Receiver.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The financial affairs of Count Reginald Henshaw Ward, who, at one time in the rôle of a "copper king," figured prominently in certain moneyed circles of this city, were to-day placed in the hands of the Official Receiver in Bankruptcy. No statement of the assets and liabilities is available as yet.

Mr. Ward explains that extensive declines in copper properties in which he is interested were responsible for his embarrassment, which, he declares, is but temporary. He intends, he says, to continue in business.

Count Ward, who received his title from the late Pope Leo XIII., was born in Boston in 1862, the son of Andrew Henshaw Ward. He is a great-great-grandson of Gen. Artemus Ward of revolutionary fame, and a grand-nephew of David Henshaw, who was Secretary of the Navy.

The Count has received many decorations from European courts. He is a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of Villa Vicosa of Portugal, a Knight Grand Commander of the Order of Carlos III. of Spain, a Grand Officer of the Crown of Rumania, Grand Officer of the Lion and Sun of Persia, and a Grand Officer of the Order of St. Sava of Servia. He is Lord of the Manor of North Scarle in Lincolnshire, and also has a place at Twickenham.

In 1889 Mr. Ward married Miss Edyth Newcomb, daughter of H. Victor Newcomb of this city. She died in 1906.

Mr. Ward, after organizing a banking house here, moved to London in 1898, and became well known as a promoter there.

Two Fall Overcoat arguments for Men Cool weather—and Saks

¶ Cool weather is an argument for Demand. Saks is an argument for Supply. Man cannot regulate the weather, but he can exercise discrimination in the choice of an overcoat. All that we ask is—discrimination. For it is our experience that the man who exercises discrimination in buying clothes is prone to a Saks label as the sparks fly upward.

¶ Meanwhile, what shall it be, for it grows chilly? We have Raglans in smooth or rough tweeds, that are eminently smart in appearance. And it will do no harm to emphasize the perfection of a Saks Raglan shoulder. It is an English innovation, you know, and quite a knotty problem. Very few tailors know how to put the English on it. But we do.

¶ Then there is the natural shoulder coat, a loose, boxy effect, differing little from the conservative, if at all. Just a little more amplitude in its folds.

¶ In fabrics, variety's the word. Certain fabrics, of course, become one style of garment better than another. But diversity applies to fabrics in all Saks coats equally. And for the man who adheres to wholly conservative effects in style and fabrics, we have the most liberal assortment of blacks and Oxfords, in plain and semi-fancy weaves.

TAFT TO START TOUR ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Will Travel Nearly 13,000 Miles, Visit 24 States, and Make Some 200 Speeches in 46 Days.

HE IS 54 YEARS OLD

President Says Tour Is Not Political, but He Will Probably Be Forced to Defend His Tariff Vetoes.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 14.—President Taft, who is 54 years old to-morrow, will bid farewell to Beverly for the season to-morrow night and go by automobile from Parramatta to Boston. There he will board the special train to begin his forty-six-day tour of the country, reaching to the Pacific Coast and back across the Continent, covering a distance figured in railroad mileage at 12,961 miles, 200 miles longer than the last "swing around" the circle, and one of the most extensive trips ever attempted by a President of the United States.

In the forty-six days he is on the move the President will visit 24 States, stop at 115 cities and towns along the route, and make 200 or more speeches. He is due in Washington Nov. 1.

Mr. Taft has declared that the tour is not political. He will talk about the Canadian Reciprocity bill, the tariff, currency, conservtion, and the peace treaties, but as he has put it, "I am to talk to the people on the issues of the day, not alone the political issues, for there are a great many issues that it is well for the people to consider that do not attract politicians at all. They are the issues that do not figure in the headlines and yet contribute much to the welfare of the people, and it is well for the people to know them. They are issues that come up in the Executive office and in Congress every session. They concern the administration of the Government and its efficiency and its economy, and those matters I hope to discuss with other things."

Nevertheless it is admitted that opportunity for political discussion will not merely be offered, but probably will be thrust upon the President. That he would accept the gage of battle if some "heckler" in his audience threw it on the platform is hardly doubted. That the President's political fortunes may depend to some extent on the outcome of this journey is agreed to by many men close to the Administration.

Two years ago to-morrow the President started from Beverly on his first cross-Continent trip since he had entered the White House. He had been six months in office and the Payne-Aldrich tariff law had been five weeks on the statute books. On that trip he delivered his famous address at Winona, Minn., a defense of that law on which most of the criticism of the Administration's tariff policy has been based. On the list for the present journey the President has set down "the tariff" and "the Tariff Board" as two subjects for set addresses.

His vetoes of the Wool bill, the Cotton bill, and the Farmers' Free List bill have not been set aside for separate speeches, but that they will be dealt with in the two general addresses is highly probable. The tariff may prove after all the leading topic, although that is not the President's plan. Many other subjects will receive consideration, including besides reciprocity, conservation, and the peace treaties, marriage and divorce, the trust problem, financial reform, the Panama Canal, reform in judicial procedure, Alaska, and the Government departments.

The portfolio of speeches already prepared is pretty full. In eighteen of the twenty-four States touched on the journey the President is scheduled to speak. He will utilize the banquet table, the auditorium platform, and the rear end of his private car. In Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Montana, Idaho, California, Oregon, Washington, South Dakota, Minnesota, and Wisconsin he will spend many of his busiest days. They are labeled "Insurgent" by those who keep the political books.

New York, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Illinois, and Pennsylvania will not be slighted, but in those States the President will not have to work so hard. The same political bookkeepers credit them to the "progressive" wing of the Republican Party. Michigan, which has been called "Taft insurgent," will also get much of the President's attention.

Several States through which he will pass have no speaking engagements with Mr. Taft, but wherever his train stops in the daytime he is likely to speak.

The tour begins in Boston to-morrow night. Syracuse, N. Y., is the first stop. Washington will see the wind-up on Nov. 1. In addition to the President, Secretary Charles D. Hilles, Major A. W. Butt, the President's military aid; Dr. Thomas L. Rhoades, the President's physician; two stenographers, three Secret Service men, C. E. Colony, a representative of the Boston & Albany Railroad, which is handling the trip, and nine newspaper men will accompany the President. The train will run special much of the time. It will consist of three Pullman sleepers, a dining car, a baggage car, and a day coach.

To-day was one of the busiest of the President's stay at Beverly. Mr. Taft was at his desk soon after 6 this morning. There was much correspondence to clean up before his departure. The Executive office has been working until after midnight for a week getting things in readiness for the closing on Friday. Acting Secretary Rudolph Forster sent a mass of correspondence out to the cottage to-day, and a relay of stenographers worked at high speed all morning to assist the President in getting his desk cleared up.

At luncheon Mr. Taft had as his guest Max Pam, a Chicago lawyer and a personal friend. In the afternoon Rear Admiral Ching Pih Kwang of the Chinese Navy called to pay his respects to the President.

Later John Barrett, Director General of the Pan-American Union, was called and had a long chat with the President. J. C. Shaffer, editor of The Evening Post of Chicago, also had a chat with the President. Robert Erskine Ely headed a delegation of members of the Economic Club of New York, who came over to Beverly to extend to the President an invitation to attend a dinner of the club during the Winter. The President may attend if a satisfactory date can be arranged.

Mr. Taft late in the afternoon motored over to Haverhill, where he called on ex-Justice of the Supreme Court William H. Moody, an old personal friend and a former Secretary of the Navy and former Attorney General of the United States. Justice Moody has been in poor health for some years, and last year was retired with a pension. A warm personal friendship exists between the President and Justice Moody, and during his Beverly Summers the President has never failed to call on his old friend. He was pleased to find Mr. Moody improving in health and as cheerful as of old.

The President will observe his fifty-fourth birthday to-morrow with a family gathering at Parramatta. When that is over Mr. Taft will motor into Boston and will board the train at the South Station.

The President is coming to Beverly again next Summer. The stay this Summer has been the shortest of his three years here, barely three weeks, but next year he plans to spend from three to four months at the Summer capital, staying well into October.

Mrs. Taft is to spend the month at Beverly, leaving in time to be in Washington when the President returns from his Western trip on the first of November. Miss Helen Taft will be with her mother during the Beverly stay, and will probably do some entertaining during the late season. Robert A. Taft, the President's oldest son, who has been spending the Summer abroad, will return next month to resume his studies at the Harvard Law School. Charlie Taft, the President's youngest son, will resume his studies at the private school of this uncle, Horace D. Taft, at Watertown, Conn., on Monday. Mrs. Thomas K. McK. Laughlin of Pittsburgh, who has spent most of the Summer at her place at Isleboro on the Maine Coast, is coming to Beverly with her family to spend a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Taft.

MUST SALUTE THE FLAG.

Otherwise Audsley Children Cannot Attend Perth Amboy School.

Special to The New York Times.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Sept. 14.—The refusal of Miss Katherine and Douglas Audsley, the children of M. F. Audsley, a British subject in business in this city, to salute the American flag was the subject of official decision to-day. Superintendent of Schools Shull, who sent the Audsley children home after they refused to salute the colors, put the matter up to the State Board of Education, and the State Board has replied that the rule must be obeyed by all children in public schools whenever a Board of Education in New Jersey adopts it as a part of the school routine. As the Perth Amboy board has adopted the rule it would seem that the Audsley children will have to participate in the daily salute if they are to enjoy the benefits of the public schools of the city.

Mr. Audsley gave out a statement to-day, setting forth his side of the case. He said:

"There has been a great fuss over a small matter. If the teacher in charge had consulted the parents at once instead of publishing it broadcast through the school so it was known by outsiders before we were notified the matter could have been settled quietly in a perfectly satisfactory manner to both parties. The whole trouble has grown out of a conversation we had at home some time ago. My daughter Katherine asked me that if I was a subject of the British Empire what nationality was she even if she was born in America, and I told her what I believed to be perfectly true, that as long as I was a British subject my children were also according to British law. Then she asked if she could truthfully salute the flag and at the same time repeat the oath of allegiance. She was told that she was at all times to be absolutely respectful and reverent in her behavior toward the flag, but she could not own allegiance to it. Inquiry at Public School 1, I feel sure, would show that during the two years she was there she never by word or deed showed any disrespect.

"The publishing of this unfortunate incident is making it very hard and uncomfortable for me, and I do not fell that I deserve it. Although it is true that I am a subject of the British Empire, I have never forced it upon any one, and it has not hindered me from being an upright and law abiding citizen of Perth Amboy since I first came here in 1892. In England or wherever the British flag flies all over the empire there are thousands of American citizens engaged in business who enjoy the same rights as a subject, but remain true to their flag and are respected for it."

Mrs. Audsley is said to think that all the trouble is due to personal feeling on the part of a woman teacher who reported the matter. The teacher says she is not even acquainted with Mrs. Audsley. It is also charged by friends of the Audsleys that at different times recently boys garbed as American soldiers have appeared before the home of the Audsleys and that on at least one occasion the police had to be summoned to drive the boys away.

FOLEY IS ATTACKED AS CHARTER FRAMER

Citizens' Union Demands That He Retire from Legislative Cities Committee.

COUNSEL FOR CONTRACTORS

Who Expected New Charter to Favor Them—Foley Says He Will Ignore the Demand.

The Citizens' Union issued an open letter yesterday calling on Assemblyman James A. Foley, who represents the district of Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, to resign as Chairman of the Assembly Committee on the Affairs of Cities, because he is counsel for the Interborough Contractors' Association. Mr. Foley has had a good deal to do with the framing of the proposed New York City Charter, now being considered by the Cities Committee of the two houses in the Legislature.

Mr. Foley said last night at the Hotel Knickerbocker, where the Joint Charter Committee holds forth, that he had no intention of resigning or paying any attention whatever to the demand of the Citizens' Union. He pointed out that it was on his motion that certain sections favoring contractors were cut out of the first draft of the proposed Charter. These provisions greatly curtailed the Controller's auditing powers on claims against the city arising out of contracts. Protests against them were made at the public hearings on the Cullen-Foley Charter bill. After listening to these Mr. Foley, the record shows, announced that the powers of the Controller would be restored. According to every announcement made on behalf of the joint Charter Committee since the public hearings this promise has been kept.

The public announcement on the part of the contractors, referred to in the letter of the Citizens' Union, appeared in the July number of The Interborough Contractor, a publication issued monthly by the Interborough Contractors' Association. The organization is made up of a score or more firms, nearly all doing business with the city. The announcement follows:

> PROPOSED CHANGES IN CITY CHARTER WHICH WILL BE OF MATERIAL BENEFIT TO CONTRACTORS.
> It is understood that the following provisions are to be made and adopted in the new Charter affecting contractors doing work for the city, which will take effect on Sept. 1 next:
> Security deposits on bids to be returned to unsuccessful bidders within five days after award of contract, check of successful bidder to be returned on signing of contract. Where award is delayed for over thirty days, interest is to be paid on deposits at the rate of 2 per cent.
> Interest on deferred payments to be paid where city is unable to meet obligations or delay is caused by its fault.
> On assessment contracts, such as sewers, streets, and the other like public improvements, the retained percentage is reduced from 30 per cent., as at present, to 15 per cent.
> It is proposed to make, as far as possible, the partial and final certificate of the head of a department on contracts let after public bidding binding on the Controller, without audit by him. This is intended to expedite partial and final payments, and prevent delays forming cause for complaint. Instead of, as at present, the Board of Aldermen having the power to change or modify the terms of contracts, it is proposed to place such power with the Board of Estimate. The latter board is also to have the power of extending the time of performance of contracts, as well as the head of department, and the board is also to have the power of remitting penalties.
> As at present, extra work may be done, but not in excess of 5 per cent., but the Board of Estimate may on recommendation of the head of department modify the contract so as to permit extra work in excess of that amount, without public bidding, to be done by the contractor.

According to Mr. Foley and other members of the Joint Charter Committee, the features of the proposed new Charter dealt with in the editorial have all been eliminated by amendments made after the hearings. Mr. Foley himself made this statement:

> The Interborough Contractors' Association, whose members I have represented as an attorney at law for some time, is a small body of about twenty contractors engaged in various private and public contracting work on a comparatively small scale. My connection with them has been purely professional, consisting of the collection of claims and the carrying on of litigation, and has been a matter of general knowledge to the public, announcement even having been made in the trade paper published by the association.
> My duties as Chairman of the Committee on the Affairs of Cities in the preparation of the Charter have been entirely free from any interference with my private relations as an attorney. I had nothing to do with the drafting of the contract sections of the Charter, and they were revised at Albany by the expert representatives of the Corporation Counsel's office, who were charged with the direct duty to protect the city.

Mr. Foley paid a visit to Mayor Gaynor yesterday. He spent an hour or more at the City Hall going over all the changes made in the proposed Charter since the hearings. After Mr. Foley's visit the Mayor said he felt satisfied the Charter was all right. Mr. Foley offered to submit a revised copy of the Charter to Mr. Gaynor, but the Mayor said he did not feel this would be necessary.

SANDWICHETTES BROADWAY.

Six of 'Em—Regarded Tolerantly by the Crowd as a Good Advertisement.

Six suffragettes, members of the Women's Political Union, created a mild sensation along Broadway and the side streets of the Tenderloin last night by parading up and down with sandwich boards advertising the big suffrage meeting to take place next Saturday night in Cooper Union, at which Gov. Shafroth of Colorado, Gov. Hawley of Idaho, and Gov. Carey of Wyoming are to tell how much their States have been benefited by allowing women to vote.

London suffragettes have often worn sandwich boards to advertise their meetings and political theories for several years, but last night was the first time it has been tried in this city. So far as the advertising was concerned, a rather bad hour had been chosen for the promenade, the living sandwiches leaving their headquarters in East Twenty-ninth Street about 8:30 o'clock, just after the audiences had entered the theatres. Nevertheless several thousand of Broadway's evening strollers read the legends on the suffragettes' sandwich boards, followed the unusual file of canvas-harnessed women for a block or two, and indulged in a good-natured joke or two at their expense.

The six feminine sign-board bearers walked through one street after another for about two hours and a half, and in spite of the heavy boards they carried they tired out the reporters, flashlight men, and masculine curiosity seekers who followed them to see what would happen. With the boards advertising their meeting, they marched from their headquarters at 46 East Twenty-ninth Street up Broadway to Times Square and then down to Fourteenth Street by a circuitous route that took in Fourth Avenue. They walked through Fourteenth Street to Sixth Avenue and up that thoroughfare to their headquarters—a distance of between four and five miles.

Next Saturday night's Cooper Union meeting is being arranged entirely by the Women's Political Union, and it is this organization Secretary who got up last night's sandwich board parade. She is Miss Elizabeth Ellsworth Cook—not Miss E. E. Cook, please. In her highest-heeled shoes Miss Cook reaches not quite up to the five-foot mark, and in the wide-brimmed mushroom hat she wore last night she looked so exactly like Mother Goose's "Miss Moffet" that the only wonder was that some spider didn't jump out from one of Broadway's dark side streets and frighten her.

After marshaling her forces in the basement last night, Miss Cook tied all their sandwiches over their backs with catching enthusiasm. The forces consisted of Miss Caroline Lexow, the daughter of the late Senator; Mrs. W. D. Morgan, Miss Elida Bernard, Miss Hattie Lorber, Miss Beatrice Schumm, and Miss Emma Elliott. Miss Cook, like any other veteran General, had further provided herself with what might be called a skirmish line, consisting of Mrs. Olive Pierce, Mrs. William Colt, Miss Mary R. Towle, and Mrs. E. C. B. Fassett. The skirmishers were provided with bags of light literature for distribution along the line of march. As for the six sandwich-board bearers, their boards were inscribed with such legends as "Come and Learn the Truth About Women," "Come to Cooper Union on Saturday, Sept. 16, Admission Free," and "Women Vote in Five States."

All sorts of incongruous characters stopped to watch the six "sandwichettes" during their walk. But no one was heard to say an unpleasant word to them.

"What are they doing?" one belated feminine theatregoer demanded of her escort.

The procession passed a dozen policemen, who all wore broad grins and didn't interfere.

MAINE RESULT UNCERTAIN.

"Wets" Claim a Majority of 134, but "Drys" Show a Lead of 336.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 14.—Returns received at the office of the Secretary of State to-day, with only six towns missing, and these six supplied by returns received in Portland showed:

Majority for repeal, 134.

If the figures received in Portland from the towns of Limestone, Matinicus Isle, and Topsfield, which have been shown to be reversed as compared with those received in Augusta, are allowed, they will show a victory against repeal of 336.

Returns received in Portland indicated a majority against repeal of 409. An official recount at Augusta will probably be necessary to determine the result of the balloting.

Unofficial returns from Town Clerk J. E. McMinnamin of Limestone, a border town in Aroostook County, gave: For repeal, 12; against repeal, 175. The same official reported to the Secretary of State: For repeal, 175; against repeal, 12. At 2 o'clock this morning Mr. McMinnamin said over the telephone that the unofficial figures were correct, and that if he sent the reverse to Augusta it was a mistake.

In Topsfield, another border town, a similar condition exists.

Another town from which records do not agree is Matinicus Isle, which lies thirty miles out to sea, off Rockland. No boat is due from Matinicus until Friday night.

The unofficial returns and those received at the Secretary of State's office are now being compared, with a view of ascertaining if there are any other serious discrepancies, and, if so, to learn which vote is correct.

DOGS AS MOURNERS AT CANINE FUNERAL

LIE IN CONCRETE COFFINS

Mourners Included Many Valuable Dogs on Which Californian Woman Has Spent a Fortune.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—Nearly 100 dogs of high degree yesterday marched in a strange funeral procession from the home of Miss Jennie Crocker, at Burlingame, to pay tribute to Dick Dazzler and Wonderland Duchess, two Boston terriers, valued at $5,000 each, which died a few days ago. The dogs, according to those present at the ceremony, seemed to feel the importance of the affair and acted as though they were really grieved over the loss of their companions.

Among the dogs in the procession were some of the most valuable in the country, and on them Miss Crocker has spent a fortune. Dick Dazzler and Wonderland Duchess were prize dogs and were buried with the highest honors that could be paid to canines. They were placed in concrete coffins, fashioned in Egyptian style, which took three days to make.

Dick Dazzler died last Saturday, after being exhibited at the San Mateo Kennel Club show and winning all kinds of ribbons. He was stricken with a disease said to have been brought on by overfeeding. When his basket was opened after the return from San Mateo the dog was found dead in it. Wonderland Duchess was unable to appear in the show at all, having been stricken earlier with the same disease. She died several hours after Dick Dazzler.

Miss Crocker has been unsuccessful in the maintenance of her kennels. More than one year ago Endcliffe Tortora and Clancy III., two unrivaled Boston terriers, died within forty-eight hours. The death of twenty other Boston terriers of lesser note occurred shortly after. Endcliffe Tortora, Clancy III., Dick Dazzler, Wonderland Duchess, and Frisco Cinders were a quintet of canine thoroughbreds that classed Miss Crocker as a fancier of the first rank.

A Friendly Suggestion

often puts the wanderer on the right path.

in place of coffee.

¶ Headache, nervousness and other annoying ills, due to coffee drinking, quickly disappear when Postum becomes the regular table beverage instead of coffee.

POSTUM

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

KNOWS HOW

Doctor Had Been Over the Road.

When a doctor, who has been the victim of the coffee habit, cures himself by leaving off coffee and taking Postum he knows something about what he is advising in that line.

A good old doctor in Ohio, who had at one time been the victim of the coffee habit, advised a woman to leave off coffee and take on Postum.

She suffered from indigestion and a weak and irregular heart and general nervous condition. She thought that it would be difficult to stop coffee abruptly.

She says:

"I had considerable hesitancy about making the change. The doctor, however, gave explicit directions that Postum must be boiled long enough to bring out the flavour and food value. His suggestions were carried out and the delicious beverage fascinated me.

"I observed, a short time after starting Postum, a decided change in my nervous system. I could sleep soundly, and my brain was more active. My complexion became clear and rosy, whereas it had been muddy and spotted before; in fact, all of the abnormal symptoms disappeared and I am now feeling perfectly well.

"Another friend was troubled in much the same manner as I, and she has recovered from her heart and stomach trouble by leaving off coffee and using Postum.

"I know of several others who have had much the same experience. It is only necessary that Postum be well boiled and it wins its own way."

SURGEONS IN DANGER BY BLOOD POISONING

Dr. E. H. Quinn First Infected—Then Dr. J. A. Bodine, Who Went to His Aid.

FINGER PRICKS THE CAUSE

Both Doctors Had Taken Every Precaution—Stringent Measures Taken to Save Them.

Through an unusual series of accidents Dr. Edward Hubbard Quinn of 108 West Seventy-first Street is dangerously ill of blood poisoning in a sanitarium in this city, and Dr. John Alfred Bodine of 151 West Seventy-second Street, after two operations, is recovering from an attack of the poison at his home. Dr. Bodine, it was said last night, was on the way to recovery, and Dr. Quinn, though still in danger, is slowly gaining ground.

Two weeks ago last Monday Dr. Quinn, who is one of the visiting surgeons of St. John's Hospital in Long Island City, operated upon a charity patient in that institution. The man had an infected leg, and as pus had gathered at the joint amputation was necessary. The day after the operation Dr. Quinn noticed that one of the fingers of his right hand felt sore. As he had worn gloves while performing the operation and taken every precaution, he did not suspect blood poisoning. He thought nothing more of the trouble until a week afterward, when there was no doubt that infection had developed.

His condition grew worse, and on Sunday Dr. Bodine, who was attending him, ordered him to a private sanitarium a few doors from his residence. The poison spread but, fortunately, it localized in the right shoulder. On Sunday morning an operation, which had become imperative, was performed by Dr. Bodine, assisted by Dr. F. C. Keller of 41 West Seventy-first Street. An incision was made and the wound drained. In this case, as in the first operation, the surgeon took every hygenic precaution possible. For a time Dr. Quinn's life hung in the balance, but by Sunday night he showed improvement, and unless unforeseen complications set in it is believed that he will recover.

Dr. Bodine operated on Sunday morning. That night he noticed a painful feeling in a finger of his right hand. It began to swell and the surgeon knew at once that he had received the infection. He probably owes his life to-day to the prompt measures taken. Dr. Keller was called in, and on Monday morning the finger was opened. In spite of this the poison spread, and later in that day a second operation was performed. An incision was made nearly the length of his hand and the poison drained. This checked the infection, and, it is said, it did not spread beyond the arm. It was a narrow escape, however, and all day Monday Dr. Keller had to watch his patient until both were convinced the infection had been stayed

The case is looked upon by medical men as remarkable, for in neither case did the surgeons remember being at any time in contact with the patients. Dr. Quinn traced the cause of his trouble himself. He believes that in performing the operation he pricked his finger through his glove, but that in his concentration on his work he did not notice that he had wounded himself. This must have been precisely what Dr. Bodine did, when operating to save the life of his colleague.

Dr. Bodine is one of the best-known surgeons in the United States. He is a member of the American Medical Association and the Academy of Medicine. He is Professor of Surgery at the Polyclinic Hospital and Consulting Surgeon of St. John's Hospital, Long Island City.

Dr. Quinn is a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York. He is a physician on the staff of the Northwestern Dispensary and surgeon of St. Elizabeth's and St. John's Hospitals, Long Island City.

ROBBERIES TRACED TO NURSE

But Miss Watson Declares All the Trinkets Were Gifts of Patients.

Helen Louise Watson, the trained nurse who was arrested on Wednesday on a charge of shoplifting, seems to have made a practice of stealing from the homes of sick people whom she had been hired to attend, according to the information obtained by the Brooklyn police. She is in Raymond Street Jail, awaiting arraignment in the Court of Special Sessions, and when her case comes up a number of robberies, it is believed, will be charged against her. A lot of wearing apparel, jewelry, and other articles found in her room in Congress Street was identified yesterday by several people who visited Brooklyn Police Headquarters, and who said it had been stolen from them. This property was worth $2,000.

W. B. Devereux, Jr., of 59 East Sixty-fifth Street, Manhattan, had already identified several pieces of jewelry found at Miss Watson's home as property that had belonged to his mother, who died at her residence in Mamaroneck last Sunday. Miss Watson was employed as a nurse by Mrs. Devereux during her last illness. Miss Watson declares that the articles were given to her by Mrs. Devereux.

A woman who said her name was Reid, but who declined to give her address, visited Headquarters and picked out two garments, which, she said, had been taken from the home of her son-in-law, a man named Callanan. A revolver and a gold bracelet were identified by G. F. Moran of 951 Park Place as property that had disappeared from his home. Mr. Moran said that a trained nurse named Watson had been employed by his wife.

The police are trying to find out more about Miss Watson. She says she is an orphan, that she has two sisters living in Chicago, and that she is a regularly graduated trained nurse. She insists that she has been guilty of no wrongdoing, and that all of the trinkets and other articles were given to her by grateful patients.

NUGENT PAPERS RETURNED.

Woman Story of Plot to Consent to Divorce Decree Told in Files of Court.

Papers in the divorce suit brought by Charles Nugent against Sophia Nugent, containing allegations by Mrs. Nugent connecting several lawyers with charges of conspiracy to bring about the divorce sought by her husband, were put back on file in the County Clerk's office yesterday after an absence of two days. The return of the papers was in accordance with an order of Supreme Court Justice Gavegan vacating his order of Tuesday, on which the papers were withdrawn by Lyman E. Warren, counsel for Mrs. Nugent, and it was at Mr. Warren's request that the Justice ordered their return.

"I have been an attorney for forty-two years," said Mr. Warren in an affidavit submitted with the order, "and had I thought that my motive or the action of the court would have been criticised I never should have asked to withdraw the papers."

Mr. Warren, in his affidavit, recited in substance the contents of Mrs. Nugent's petition for alimony of $75 a week and $1,000 allowance for counsel fees through the trial of her husband's action. It is in this petition, now again on file, that Mrs. Nugent includes her charges of conspiracy.

As told in Wednesday's TIMES, she alleges that she was evicted from the Hotel Ansonia after her husband, once a well-known bookmaker, had left her, and that her furniture was sold to satisfy a bill of $850 held against her by the hotel. The sale netted $1,150, and her husband's cousin, Clarence Boyd, advised her to see A. H. Gleason, attorney for W. E. D. Stokes, proprietor of the Ansonia, who, Boyd said, had the balance of $300 for her.

Mrs. Nugent goes on to assert that Gleason directed her to another lawyer, who told her that $1,500 had been delivered to him, and that he would pay her $25 a week if she obeyed his orders.

Mrs. Nugent then told how she had been directed to assist in supplying evidence on which a divorce could be obtained by her husband. This she had done, said Mrs. Nugent, only when she was destitute and compelled to obtain money.

CLUES TO GIRL'S MURDER.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTE, S. C., Sept. 14.—After a lengthy consultation between Solicitor Hall Johnson, Morgan Bradford, Jr., of the Washington Branch of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, and town and county officials, it was announced to-night that the evidence in hand is sufficient to convict more than one person suspected of the murder of Myrtle Hawkins, the young society girl of Hendersonville, whose dead body was found floating face downward in Lake Osceola on Sunday morning. Witnesses are being summoned for the second inquest to-morrow afternoon.

It is believed that George Bradley, a friend of the slain girl, will be able to throw more light on the crime than any one else, and will tell of her whereabouts on Thursday. Bradley is 20 years of age, and before his marriage a few months ago he and Myrtle were sweethearts. They were seen together frequently since his marriage, and on Wednesday were in company on the street.

No arrests have been made, but every person suspected of even knowing about the crime will be watched and arrested if he attempts to leave the town. The officers state that the case will be most sensational. It develops to-night that an auto was seen on the lonely road near Lake Osceolo at 4 o'clock on Thursday morning. The lights of the car were out, and no occupants were seen by passers-by. At daybreak the machine had disappeared. Detectives are working diligently to locate the occupants of the car.

STRIKE LEADERS WON'T ARBITRATE

But the Mediators Have Hope of Agreement Yet with Workers for Ladies' Tailors.

EMPLOYERS WISH TO SETTLE

Organizer Indisposed to Discuss Demands—May Ignore Arbitrary Leaders—Small Shops Accept Scale.

While the employes of about 40 shops out of the 800 involved in the strike of the ladies' tailors and dressmakers were able to fix up their differences yesterday and promised to return to work this morning, it was not held at strike headquarters that these minor victories contributed much toward a total settlement. The yielding employers were for the most part from Brooklyn and the Bronx and upper Manhattan. They were the smallest of the manufacturers. The number of men they took back was less than 200 out of the 8,000 on strike.

Strike leaders feared rather than welcomed these victories. They thought the bosses might let the work from the big shops out to these small shops and so struggle along.

Agents both of the State and National Governments volunteered their services if arbitration should become possible. For the State John J. Bealin of the Board of Arbitration asked each side to name what they would consider a fair settlement and the terms on which they could go together. From the employers Mr. Bealin learned that they were more than willing to arbitrate, and had been willing to do so since last July, when they first considered the grievances of their men.

The attitude of the strikers was not so conciliatory. Sol Rosman, their organizer, boasted that he had rejected all of the proposals of last July because that was a dull season. His idea was that the workmen had done a fine thing in walking out on their employers right at the height of the season and making the issue for the employers as nearly as possible a question between submission and bankruptcy.

With a supposed advantage on account of the accumulating orders, Rosman was not anxious to talk arbitration. He preferred to let the employers take all the initiative in seeking peace.

Charles H. Winslow, an investigator of the Department of Commerce and Labor, visited a conference of the employers held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at 366 Fifth Avenue. He made a plea for arbitration. Secretary Bartholomew gave Mr. Winslow the office files for July and August to show that six different attempts had been made by the employers to bring their workmen together on a basis of arbitration. He outlined the manner in which the strike organizers had delayed matters, refusing to give any answer, and had finally precipitated a strike, after serving a set of demands upon the employers, and giving them no opportunity for consideration.

When Mr. Winslow had looked over the correspondence and had heard the stories of individual employers, he was much surprised. "Well," he remarked, "this is a condition I have never before witnessed in all my experience with strikes."

When a TIMES reporter attempted to ask Strike Leader Rosman how he regarded what Mr. Winslow had said, the organizer sent word out from his office that he couldn't bother about answering questions. When finally induced to appear, he said rather shortly that he didn't care about arbitration, because he thought waiting for the bosses to come to terms would do as well.

For the employers Secretary Bartholomew made this statement upon the adjournment of their conference at 9 P. M.:

"The whole history of our society commits us to the plan of arbitration. We thrashed this whole matter over again to-day, and were as firm as ever upon the grounds already taken. But six offers to arbitrate have been rejected under conditions which have been embarassing and humiliating, and these considerations make it difficult to make another offer at this time.

"An offer from the union or through the good offices of a third party, [illegible] find our members anxious and willing to receive it. We realize what has occurred through the fact that the workmen waited until their employers had put their scissors into thousands of dollars' worth of cloth, and then left their benches. We are hoping that either the Department of Commerce and Labor or the State Board of Arbitration will bring about a peaceable adjustment."

A conference late last night between Meyer London, the lawyer for the strikers; John A. Dyche, representing the International organization with which the dressmakers are affiliated, and Mr. Bealin of the State Board of Arbitration, made progress toward the opening of negotiations looking toward an early settlement. They drew up a plan whereby strikers favoring arbitration and employers who are willing to enter into such a plan would be enabled to proceed without waiting for those opposed to it.

It was said that the members of Branch B of the Merchants' Society, composed of the Fifth Avenue shops, would be unanimous for the plan, and that most of their employes would favor it regardless of the views of radical strike leaders and employes of Harlem and Brooklyn shops.

CHARLES WHITE A SUICIDE.

Man Who Shot Himself in Richmond Registered from This City.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 14.—The body of the man who committed suicide in Reservoir Park last night by shooting himself with a pistol was to-night identified by a clerk of the Lexington Hotel of Richmond as a patron who registered as "Charles White, New York City."

The man destroyed everything that would lead to his identification, there being no papers on his person. He wore a plain ring on his little finger, on the inside of which was inscribed "January," and part of the date "19—" was visible. He wore a No. 14 collar, No. 7½ shoes, and had a black suit made by Henry Oppenheimer, a Baltimore tailor. There was an old scar over the man's left eye, and two old wounds were found on his breast evidently bullet wounds. The suicide was about 45 years of age, weighed 140 pounds, and had black hair, tinged with gray, and a reddish mustache.

Efforts will be made to find any New York relatives of the dead man.

FOUR HURT IN AUTO WRECK.

Two Women Expected to Die of Injuries Received When Car Hits Tree.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Two women received fatal injuries and two others were seriously hurt to-night when a six-cylinder touring car crashed into a tree on the Hyde Park Road while the car was running at the rate of thirty miles an hour.

The injured women are Mrs. George Van Wagenen of Pleasant Valley and Mrs. James Moran of this city, both of whom will probably die, and Mrs. Philip Winters and Mrs. Frank Seaman of this city, who will probably recover.

Others in the car and who were hurt were George Van Wagenen of Pleasant Valley, owner of the car, and Frank Seaman of this city.

According to Van Wagenen, the wreck was caused by another auto forcing his machine into the tree.

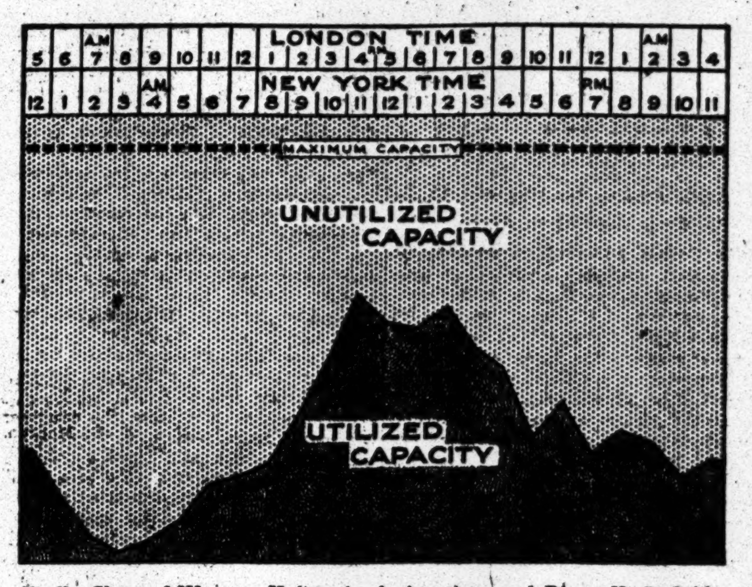
Trans-Atlantic Cable Business



Traffic Chart of Western Union, Anglo-American and Direct U. S. Cable Business, Showing Capacity of the Cables and the Proportion Now Utilised.

Proposed Modification of Existing Arrangements

A provisional modification of an arrangement which has existed for many years has been reached between the Western Union Telegraph Company, The Anglo-American Cable Company and the Direct U. S. Cable Company, under which the cable systems of these companies now worked exclusively in business connection with each other, but operated and maintained separately, will be operated in direct physical connection with each other and with the Western Union land system.

Two objects are to be attained by this arrangement:

First, more efficient and economical operation.

Second, the introduction of new forms of service to the advantage of the public.

The Trans-Atlantic Cable Situation and Competition

The Mackay group of seven cables, including the German cables, owned by or worked in physical connection with the telegraph lines of that company form one system.

The French cables comprise an independent system, using both the Western Union and the Mackay land lines for their United States connection.

In competition with these is the Western Union group of cables, eight in all, owned by three separate companies, two of which are British companies owning five of the eight cables.

Two only of the British owned cables terminate in the United States and all of them are entirely dependent on the Western Union for their connection with any telegraph system, or for their reaching any centre of business, and are now worked exclusively, so far as business is concerned, with the Western Union.

Efficiency Increased, Waste Prevented

The proposed arrangement between the Western Union, the Anglo-American and the Direct U. S. companies will bring the eight cables of the three companies under one operating control. The consequent increase in effectiveness and economy will place the Western Union in a position to offer certain advantages in cable service not now enjoyed by the public.

The other way open to enable the Western Union to make such improvements and introduce such new services as it proposes to do, would be to lay new cables. This would seem to be the height of folly. Duplication of the existing trans-Atlantic cable facilities at a cost of many millions, when there are more than ample facilities for all business, would put an unnecessary financial burden upon an already fully burdened business and would probably postpone the reduction of rates or introduction of new services.

Limited Business Hours and Idle Facilities

As at present carried on, the trans-Atlantic cable business is practically all flash service, i. e. instantaneous. Owing to the difference in time, there are only a few business hours of the day common to both sides and during these hours at least 75% of the cable business is done. This is demonstrated by the accompanying chart.

In the interests of international business nothing should be done to interfere in any way with the so-called flash or instantaneous service, and the lines should be kept clear to accommodate such messages during the few business hours common to both countries; but to continue to confine the cables to this class of service, as at present, will utilise only about 25% of the existing capacity of millions of property and places on that limited service all the capital, maintenance and operating charges.

The limited time and the character of the business, if best results are to be obtained, demand direct cable circuits between principal centres of the two sides of the Atlantic, as well as special circuits devoted to special business.

Efficient Service Requires Sufficient Facilities

To meet these requirements it is essential not only that there be at all times sufficient cable facilities, under one control, but that they should be operated interchangeably with each other and in close physical connection with land lines as one system. Ample spare facilities are necessary to provide against the very frequent cable interruptions.

Neither the Western Union nor any one of the companies of the Western Union group has, independently of the others, facilities enough to handle the business which at times any one company might be called upon to take care of, because of some particular rush of business, or because of some cable interruption. Nor could any one company furnish all the direct circuits necessary for efficient service, although the combined facilities of these companies are ample if they could be used supplementary to each other and interchangeably.

As it is, each company operates its own cables through separate and distinct offices and under separate and distinct management. All interchange of business is by actual transfer of the business from one company to the other, with the consequent delay and interruption of a service in which seconds are valuable.

Daily and Week-end Cable Letters

So soon as the proposed arrangement goes into effect, the Western Union purposes, with the consent of the British Post Office Department, to introduce at least two new features or services in addition to the proposed deferred rate—the

DAILY CABLE LETTER and the
WEEK-END CABLE LETTER

at a very low rate for cable service only. This will enable the public to save the six to eight days consumed in the trans-Atlantic passage of mails.

Monopoly of Cable Business Impossible

There is no cable monopoly possible. The three systems—the Western Union, the French and the Mackay—will continue to exist.

The Mackay Companies is a holding organization with no physical property, but exercising through stock ownership, lease or contract, operating control of various companies owning land lines and cables which make up the Mackay System. Through this control all the various properties are operated as one system to great advantage in service over what could be given by these same companies if operated separately.

The French cables form another system.

The Western Union System, under the proposed arrangement for one operating control over the present segregated units, will be enabled to make two distinct advances in the trans-Atlantic cable business:

1—BETTER SERVICE. This will be insured by more efficient and economical working resulting from single direction over the operations of both cables and land lines.

2—PUBLIC ADVANTAGES. The greater part of the cable capacity has been and is now unutilized. It will continue to lie dormant and unutilized under existing conditions and traditions. The Western Union purposes to make these wasted facilities useful to the public by means of new kinds of cable service.

In addition, the Western Union intends to nationalize its land lines by opening them to all trans-Atlantic cable companies.

If men were as particular about the cut of their shirt as they are about the cut of their suit, we should sell even more shirts than we do.

NO CHURCH FLAW IN EAMES WEDDING

Her Previous Marriage and That of Gorgoza Not Recognized Under Papal Law.

EXPLANATION SENT HERE

On Behalf of Archbishop of Paris—Singers Due To-morrow on the Lorraine.

The Rev. Thomas J. Campbell, editor of the Catholic journal America, wrote to Archbishop Anelte of Paris some time ago asking for a statement of the conditions under which the marriage of Mme. Emma Eames and Emilio de Gorgoza was performed. The Archbishop was not in Paris at the time, but on Aug. 28 the reply was received. It was published in America on Sept. 9 and indicates that an inquiry will be made into the marriage as it stands. This was the answer:

> In reply to the letter which you addressed to Monseigneur, the Archbishop, during his absence, on the subject of the Gorgoza-Eames marriage, I can tell you that Mme. Eames was free according to canon law She had not been baptized and had been married to an unbaptized person. In becoming a Catholic she availed herself of the Pauline privilege procuring a dispensation from interpellation, granted to her by the Holy Office June 28, 1911. As regards M. de Gorgoza, I was under the impression that he was a single man. Your letter has reawakened my attention. The priest who blessed the marriage informed me that M. de Gorgoza had indeed contracted a previous marriage, but a purely civil one, and that he had regarded it as null. I have ordered a new inquiry in the matter. Accept, Reverend Father, the expression of my religious respect.
> E. DESCHAMPS, (Official.)

Mme. Eames and Mr. de Gorgoza are due to arrive here to-morrow on the Lorraine. It has been stated several times by those who were of the same faith in which the two were recently united that the Church recognized no former marriage in either case, that they were both married on this occasion for the first time, so far as the Catholic Church was concerned.

"The Pauline privilege is a concession promulgated by Saint Paul," said a Catholic clergyman yesterday, "and allows under certain conditions the dissolution of marriage contracted by two unbaptized persons. The conditions are, first, that one of the persons becomes a Christian and the other does not; second, that the person remaining unbaptized leaves the company of the baptized person and refuses to live with him or her.

"Even if these two conditions exist, the baptized person cannot contract a second marriage without 'interpellating' the person remaining in unbelief. This interpellation is a formal and judicial act by which the baptized person asks for a declaration from the person remaining in unbelief if he or she wishes to become a Christian, and if not, if he or she is willing to continue married, but without any insult to the Creator.

"For just reasons the Holy See can dispense with this interpellation. When the dispensation is granted the Christian can validly contract a second marriage, and the previous marriage becomes null and void.

"A civil marriage is null and void among Catholics from the beginning, because the Church has laid down certain conditions as absolutely essential for the validity of the sacramental character of matrimony. One of these is that the marriage be performed by a priest. In the case of the Pauline privilege the Church does not grant a divorce. It is merely the annulment of a marriage contracted outside the pale of Christianity."

Mme. Emma Eames was married to Julian Story, the artist, in 1891. In 1907 she received a decree of divorce. Her action was not contested, and all the papers were sealed except the decree by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins, which provided that "it shall be lawful for the said Emma Eames Story to marry again as though the said Julian Story were dead, but it shall not be lawful for the said Julian Story to marry again until the said Emma Eames shall be actually dead."

Nevertheless, Julian Story married Mrs. Elaine Bohlen in July, 1909. She had obtained a divorce on her own account a short time before. Emilio de Gorgoza, the present husband of Emma Eames, is a baritone who has made frequent concert tours with her. He was married to Elsa Neumann in 1896. In March, 1909, she sued for a divorce, naming Mme. Eames as a "psychic co-respondent." However, she dropped her suit, and later de Gorgoza obtained a divorce in France. It has been said that Mme. Eames paid a large sum for this divorce.

INSPECTOR TITUS HAS A FIRE.

Home Wrecked and His Wife and Mother Forced to Flee.

The apartments of Police Inspector George F. Titus on the ninth floor of the Abbotsford Apartments, West End Avenue and Eightieth Street, were wrecked yesterday by fire. Thirty families in the house were driven out, many of them women, and a majority of these in kimonos, nightdresses, or bathrobes. They hurried down in the elevators. No one was hurt, but about $15,000 damage was done.

The Inspector, who lives with his wife and mother, was in his sitting room when a window awning in an adjoining room took fire. Hearing a cracking noise he rushed into the room and found the curtains blazing. Policemen Walsh and Haberman saw the fire and sent in a fire alarm. Then they ran into the building, and, getting to his rooms, took his wife and mother to the street while the Inspector unreeled the hoselines, but the standpipes were empty. When the firemen arrived it took an hour to put out the fire.

At the first alarm of fire the women rushed into the corridors. There are three elevators, and the negro attendants carried them down as fast as they could run the cars, while the water poured down the shaft. Bedraggled and uncomfortable they stood in the lower corridors while the firemen worked above. Proprietor Lamb made every one as comfortable as possible until the excitement subsided. Inspector Titus said afterward:

"If the standpipes had been working I'd have extinguished the blaze myself. I got the hose down and did all I could, but there was no water."

When the firemen were running the hoselines into the house about fifty of the Chinese sailors of the cruiser Hai Chi passed. They shouted encouragement to the firemen, and watched the whole performance to the end.

VAN HORN SUED FOR $100,000

His Wife Alleges He Has Not Lived Up to Their Separation Agreement.

Mrs. Eudora S. Van Horn started suit for $100,000 yesterday against her husband, Frank M. Van Horn of A. B. Leach & Co., bankers, of 149 Broadway, because of his alleged failure to abide by the terms of a separation agreement and pay her approximately $600 a month for the support of herself and their three sons, of whom the eldest is now 19 years old. Recently, Mrs. Van Horn alleges, her husband has paid her only about $275 a month.

The couple were married in March, 1891, according to Mrs. Van Horn's complaint, and lived together until April, 1908, when she says Van Horn deserted her. She started a suit for separation, which is still pending, and says that Van Horn admitted her allegations were substantially true. He pleaded, however, that his mental and physical powers were so weakened that he had lost control of himself and that he had been assured by physicians that he could not recover.

He represented, she declares, that, were she to continue her suit, his business would be ruined and he would be unable to provide for her at all. Instead he suggested that they sign an agreement to live apart, and she did so, she says, upon his agreeing to give her $2,500 a year for her own support, one-fifth of his income in excess of $10,000, the amount of his drawing account with A. B. Leach & Co.; $400 a year for each child until they reached the age of 21, and one-thirtieth of his income in excess of $10,000 for the education of the children.

Mrs. Van Horn says that her husband estimated these combined payments to be equivalent to about $600 a month, and this she agreed to accept.

MORE WIRE MEN FINED.

Three Connected with Trust Change Their Pleas of Not Guilty.

On the plea of nolo contendere three other men indicted in connection with the Wire Trust suit appeared before Judge Hough in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court to plead. The first was Charles F. Brooker, Republican National Committeeman from Connecticut, who was indicted as President of the Coe Brass Manufacturing Company and Vice President of the Ansonia Brass and Copper Company. Two counts had been found against him, one in connection with the Bare Copper Wire Association and the other with the Weatherproof and Magnet Wire Association. He was fined $1,000 on the first count and $100 on the second.

Edward S. Perot and George J. Jackson, the President and the Secretary of the National Conduit Cable Company, also appeared to withdraw their former pleas of not guilty. They were connected with four pools, the Bare Copper Wire Association, the Telephone Cable Association, the Underground Power Cable Association, and the Weatherproof and Magnet Wire Association. Consequently each was fined $1,300.

Only six of the eighty-three persons named in the indictments of June 29 have not yet entered the nolo contendere plea.

More Free Loans This Year.

At a meeting yesterday of Directors of the Hebrew Free Loan Association, 108 Second Avenue, President Julius J. Dukas reported that in August the association loaned $47,065 to 1,687 persons. This, he said, was an increase of more than $11,000 over a year ago, and that since Jan. 1 the association has loaned about $35,000 more than in the same period last year notwithstanding that during most of this year the association was compelled to reduce to $100 the usual $200 maximum to any one person.

'LETTERS' BY CABLE IS THE PLAN NOW

Western Union to Absorb Anglo-American and Direct Companies and Give New Service.

DEAL HAS BEEN COMPLETED

Approval by English Stockholders of All That Is to be Done—Negotiations On to Change Rates.

Negotiations between the Western Union Telegraph Company on the one hand and the Anglo-American and Direct United States Cable Company on the other, for the lease of the English properties to the Western Union, which were begun last Winter, have been practically concluded, it was announced at the Western Union offices yesterday. Meetings of the stockholders of the English companies have been called for Sept. 29 to approve the leases.

President Vail of the Western Union declined yesterday to discuss the terms of the leases on the ground that they could not be made public until they had been submitted to the stockholders. One of the consequences of the Western Union's operation of these cable lines will be the application of the deferred message system at cheaper rates, on the order of day and night "letters."

One of the obstacles in the way, the International Telegraph Convention agreements, will soon be removed, it is expected, and President Vail said yesterday that he understood that the Postmaster General of Great Britain was now negotiating with the signatories of the convention for that purpose. The land telegraph lines in England which handle the business of the cable companies on the other side are a branch of the Post Office Department of Great Britain.

The Western Union has had contracts for many years past with the English companies, which still have nearly ten years to run. President Vail, in a statement issued yesterday, explained the reasons for the lease, and the special cable facilities which will be inaugurated. He said:

"As at present carried on, the transatlantic cable business is practically all 'flash' service, that is, instantaneous. Owing to the difference in time, there are only a few business hours of the day common to both sides, and during these hours at least 75 per cent. of the cable business is done. In the interest of international business nothing should be done to interfere in any way with the so-called flash or instantaneous service, and the lines should be kept clear to accommodate such messages during the few business hours common to both countries; but to continue to confine the cables to this class of service, as at present, will utilize only about 25 per cent. of the existing capacity of millions of property and places on that limited service all the capital, maintenance, and operating charges. The limited time and the character of the business, if best results are to be obtained, demand direct cable service between principal centres of the two sides of the Atlantic, as well as special circuits devoted to special business.

"To meet these requirements it is essential not only that there be at all times sufficient cable facilities, under one control, but that they should be operated interchangeably with each other and in close physical connection with land lines as one system. Neither the Western Union nor any one of the companies of the Western Union group has, independently of the others, facilities enough to handle the business which at times any one company might be called upon to take care of.

"So soon as the proposed arrangements go into effect the Western Union proposes, with the consent of the British Post Office Department, to introduce at least two new features or services in addition to the proposed deferred rate. These will be the 'daily cable letter' and the 'week-end cable letter,' which will be sent at a very low rate for cable service only. This will enable the public to save the six to eight days consumed in the transatlantic passage of mail.

"There is no cable monopoly possible. The three systems—the Western Union, the French, and the Mackay—will continue to exist. Public advantages will be the greater and better utilization of the present cable facilities, which would continue to lie dormant and unutilized under existing conditions. The Western Union proposes to make these wasted facilities useful to the public by means of new kinds of cable services.

"In addition the Western Union intends to nationalize its land lines by opening them to all transatlantic cable companies."

The proposed arrangement, President Vail said, will bring eight cables under one operating control, which is the only way, he explained, by which the Western Union could put into effect the economies and improvements contemplated.

BENJAMIN HARPER A SUICIDE.

Ex-Auditor of War Department Shoots Himself at Fort Wayne.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 14.—Just as he and his wife were ready to leave here for Chicago to make their home, Benjamin Harper, for several years auditor of the War Department, committed suicide to-day by shooting. Ill-health is given as the cause.

Harper resigned his position with the War Department last April, and after practicing law here decided to remove to Chicago. The household goods were packed, and just before he was to start for the railroad station Harper went to the barn and shot himself. Mrs. Harper found the body when she became worried over his long absence.

Harper, who was 45 years old, was appointed to the War Department in 1905. He leaves a widow, who before her marriage was Miss Laura Gorham of Chicago.

Harry Mountford Sues the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association.

Harry Mountford, International Secretary of the White Rats Actors' Union, has begun suit for $125,000 against the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association, the officers of which are E. F. Albee, Percy Williams, William Hammerstein, and Marcus Loew, and against Sime Silverman, publisher of Variety, for publishing false and damaging statements about him.

Mountford declares that they caused to be published articles reflecting on his management of the funds of his association, questioning the manner in which he had acquired a home on Long Island, and raising a point as to how he had expended $20,000 in two years in a lobby at Albany.

Denying every charge and question, which he alleges they raised, Mountford estimates the damage done to him at $125,000.

Individuality as a Note in Furnishing

IT is often by the smaller and less obviously important pieces that the note of individual significance is given to the furnishing of a room.

It may be a Tea Table in Chippendale's Chinese manner, a Writing Table of Hepplewhite's delicately inlaid Satinwood or a Tall Clock with its Case of English Marquetry of the 17th Century. Of such as these a plentiful selection is always to be found among our faithful Reproductions of Old-World furnishings.

BIG FROST DAMAGE IN NEW ENGLAND

Crops, Especially Tobacco, Injured to Extent of Over $500,000 by Cold Snap.

TOBACCO LOSS $400,000

Follows Upon Damage of Drought and Rains Which Came Too Late—Damage Also Up-State.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—Damage of more than half a million dollars was done to New England crops, especially tobacco, by a heavy frost during the early hours to-day. With the weather forecaster predicting continued cold weather for to-night, farmers in this section of the country are feeling discouraged. First a disastrous Spring drought, then prolonged rains, too late to benefit their crops, and now unexpected frosts have made this a particularly hard year for the New England farmer.

The tobacco crop in the Connecticut Valley received a severe blow from the frost, growers announcing that the loss on this crop alone in Massachusetts and Connecticut will be, approximately, $400,000.

Cranberry bogs along Cape Cod received the full force of the biting cold, and in many cases the ripe berries were destroyed. Garden truck of all kinds was severely damaged.

There was a heavy frost in the White Mountain region, where the coldest weather known for September was reported.

SUFFIELD, Conn., Sept. 14.—Under the heaviest frost which has visited Suffield for twenty-five years at this time of the year about 800 acres of standing tobacco was completely ruined last night, reports from growers received this morning placing the aggregate loss at between $200,000 and $250,000, with a possibility that it may exceed the latter figure. Twenty-five years ago a heavy frost ruined tobacco then in the fields and it had to be ploughed under. It is probable that the acreage blighted last night will have to be turned back into the ground.

Earlier in the season about 500 acres of tobacco were ruined by hail.

ELLINGTON, Conn., Sept. 14.—Losses on tobacco due to the severe frost of last night, throughout the tobacco-growing sections of this town, Tolland and a part of East Windsor, were estimated to-day by the growers as in the neighborhood of $75,000. Damage to other crops, including corn, was also heavy.

WESTFIELD, Mass., Sept. 14.—Tobacco growers here are of the opinion to-day that last night's frost caused a loss of $150,000 to standing tobacco in Massachusetts. Fully $25,000 worth of tobacco near Westfield was destroyed by the white frost, and at least $15,000 worth in Southwick was ruined.

The harvesting of the tobacco crop in the Connecticut Valley is generally begun during the latter part of August and finished about the 10th of September, but the rains during the past two weeks have made it impossible this year to cut the tobacco at that time. Last night's frost was unusually heavy for this time of year.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 14.—The coldest weather ever known in Central Massachusetts in September, so far as the records show, caused great damage to late crops last night. In some places ice formed on small bodies of water to a thickness of a quarter of an inch. The mercury in Worcester fell to 39½, 5 degrees below the previous low record for September.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Damage to crops and fruit by a heavy frost last night is reported from several counties in this section. In the Wyoming Valley the temperature dropped to 26 degrees. Beans and ensilage corn suffered the most. Grapes were slightly damaged in Seneca County.

ROME, N. Y., Sept. 14.—There was a heavy white frost here last night and the mercury went to 32.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 14.—A heavy frost last night, the first of the season, is believed to have done heavy damage to standing crops.

BELOW FREEZING IN MAINE.

Only 26 at Greenville—Kansas Hot Wave Due Here To-night.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The cold wave continued to-day in the East, with temperatures of 26 degrees at Greenville, Me., and Northfield, Vt., the lowest reported. At many points in New England and the Middle Atlantic States the mercury hovered within a few degrees of the record for September.

A warm wave is in the wake of this abnormal weather, and is expected by the weather experts to spread over the northern and central States east of the Mississippi River by to-morrow night. Meantime the hot wave continued to-day in Kansas and in the Western plains and Gulf States, where almost the hot weather record for that section was scored.

MOTOR SWEEPER IN A HOLE.

Its Weight Crushes Through Pavement and It Smashes Its Axle.

"Jumbo," the first automobile street cleaner installed by Commissioner Edwards, yesterday met with a mishap on its first work day and was put out of commission for a week. The new contrivance weighs several tons. It sprinkles the streets with one part of its machinery and sweeps it with another. It is driven by a motor larger than those on the Fifth Avenue buses, carries a great water tank, and its brushes revolve over as much ground as that usually covered by two horse-drawn sweepers, one following the other and overlapping the work of the first.

Driven by George Bitello of 71 West 100th Street, "Jumbo" was proceeding south from Mount Morris Park on upper Fifth Avenue yesterday. All went well until it reached the north corner of 109th Street. Here its weight proved too much for the pavement. There was a creaking sound, a thunderous crack, and the asphalt gave way.

Bitello was thrown from the seat as the front trucks plunged into a hole five feet long, four feet wide, and three feet deep. As "Jumbo" went down the front axle under the motor snapped. Bitello picked himself up and found he had only minor contusions. He then notified the Street Cleaning Department by telephone.

The Inspectors who hurried to the scene were puzzled what to do. Efforts to haul "Jumbo" out of the hole with the help of several teams of the department mules were fruitless.

"Get a derrick!" jeered some of the bystanders.

But in spite of the most strenuous efforts and plenty of free advice the machine remained over night in the hole and drew large crowds who marveled at its size.

OILED RAGS IN THEATRE FIRE.

Police Smile at Black Hand Story, but Admit Interest in the Blaze.

Alfred Consolo, proprietor of La Felice Theatre, a moving-picture place at 349 East 114th Street, may or may not have been a victim of the Black Hand, but his place was practically destroyed early yesterday morning, and the police declare the fire was certainly suspicious. The Black Hand is said to have demanded money of Consolo, and Consolo is said to have been willing to talk business with them, but when he went to the appointed meeting place there was no one there to treat with him. He went home happy, thinking that perhaps the Black Hand had relented.

Consolo's little theatre, on the ground floor of a three-story brick building, has been well patronized, and he is said to have been making money. On Wednesday night the show drew a big audience—two or three of them—and Consolo was thoroughly content with his prospects, he says.

It was about 2 o'clock yesterday morning when Policeman Beers of the East 104th Street Station saw a reddish glare on the windows from the third floor. The glare was within and Beers knew that it was a fire. He turned in an alarm and then rapped for assistance, and Policeman Edwards from the adjoining post joined him. The policemen broke into the building and found what appeared to be evidence that the fire had started from kerosene-soaked rags. They extended up and down the stairs, and had been lit on the second floor so that the fire would burn both ways.

The blaze had gained much headway when the first of the engines arrived. The place was gutted and the water did much damage, especially on the first floor where Consolo kept his moving-picture machines. The entire loss amounted to about $1,000.

At the East 104th Street Station THE TIMES reporter asked the lieutenant in charge if the fire looked like a Black Hand affair.

"I don't take any stock in that story," he replied.

"Was it suspicious?"

"Yes, it was suspicious, and that's all I know about it," he answered.

No arrests had been made in the case last night, but detectives were at work trying to explain the affair.

BREAKING ROPE KILLS HER.

Child Sees Mother Thrown Off the Roof and Fall Sixty Feet.

Mary Carroll, wife of William Carroll, a carpenter, went to the roof of a five-story tenement at 79 East 119th Street yesterday to hang up her weekly wash. She leaned against a retainnig wall, two feet high, to tug on a rope which was stuck, and as she did so the rope snapped. The shock threw Mrs. Carroll backward over the wall to the pavement of the courtyard, sixty feet below.

Her fall was witnessed by her 5-year-old son, William, who had just brough a basket of wash to the roof. He ran to the edge of the wall and saw his mother strike the court. He told Policeman Cummings that she screamed as she fell. Cummings summoned a Harlem Hospital ambulance, but Mrs. Carroll was dead when Dr. Baker arrived.

THAW TO TRY AGAIN FOR HIS RELEASE

LIBERAL USE OF THAW MONEY

Detective Has Spent $20,000 for Evidence, and Relatives Have Employed Prominent Lawyers.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Harry K. Thaw is planning to make another appeal to the courts for his release from the Matteawan State Hospital. The information was given out to-night by a friend, who said the next court action would be begun in a few weeks.

It is an undenied fact that Norman A. Lees, who has been working for the improvement of conditions in the hospital, and to whose efforts largely the resignation of Drs. Lamb, Baker, Seers, and May is accredited, has been employed by the Thaws.

To bring about these changes at the hospital, Lees has spent something like $20,000 already, and is prepared to spend $50,000 more if necessary. About a year ago Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, mother of Harry Thaw, asked the State to make an investigation of the conditions at the hospital, alleging misconduct of the affairs, lack of discipline, and the giving of improper food to the inmates.

At that time State Superintendent of Prisons Collins and the State Lunacy Commission refused to listen to her appeal, though at one time a Supreme Court Justice appointed William Vanamee, a Commissioner, to take testimony in an investigation. The Attorney General later ruled that the Supreme Court Justice had exceeded his authority, and the investigation was declared off. Determined to carry her point, Mrs. Thaw employed Lees, a New York detective. Lees one night in a New York hotel started a fire from old newspapers on the floor of his room. He was adjudged insane and sent to Matteawan. This was only a ruse, so Lees says now, and was part of a plan to get him inside the hospital for the purpose of obtaining data to make his attack on the hospital. All the things that Lees has done was a part of this scheme, planned and concocted by Mrs. Thaw and Harry Thaw, according to Lees.

Some of the best attorneys in Pittsburgh, New York, and Philadelphia will be, on the Thaw side in the next appeal, among them Frank S. Black, ex-Governor of the State. Thaw has a few more liberties now than he had when Dr. Lamb was Suprintendent of the hospital, but Dr. May, the new Superintendent, says he has no more than the other inmates and no more than he is entitled to have. Under Dr. Lamb there were only two keys to Thaw's room. One was carried by Dr. Lamb or Dr. Baker, the assistant Superintendent, and the other by the supervisor of the ward, Edward Conroy. In the event of both men being out of the hospital Thaw was practically in jail. Now he goes into the yard with the other inmates and is allowed to see callers at certain hours during the day, a privilege he never had before.

Just now Thaw is interested in sending Philip Germond, a released patient, out of the State. Germond is a son of the late Philip Germond, at one time a Methodist Bishop of this State, and his mother now lives at Irvington-on-the-Hudson. Germond was released from the hospital a few weeks ago on Supt. May's statement that he was not crazy but an habitual criminal, and that Matteawan was no place for him. Germond, though a young man, has been in trouble repeatedly since he was 16 years of age. At one time he was incarcerated in an underground jail in Mexico, from which he dug his way out. Justice Morschauser released Germond as there was no place to keep him under the laws of the State. Thaw says Germond is an habitual criminal and will sooner or later get into trouble again. For some reason or other Thaw does not want Germond around and so he gave his personal check to a friend of Germond to-day for $100 with which the friend was to buy Germond a ticket for Colorado. Germond started to-night for Grand Junction.

When Thaw makes this next attempt to secure his release he will find arrayed against him a syndicate of certain New York people, it is said, who will donate liberally to a fund to fight his release from Matteawan.

Sues for Mortgage on the Chelsea.

John R. Drexel began suit yesterday against Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hoadley to foreclose a mortgage on the Chelsea, in West Twenty-third Street. Hoadley gave the mortgage on Dec. 15 last, it is alleged, and failed to pay principal or interest when it fell due on Feb. 15.

2,400 Men's Knitted Silk Ties
At $1.15, Regularly $2, $2.50 & $3

This establishes, we think, a low water-mark for the price of these fashionable and desirable Neckties for men, and at the very beginning of the season at that.

They come to us, brand new, in new Autumn patterns, from probably the largest and best maker of these Ties. Why they do is his business—the pleasant fact remains that men can deck themselves out in this particularly desirable kind of Autumn plumage at $1.15, instead of 85c to $1.85 more.

A dozen handsome styles, each in a variety of good colors and color-combinations. There are plain shades, allover mottled effects in many colors, bias stripes, two and three-toned accordion knitted stripes with under and over-shot colorings, novelty stitches with hobble stripes, and up-and-down panel effects.

A most remarkable offering, and one in which the best choosing is for the man who comes earliest. Main floor

The Shoes are graceful, with the style-characteristics of higher-priced Shoes, and are thoroughly well-made from carefully selected materials by the best makers of women's shoes.

There are now ready twenty-two styles of Women's Boots alone, bearing the Belmode trade-mark, to say nothing of Belmode Slippers in eighteen colors of satin and six of others, at $3 to $5.

More Paris Hats
Join the Remarkable
GIMBEL Display
Of Autumn Millinery

"I think your Hats are wonderful," said a woman enthusiastically, Wednesday. "I have looked in other stores that are famous for their millinery, and not found what I wanted—but here I have hard work deciding on the hat I want most among so many!"

This Autumn Display is so large, so varied in its styles, and marked throughout by such excellent taste, that it has occasioned endless favorable comment. It has been impossible to show all the Paris Hats at one time, so today we make a practically new display that will be of great interest.

The Hat Illustrated Is a Superb Model by Jeanne Lanvan—$125

It is a particular type that is advancing greatly in favor, with its slightly mushroom front, and its graceful lines rolling toward the back. It has a gold-colored satin upper and under-brim, with wide binding of seal fur on edge and oval crown also of seal fur. Trimmed at back with cluster of natural inverted Paradise feathers, caught with natural black Paradise head.

Other Paris Hats are $35 to $175, while the reproductions, by our own milliners, are $15 to $100, and not distinguishable, except for the price, from the foreign models. The Medium-priced Salon affords a choice of several hundred models, copies of French and English Hats, $6.75 to $14.75.

Hat, Muff and Bag Sets

Combination Hat, Muff and Bag sets in the fascinating Oriental designs are being much admired. Some newly arrived original ideas, also a few of our own designs, will be shown for the first time today. French and Medium-priced Salons, Third floor

THE FATE OF MOROCCO.

There is, of course, not a line in the act of Algeciras that would serve as a warrant for the pretensions which the Paris Temps maintains should be set up by France in respect to Morocco. According to this Paris newspaper, in the exercise of her "freedom of action in Morocco" France ought to insist that certain "rights" be guaranteed to her before she hands over to Germany Congo territory as a "compensation." It was specified that France will undertake to represent Morocco abroad, to protect Moroccan citizens abroad; that she must be consulted before treaties are made; that she will not only maintain in Morocco a Commissioner who will have full direction of civil and military affairs concerning both countries, but French councilors who are to assist the Moorish ministers; furthermore, France will guarantee Moorish loans and assure the service of the Moroccan debt.

It must be carefully borne in mind that there is not the slightest evidence that any of these demands have been made in France's reply to the German modifications of the draft of the agreement. They are, so far as now appears, merely a Paris newspaper's idea of what France ought to demand. These demands, if granted, as any one can see, would establish a French protectorate over Morocco, and would reduce the Sultan to the status of a vassal. It may be sheer impudence on the part of the Temps, or it may be a spice of Gallic humor when it is added, in a matter-of-fact way, that Germany would be required to undertake the task of securing assents to this protectorate arrangement from the signatories of the act of Algeciras.

Such a procedure on the part of France would be mere land-grabbing, a method of territorial expansion with which the world is perfectly familiar. It would furnish a parallel, not particularly close as to method, but the same in result to the acquisition of Schleswig and Holstein by Prussia, of Egypt by Great Britain, and of Korea by Japan. It would be a procedure sharply in contrast with our treatment of Cuba. For these reasons nobody will accept the Paris newspaper's programme as a transcript of the French reply sent to Berlin Wednesday night. It is not credible, for thus far the course of action followed by France has been, as the diplomats say, correct—correct in respect to international law and to international morals. She had a right to protest against Germany's course in sending the Panther to Agadir, as Germany has failed to show to the world that there was any substance in her claim that she had rights in Morocco that she must protect. No German interests, no German rights, in Morocco had been menaced by France's deliverance of the Sultan of his peril in Fez or by other French procedures. At any rate, it would be preposterous to pretend that she had any rights there or anywhere in Africa that it was worth while to go to war about, disturbing the peace of the world and inflicting incalculable losses upon herself and upon France.

It is more reasonable to assume that the German demonstration against France in respect to Morocco is only her way of "getting into the game" of partitioning Africa. It is the manifest destiny of Morocco to fall into European hands. The country has great resources which the natives will never develop. Inevitably the natural resources of Morocco will invite foreign development, investment, and settlement. The strangers will have to be protected from the natives, who are exceedingly difficult to get along with. For many reasons France seems to be marked out as the guarantor of peace and tranquillity in Morocco, and unless too strenuous resistance is offered by other European Powers, unless she fails to offer adequate "compensation," it may be expected that some day her protectorate will be extended over the empire. If as a "compensation" for permitting this extension of French territory Germany is willing to accept the vast Congo region mentioned in the negotiations, the slicing up of Africa will already have made very considerable progress. With England in Egypt and in South Africa, with Spain in Northern Morocco, France in Tunis, Algiers, and Southern Morocco, Germany in the Congo and on the East Coast, and Italy reaching out for Tripoli, late comers will be ill-served, for the best of Africa will have been disposed of.

"NOT A SINGLE WRONG THING."

Mayor Gaynor writes to Mr. C. Augustus Haviland of Brooklyn that, in spite of the "falsifying about it," he has spent the Summer correcting and perfecting the Cullen-Foley revision of the Charter, and that "there is not now a single wrong thing about it."

We are not anxious to put the Mayor in the wrong, but he has made it exceedingly difficult for anybody to find him anywhere else in this Charter matter. Take the educational chapter, for instance. Mr. Gaynor has so consistently opposed his judgment to that of such a numerous group of the country's experienced educators, conspicuous among whom are the Presidents of Harvard, Yale, Columbia, and most of the other colleges, the President of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, and practically every authority on the administration of schools by cities, that his "correcting" and "perfecting" of this chapter must have been accompanied by such a conversion of mind and feeling as to be miraculous if it be found that "there is not now a single wrong thing about it."

The small paid school board politically controlled has had its day in this country. It has been proved to be essentially bad and wrong. Mayor Gaynor has stood up for the removal of the civil service safeguards from the positions of superintendents and examiners of the 18,000 teachers who train the Greater City's 700,000 pupils. He believes that a small board that may be filled with Tammany henchmen should hear all charges of incompetency or wrongdoing against any of the thousands of teachers or their officers and decide upon them, and that they should make the officers of the schools their creatures, with absolute powers of appointment and dismissal under a good or bad Mayor. He believes in letting Tammany by this means seek to control the beneficiaries of a $37,000,000 school budget. His statement in the face of all reasoned argument that "there is not a single wrong thing about it" will not serve to change sound public opinion.

SENATOR MARTIN'S VICTORY.

Senator Thomas S. Martin, the new Democratic Leader in the Senate, has just won renomination to the Senate in a Virginia primary by an overwhelming majority. He was opposed by Congressman William A. Jones, a strong man with an excellent record, and was renominated by at least 30,000 votes over the number received by Mr. Jones. Senator Martin is credited with being at the head of the Virginia Democratic organization, and the cry of "machine" was raised by all who spoke against him.

His easy renomination in face of it can only mean that a majority of the Virginia Democrats do not fear such a "machine" as Senator Martin heads, and that they are grateful for his untiring work in their behalf in the Senate, and are unwilling to cut short his career at the moment when he becomes a National character by works, and not by words alone.

TEETH OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Now that the Board of Education has found that three out of five among the 2,000 children of fairly well-to-do parents in one of Manhattan's schools are threatening their mates and each other with all manner of communicable diseases harbored in defective teeth and mouths, Dr. Herbert L. Wheeler, head of the board's committee, declares that it would be wise for the "city to give free dental service to the children."

Would it be wise? A large percentage of the school children need treatment by oculists. Many of them are ill-nourished, more are ill-housed and poorly clad. It might plausibly be argued that with free dentists the 700,000 pupils should have the services of free oculists and opticians, free doctors, free tailors, and free restaurateurs, and that the city should provide better living quarters for them free. Identical reasons might be urged in each case. The evils of poverty and disease are communicable to all the children, they defeat the efforts of the teachers, occasion waste of school funds, and injure the community. Why should not the community provide against them?

Of course, provision should be made, but not in the way the Socialists propose. They would relieve parents of all their responsibilities. The Health Department is amply empowered to notify parents that their children are in a bad way and are sources of infection. If it is not already authorized to compel parents to send their children to the dentists whenever inspection discloses the need, the authority can be given. Most families can afford to attend to such matters at their own expense, and for needy families the public and private charitable institutions are available.

A PRACTICAL ALTRUIST.

The late Miss Carola Woerishoeffer represented, in a high degree, the altruistic spirit so rarely manifested, as it seems, in a commercial era. The history of her short career would be an interesting study of practical ethics, and an important one, too. She was born to wealth, was young, and highly connected in the social world. Yet she chose to be a worker for the good of others, and the practical use to which she applied her uncommon talent for altruistic service is what made her career so remarkable. She did not content herself with the bestowal of alms, or even seek the direction of charitable institutions. On the contrary, she worked in order to learn something at first hand of the pains and burdens of the working people, and she obtained, in the regular way, through civil service examination, an appointment as special Inspector of Labor under the Bureau of Industries and Immigration. Her services in this post of small distinction and much hard work were, we believe, invaluable.

At the time of her death she was investigating the camps and small communities of alien laborers in various parts of the State. She had worked in this way for ten months, when she was killed in an automobile accident, and had expended her own money freely but wisely to relieve destitution and sickness. Beyond the comparatively small salary attached to her office, there was no possibility of reward. Her services were among the lowly, and through them she was not likely to acquire fame. But she found the required outlet for her unusual gifts, and her compensation was that she could feel she was doing good in a practical way. She was, indeed, a practical altruist, and her death is a loss to the community.

PERTH AMBOY'S PROBLEM.

The case of the Audley children and the public schools of Perth Amboy, N. J., is not likely to assume the proportions of an international episode. The Audleys are British, and when the children were born they were duly registered as British subjects. The school laws of New Jersey compel a daily salutation of the flag and a renewal of the oath of allegiance. Why school children should take the oath of allegiance every day, when there is so much arithmetic and geography to be learned, is not quite understandable. But New Jersey's legislators are nothing if not patriotic. The Audleys have no objection to the flag, but they do object to the oath of allegiance.

Still, their children ought to have schooling, and a routine ceremonial is not very important. It seems that the Audley children were forced to go to school by the local truant officer. If their parents are capable of instructing them in the rudiments at home, they might as well be released from the thrall of the Truant Officer. This seems to be an exceptional case. Mr. Audley has a perfect right to retain his British citizenship while working in a foreign country, but it would be making a mountain out of a molehill to exempt his children, by special law, from a part of the school ceremonial.

FINGER PRINTS CANNOT BE FORGED

The evidence of guilty finger prints has hitherto been little used in criminal trials. No one has been convicted upon such evidence unsupported by other proof, although in a case of burglary a few months ago the corroborative testimony was supplied by the felon's confession, made after he had compared the telltale whorls photographed from the window-pane of his victim's house with his confirmatory digits. A Grand Jury has this week for the first time returned an indictment upon recorded prints on file at the Central Office of detectives which are reported to be identical with the faint impressions upon a dusty case found in a loft that had been looted by their stealthy maker. If he is convicted, Capt. Faurot of the Police Department's Bureau of Identification will have won a notable triumph.

Men have been convicted of crimes upon the disputed testimony of handwriting experts. There has always remained some doubt that the chirography of others might be so like their variable hands as to be mistaken for it. There was the chance, too, that some malicious foe had carefully forged the damnatory documents. But the convolutions upon the tactile surfaces of hands and fingers cannot be forged, there is not one chance in a hundred millions that they will resemble the finger prints of another, and their identification with the guilty one is capable of mathematical proof. It would seem that no evidence could be more exact. As its nature becomes known to those who make up our juries, convictions upon such evidence will be common.

THE DETACHABLE CUFF.

There has lately been a strange development of feeling over the rumors of a revival of detachable shirt cuffs. In an earlier era of economical living men of parts were known to wear shirt cuffs which could be buttoned on the wristband. Men of a commoner sort wore reversible cuffs, so that when one end was soiled the other end could be placed on public exhibition. Cuffs like these could be removed in working hours. The theory of detachable cuffs is that a shirt should be worn at least a week, while a pair of cuffs may not last more than two days, allowing four days, of course, for a reversible pair. Offensively fastidious persons who habitually change their linen daily never wore detachable cuffs. Indeed, we believe that many such persons never knew of the existence of detachable cuffs.

On the other hand, we learn from so eminent an authority on the subject of shirt cuffs as The Troy (N. Y.) Press that the detachable cuff has been worn all through the period of its supposed extinction by the leading shirt, collar, and cuff manufacturers of that city. Whether the laundrymen of Troy, too, have defied fate and set a bad example by wearing the detachable articles The Press does not inform us. The Press also mentions a newly invented slip-on cuff of superior deceptive qualities, which looks exactly like an attached cuff when it is in place. The early detached cuff had a painfully detached appearance, but on that account a fair-minded man might prefer it. To wear detached cuffs may not be a sin against society. But if they are worn with intent to deceive they are morally as objectionable as a dickey, which we understand is a shirt bosom worn without a shirt.

We would respectfully suggest to our Troy friends that if detachable cuffs are really desirable, they, also, might be worn without a shirt. If deception is to be practiced for economy's sake, why not make the economy worth while? The cuffs might be buttoned on the inner side of the coat sleeve, or fastened to the shoulders by some sort of odd mechanical contraption similar to the combination of elastics by means of which women fasten their—but it would be useless to argue such a point, perhaps, as Troy manufactures shirts as well as cuffs. We intended to say that with the revival of the so-called Ascot tie, which comes for the rural trade made up and of the amplitude of a chest protector, the shirt might be omitted altogether from ordinary attire. The idea is that no shirt at all is preferable to one infrequently washed.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

What They Did Was Murder.

Two members of a Shaker colony in Florida having deliberately put to death a third in order to end what all three considered hopeless suffering, there is sure to be another revival of the often-discussed question whether or not the intentional bestowal of "euthanasia" on human beings is ever commendable or justifiable.

Each periodic debate on this subject brings forward not a few people bold enough to take the position that when recovery from sickness or injury is impossible, and the delaying of death means only a brief prolongation of useless agonies, the gentle cutting off of life is an act of highest mercy. Not infrequently has it been suggested to legalize such killings, when done with the victim's consent or demand, and after formal determination by authorized experts that an inevitable demise is only hastened.

There is, of course, a certain plausibility in the arguments of those advocating this course, and in a few extreme cases an almost general, though reluctant, confession of their validity might be made. It is, however, the consensus of competent and enlightened opinion that the infliction of death, even in the few extreme cases, carries a heavy responsibility, and that both right and reason forbid the making of any exceptions at all to the rule that the duty of the physician, and still more that of others, is always to prolong life to the last possible minute, never to shorten it.

To put sick or wounded animals "out of their misery," as the saying is, has everywhere been the common practice, but into every one of these kindly slaughters there probably enters something of a self-considering element on the part of those who slay—it is their own sufferings at the sight of pain, or the inconvenience and expense involved in unhopeful attempts at cure, that to a certain extent prompt the use of bullet, knife, or poison. To let these considerations count in dealing with human beings is something only the most callous would dare to palliate.

But the real weakness of the euthanasia doctrine is the impossibility of determining with absolute certainty when death is inevitable. Certainly the patient is not competent to decide on his own case, and the wisest doctors have not infrequently been amazed by the recovery of those whose death they had believed to be a matter of a few days or hours. To legalize, even to leave unpunished, the bestowing of easy death would be to open a wide door to tragical mistakes and to atrocious crimes.

Fees That Cause Irritation.

Many and elaborate as have been the attempts of the New York banks to explain why they exact a fee for the collection of out-of-town checks from all except a few cities, they have never succeeded in convincing the majority of their depositors that this practice is necessary or even justifiable.

Of course it costs something in postage and the time of clerks to collect out-of-town checks, but the general impression is that the banks impose the fees because they can, rather than because not to do so would seriously, or even appreciably, decrease their profits on their accounts. However that may be, the revenue from these fees is by no means clear gain, for not only does their imposition cause a lot of irritation, but it deprives the New York banks of not a few accounts they would otherwise have and diminishes the size of not a few others.

The letter on this subject from Mr. James C. Hallock, which we printed yesterday, was a well-considered appeal for at least an extension of what may be called the free zone. There is, however, no obvious reason why Connecticut should be favored over several other States.

An Aviator Lost in the Suburbs.

People with minds tending toward cynical doubts will probably conclude, from inspection of the map showing Ward's course during the first day of his "flight to the Pacific Coast," that he wasn't really trying to begin a long journey. Not only is this cruelly unkind to the aviator and our enterprising contemporary, but it fails to take into account the fact that aviation is an art with few practitioners of much experience in cross-country flight, and that travel through the air is utterly different from travel on land or water.

The automobilist makes journeys the length of which the birdmen must still view with jealous envy, and he often makes them through territory wholly unfamiliar to him. Also, he often gets lost, and finds himself at nightfall almost as far from his chosen destination as Ward was, but usually he reaches it because he has maps made to suit his special needs, as the aviator has not, as yet, and because he has frequent opportunity to ask his way from people who know it.

Evidently the aviators have another task beside the sufficiently large one of learning how to fly; they must also acquire familiarity with the appearance of great stretches of country as seen from above. And the probabilities are that they will have to acquire this knowledge much as do the carrier pigeons—by making repeated flights of gradually extended length and so fixing in memory prominent features of the scenery and the general "lay of the land."

Why Ward didn't make better use of his compass—if he had one—is not explained, but one can easily see that in a medium as unstable as air the steering of a course by dead reckoning is much more difficult than on water. Even when the aviator can see the bottom of his ocean he is not much helped unless he knows one town or railway or river from another.

Maps will doubtless be of assistance, and some ingeniously adapted to meet the aviator's necessities have been devised—in France. Here hardly a beginning of anything of that kind has been made, as our flying men are only just now emerging from the exhibition stage and risking their necks to better purpose than was the case while they merely performed circus feats for gaping crowds of entrance-fee payers. Characteristically, they have gone to the other extreme and are making flights needlessly long—or attempting them. More modest efforts would be seemly and wise for some time to come.

MILK IN HOSPITALS.

It Can Be Properly Supplied and Tested for Its Purity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. Ira S. Wile's statement with reference to the milk which is bought by institutions has interested me very much, indeed, and as the President of the Sanitarium for Hebrew Children, where milk forms a most important part of our diet, I feel as if I am qualified to discuss this subject.

Before I became President of the sanitarium, I established a chemical and bacteriological laboratory, and one of our physicians has always been a trained bacteriologist. It is his duty as soon as the milk arrives in the morning to take various samples and make the necessary examinations for specific gravity, cream content, &c.

Every article of food that we buy must be examined, for purity, is rigidly inspected, and records are kept.

Excepting for the infants in the sick ward, where the milk is modified in accordance with the age and condition of the child, all of our milk is distributed in its raw state, and of the 5,000 children that we have taken care of this Summer, we have had only four deaths, and these four were sent to us in such a condition that it was practically impossible to save their lives.

On our boat excursions, of which we have been giving two a week, we have taken care of almost 20,000 mothers and children, and in not one single instance have we had any epidemic of intestinal disorder either on our boat excursions or in the sanitarium itself, all of which is due to the great care which we exercise.

I must say that my orders have been very faithfully carried out, but the excellent results we have obtained are due to the efficient Superintendent, and to the excellent medical staff, and of this medical staff we are fortunate in having Dr. Ira S. Wile as one of our number.

Three years ago we had occasion to condemn a delivery of milk, and the milk company was immediately informed to take away its product and replace it by one which was acceptable to us. I communicated with the company personally, and told it that if this should happen again we would break our contract. From that day to this we have never had reason to complain.

COLUMBIA'S STUDENTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is not true, as Mr. Crane says, that "at Columbia there exists more debauchery than at any other college on account of its proximity to the famous resorts of the city." To begin with, the Columbia authorities are very careful in admitting a student to the university. Moreover, the career of the student is followed very closely throughout his four years of residence, and the least offense on his part usually results in his expulsion from the university. Another reason why the indictment is false is that Columbia University differs from the rest of the American universities in the fact that it is almost wholly a university for graduate courses, the college department being one of the smallest in the country. The number of students last year was over 8,000, while the college numbered only 800 students.

Because of this the majority of the Columbia students are on the average older men, and therefore conscientiously and earnestly pursue their courses of study. This leaves no room for debauchery and dissipation. As a result the student body at Columbia is one of the finest and most desirable groups of men, and Mr. Crane's attack is not in the least justified.

Manual Labor of College Men.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with interest A. W. Porterfield's letter a few days ago regarding the sort of employment which college students should seek during the Summer. Does Mr. Porterfield by any chance imagine that a student prefers working on a cattle boat to tutoring? Perhaps Mr. Porterfield does not realize the difficulty there is in obtaining a teaching position for the Summer—that there are over fifty men to be had for every vacant position. So Mr. Porterfield considers any work other than "tutoring in a wealthy family" as "degrading"! Poor Jacques Amyot, who worked as a waiter before he became famous as the translator of the immortal Plutarch! Mr. Porterfield would advise the impecunious student to borrow money and thus saddle himself with a heavy debt for years to come in order that his diploma may be unsullied by the stain of manual labor. A truly democratic sentiment, indeed!

Mongoloid Immigrants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter in your issue to-day speaking of immigrants and stating that a large number of them have Negroid intermixture, is interesting, but your correspondent failed to state that another large number coming from southeastern Europe have Mongoloid intermixture. So here is another inconsistency: In the west the Mongols are excluded; in the east they are admitted. Of course, this nation is in the making, there may be perfect assimilation, but it is difficult to believe. Ancient Rome went down because its population was like New York's, a perfect "Hexen kessel." Shall this kind of immigration be curtailed?

JOHN BROWN.

The Pay of Clergymen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Relative to an article under the heading of "Small Pay Stirs Pastor," it would be interesting to compare the "pitiable salaries upon which many of the clergymen eke out a miserable existence, which is a disgrace to Christianity" with the financial reward of the Man of Nazareth and His co-workers, all of whom depended for their sustenance upon the wages they earned by the sweat of their brow at their respective trades, their service in the vineyard being for love, not for hire. See Micah, iii., 5-12; First Peter, v., 2.

Bold Thieves in Restaurants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your article "Robbed Before His Eyes," explaining Mr. Loewe's experience, is nothing extraordinary. I have hung up a $60 overcoat in a restaurant on a hook about three or four feet from where I sat, facing the overcoat. I took my lunch, and after I was through I got up to go out, but my overcoat was not there, nor was it anywhere else in the restaurant. It had been stolen right in front of my eyes, and my eyes were not removed from the direction in which the coat hung for one moment. I was out a $60 overcoat without any redress.

Strikes Without Police.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I heard an address the other night by Victor L. Berger, the Socialist representative in Congress. I took notes during the lecture and found one of the points most emphasized to be as follows:

The best way to settle strikes is to prevent the police from interfering with the strikers. I used that method in Milwaukee on one occasion and the strikers soon had the capitalists begging for mercy.

TRANSFER SYSTEM DEFERRED

Third Avenue Line Explains Negotiations Are Still On.

Assemblyman Mark Goldberg of the Eighteenth District was called sharply to account yesterday afternoon at the close of a hearing on street car transfers before the Public Service Commission by William D. Guthrie, counsel for the Third Avenue Railway, as constituting something of a threat.

Mr. Guthrie had suggested that as the commission was about to go into the valuation of the Third Avenue system's property, it would be better to adjourn till Tuesday afternoon to give time for the preparation of returns.

"I don't want to appear to dictate to the commission," put in the Assemblyman, "but I would remind it that the Legislature meets on Monday night, and that the session is likely to be a short one. So it might be better to continue these hearings from day to day."

"I wish you would not bring in the Assembly every time you address the commission," said Mr. Guthrie sharply to Mr. Goldberg. "We are quite aware that it is about to meet, but this is an important matter we are investigating and we are making as much speed as we can."

"I made the remark," the Assemblyman hastened to explain, "to let the commission know that the people are dissatisfied with the way it is handling this matter. I have no desire to say that the Legislature will intervene. I believe that the commission will handle this matter without the intervention of the Legislature, notwithstanding my bill."

Commissioner Guthrie then carefully explained to the Assemblyman the necessity of the commission making sure that the order it issued could not be attacked as confiscatory, and consequently it was essential to know the extent of the investment on which the company could claim some return.

"I would like to add," said Mr. Guthrie, "that even if we could not, if dissatisfied, apply for a review of the commission's action under a writ of certiorari, there would still remain to us an action in equity. But the certiorari proceedings must be taken up within thirty days, while equity proceedings would be interminable. No one can deprive us of our constitutional rights in equity, and the Assemblyman had better let this matter be fully investigated now."

So the hearing went over till Tuesday afternoon, when the Third Avenue Company promises to put in evidence a quantity of detailed statements. John Flint, a public accountant, and Edward A. Maher, General Manager of the Third Avenue lines, continued their testimony on statistical matters. In discussing the probable division of the proposed 10-cent fare for "Z" rides, in which two transfers are allowed, Mr. Maher suggested that if the ride began with a long haul, succeeded by a short and then a long haul, the first company should receive 4 cents, the second 2½, and the third 3½, but if the long haul was in the middle, then the first company, which took the passenger for only a short distance, would receive 3 cents, the long-haul company 4½ cents, and the third the remaining 2½ cents.

Commissioner Eustis pointed out that there was no reason why the companies should not if they wished put their proposal for 8 and 10 cent fares in operation to-day, as they had spoken of doing.

Mr. Maher replied that the Third Avenue lines had done everything it could to do so, and had actually printed the transfer slips with the Second Avenue line, but as far as the Metropolitan was concerned, negotiations had gone no further than conversations with Oren Root, the General Manager, and the delegation of the task of drawing up the transfer slips to representatives of the two systems.

Assemblyman Goldberg wanted to know from Mr. Maher how it was that the Union Railway exchanges transfers with the New York City Interborough line in the Bronx. Mr. Maher explained that the Union Railway hopes at some time or another to effect a consolidation with the City Interborough and the Southern Boulevard Railway, which is already operated and owned by the Union Railway. Moreover the same group of people are interested in the City Interborough and in the Union Railway. Consequently, Mr. Maher declared they have thought that it was only right that the two roads should exchange transfers, though operated independently.

FREE PANAMA TOLLS.

Thinks Treaty Permits American Coastwise Ships to Pass Untaxed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the public discussion now being made on the question of "free canal tolls" through the Panama Canal on American coastwise shipping the fact should not be lost sight of that Article 2 of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, reading as follows:

> The said Government shall have and enjoy all the rights incident to such construction as well as the exclusive right of providing for the regulation and management of the canal, should be taken in connection with the first paragraph of Article 3 of the same treaty, reading as follows:

> The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations observing these rules on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination against any such nation or its citizens or subjects in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic or otherwise.

This fully justifies, in my opinion, the view that the treaty aims solely to regulate and impose the same rates of toll on all competition for commerce between nations in a common market, but it does not either imply or express that domestic commerce (within the confines of any nation), which in our case is not open to foreign competition, is brought within the purview of the treaty regulations. On the other hand the treaty gives the United States the exclusive right of "providing for the regulation and management of the canal." If that means anything it means that we can do whatever we want for ourselves in the matter of using the canal to regulate our internal transcontinental commerce so long as we do not discriminate in favor of ourselves on canal tolls when it comes to competing in a foreign market where other nations have trade relations. I am not contending for free tolls for all American ships in all trades, but only for free tolls in the domestic coastwise trades of this country for all independent shipping.

If this construction can be placed upon the Hay-Pauncefote treaty it seems to me that nothing can be plainer than that it should be invoked by Congress in favor of all coastwise commerce. Within our own borders free tolls on this traffic will mean cheaper transportation, and that cannot but have its effect in materially reducing the cost of living, which is what the people are most vitally interested in bringing about at this time. I trust you will, therefore, give this view the widest discussion in your columns.

Obstructive Columns.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a palliative remedy to relieve the throttled state of the roadways in Sixth Avenue and Broadway between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, I would suggest that two new girders parallel to existing ones and twice their length be erected to allow the removal of two columns now badly obstructing traffic. Of course four of the old columns would need be replaced by stronger ones.

The expense of making this change would be inconsiderate in comparison with the advantage gained.

NEW YORK TO JOE BAILEY.

Note.—Senator Bailey has concluded not to come to New York, but will remain in Texas.

Why don't you come here, Joe Bailey?
We need a good man of your style
To uplift our morals, Joe Bailey,
Which have been on the bum for a while.

Why don't you come here, Joe Bailey?
There's not a man, now in this town,
Who is built on your pattern, Joe Bailey,
Whose headpiece will fill up your crown.

Why don't you come here, Joe Bailey?
New York lacks the soft savoir faire
That permeates Texas, Joe Bailey,
And makes you so popular there.

Why don't you come here, Joe Bailey?
There's room anywhere for your brand;
It's the mark of the genius, Joe Bailey,
Making Texas loom large in this land.

Why don't you come here, Joe Bailey?
You're certain to make a rich strike;
New York isn't Texas, Joe Bailey,
But with you it would be something like.
What?

ATTACK ON DOTY CALLED VENOMOUS

SOME ADMISSIONS MADE

Bookkeeping Methods Not the Best—Acceptance of Gifts from Liners' Captains Explained.

George Gordon Battle and George S. Scofield, counsel for Dr. Alvah H. Doty, Health Officer of the port, filed yesterday with Commissioner Bulger their brief, giving their reasons, based on the testimony at the recent Quarantine inquiry, why Dr. Doty should not be removed from office by Gov. Dix. The brief begins by pointing out that for sixteen years Dr. Doty has been engaged in keeping out of this country all the contagious diseases of Europe, and Dr. William M. Polk, President of the Academy of Medicine; Dr. Abraham Jacobi, President of the American Medical Association; Dr. Simon Flexner, Director of the Rockefeller Institute; Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, former Health Commissioner of this city; Dr. John Brannan, President of the Board of Trustees of Bellevue Hospital, and other prominent physicians testified at the investigation that he had performed his duties competently, skillfully, and with high character.

"Against Dr. Doty's administration of his office or against his competence or character not one single physician has been called by those who are attacking him," the brief states. "And not the slightest criticism of Dr. Doty's office has been offered by the great merchants, the steamship lines, the importers, and exporters.

"There has been a most bitter, and we regret to say a most malignant and venomous, attack upon Dr. Doty by Charles Dushkind, an attorney at law, who, as we have seen, managed an attack upon Dr. Doty under the administration of Gov. Hughes, and appeared before Commissioner Bulger on the first day of the public hearings.

"At the beginning of this investigation Dr. Doty was not represented by counsel. The wanton and unfounded charges against him and against his family—charges which were utterly disproved and which must have been known to be unfounded by those who preferred them—forced him to obtain counsel to protect himself and his family. Mr. Dushkind at first claimed to be acting as a public-spirited citizen and an impartial seeker after truth. But he soon appeared openly as a bitter and partisan prosecutor. Mr. Cohen, who was, as we understand it, appointed personally by the Commissioner as counsel, while not so violent as Mr. Dushkind, has throughout the investigation maintained the attitude of a prosecutor rather than an impartial investigator.

"So the result has been that a number of vague charges, made by irresponsible persons, have been ventilated to the public. These charges have been for the most part by ex-employes and a few ignorant immigrants who were paid the per diem fees of a witness. In this connection it may be noted as in evidence here that Mr. Dushkind spared neither effort nor money to hunt up witnesses of this sort, sending out an interpreter to see these immigrants and to take statements from them, the interpreter testifying that he expected to be paid for this work. Mr. Dushkind and his son, an attorney, attended every hearing, and evidently both of them devoted practically their entire time to this proceeding for months, so it must be that some one is advancing funds for this prosecution."

No answer is given in the brief to the charge that Dr. Doty used the Cholera Emergency Fund, obtained from the State about a year ago, to pay his long outstanding food supply bills. No explanation is given as to how he came to get so far behind in his bills. The brief admits that Dr. Doty's practice of allowing his former secretary, Sutherland, to handle the money collected from the coastwise vessels and to disburse this fund as a petty cash fund without filing vouchers was not very good bookkeeping. The brief admits that Sutherland was subsequently discovered to be $800 short in his accounts, but says he was forced to refund. The brief insists that there was nothing wrong about the activities of the coal dealer, Marston, in supplying Quarantine with coal, and states that Mrs. Rooney's twice paid milk bill is now being investigated.

As to the charge that Dr. Doty was in the habit of accepting presents in the shape of foreign-made and hence dutiable goods from steamship Captains without paying duty on them the brief has this to say:

"The fact is that formerly every vessel was in the habit of sending some slight present to the Health Officer as a matter of courtesy. When Dr. Doty took office he sent word, as we are informed, to the different steamship lines that he desired the practice to be discontinued, and it has been discontinued. In a few instances, however, Captains who did not know of the fact that the practice no longer continued, have sent such trivial things as a bottle of brandy, a piece of bologna sausage, a package of raisins and the like to the Health Officer's house as a personal courtesy. It would have been ungracious to return these trivial gifts, and their acceptance cannot be any subject for serious consideration."

The brief was mailed on Wednesday, so that it would be in Commissioner Bulger's hands at Oswego yesterday morning.

PLAN TRACTION LINE MERGER

International Company Purposes to Absorb Buffalo Railways.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The Public Service Commission had before it to-day the plan of reorganization of the International Traction System, operating in the Cities of Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Lockport, and other villages and towns in Erie and Niagara Counties and the Dominion of Canada.

A new corporation has been organized, known as the International Traction Railways, which has applied for permission to construct a railroad along Abbott Road, in the City of Buffalo, to connect with the Buffalo Southern Railroad. The new corporation then proposes to purchase all the securities of the International Traction System, including the International Traction Company, a New Jersey corporation, which now owns all the capital stock of the International Railway Company and the Crosstown Street Railway of Buffalo.

The new corporation desires ultimately to acquire all of the stock of the International Railway Company and other operating railways mentioned and to merge the companies into one corporation.

'PASSERS-BY' WHO HAVE COME TO STAY

IT IS ADMIRABLY ACTED

Richard Bennett Gives Delightful Performance and Ernest Lawford Scores Heavily in Rich Character Rôle.

"PASSERS-BY," a play in four acts, by Haddon Chambers, Criterion Theatre.

Mr. Peter Waverton	Richard Bennett
Pine	Julian Royce
"Nighty"	A. G. Andrews
Samuel Burns	Ernest Lawford
Margaret Summers	Louise Rutter
The Lady of Hurley	Ivy Herzog
Miss Beatrice Dainton	Rosalie Toller
Little Peter	Master Davis

Mr. Hadden Chambers's "Passers-By," the most successful play of the last London season, and the first real play of the present season in this city, promises to be an enduring success at the Criterion. It ought to be. For it is a play that has breadth and depth and strength, a play into which multicolored strands of pathos and of humor are very deftly woven, and a play, again, which is a true play for the theatre, since it provides a pleasing variety of well-differentiated parts for actors.

Fortunately for the success of the piece in this country, these parts are in the main very admirably acted here—in one or two cases, indeed, quite as well acted as they were in London. And to say that is to say a great deal. For the English production of this play was about as perfect a thing as one often sees.

So it is almost certain that these "Passers-By" will tarry long enough for every one to become well acquainted with their various points of view. The passers-by themselves are three in number. To begin with, there is Nighty, the cabman, who when the play begins is being entertained by Mr. Peter Waverton's man Pine in his master's snugly furnished bachelor quarters in Piccadilly. Nighty is a bit of a philosopher in his way and a bit of a sociologist as well. It is Nighty's hobby that legislation should be for the children—that every creature on God's footstool is entitled to a decent supply of light and air and food and water, an observation made presently, when the second of the passers-by, Mr. Samuel Burns, a human derelict, is brought into view out of the London fog. He is invited in to be regaled at Mr. Waverton's fireside and to reveal a type which is as true to our country as another—the physically weak, anaemic, miserable wastrel, who takes all things as they come, with neither gratitude nor thanks, but simply as his due. Asked by Mr. Waverton if he ever works, he laconically replies, "work is for workmen." And he ambles along a few minutes later without so much as a "thank you" for the food that has been his and the very nice, snug-fitting overcoat which has been provided him to keep off the damp and cold.

With the third of the passersby enters the sentimental interest of the play, an interest about which, be it said, the long arm of coincidence waves widely. But this for the sage of the general charm of the recital one is quite willing to overlook. Years before in his dull English home, among dull and narrow people, the breath of Spring had come to Peter Waverton, come to him and to Margaret Summers, a governess in the household. They had loved, and there love had been discovered by Peter's stepsister, an unpleasantly officious person, who, for the boy's sake, had bundled the girl into the streets while Peter was away, then destroyed the letters that might have brought him to her once again. Margaret has been overcome in the fog, she has taken refuge at Peter's door, and it is with her coming that the real story begins to develop. For there is a child—their child.

The sight of the woman brings to Peter once again all his old-time love for her. In the meantime he is engaged to another girl, Beatrice Dainton, a thoroughbred, who, at the crucial moment, which presently arrives, trusts Peter and sticks to Margaret in the face of bitter opposition. And Margaret, on her part, hearing Peter's honest confession of the new attachment, pretends to a new interest on her own part—announces her engagement to a Mr. Henry Robinson, a fictitious personage, about whose name subsequently some of the delightful passages of the play revolve. It is the queer chap, Burns—he whose identity has been lost in the general designation "man"—who ultimately brings things to a focus. Burns, rebellious at having missed his way to the embankment, arrives after an encounter with a milk-wagon in the fog-laden streets. He is taken in, cared for, washed and shaved—the last an indignity for which he blames Pine. The valet's patronage of him becomes unbearable, so at last he decides to go away, and takes the child with him. A little later the step-sister and the fiancee, arriving, find Margaret in Peter's rooms. The elder woman is indignant, the other loyal, and it is time for the disclosure. It only remains for Pine and Nighty to bustle into the house with news of the child's disappearance to bring the revelation of the full relationship and its consequences.

Need it be added that ultimately the child is restored, that Margaret and Peter take up their lives together, and that the other girl bravely and splendidly helps them out, then announces that she has her eyes on just the kind of chap who will be best suited to her style?

The play is written throughout with appealing charm, with an abundance of terse and telling dialogue and an undercurrent of wholesome philosophy. And its successive passages are appealing either as humor or as sentiment.

One of the most delightful moments is that in which Peter first sees his child—a moment filled with a strange, uncomfortable sense of awkwardness for him, when, after trying in vain to amuse the boy, to coax a smile from him, the father, in his helplessness, is obliged to call in the mother, nervously awaiting the result.

"My boy knows when to smile," she says shortly, when the derelict Burns and little Peter see each other for the first time, and the two child minds meet. A tender and appealing situation this—it brings the second curtain down. There is grace, too, to the writing of the passage in which Margaret at the piano sings an old song with Peter's mind wandering in the past, and his lips voicing the story of that dull old English home. And there is the flare of drama in the appearance of the unexpected guests, the discovery of Margaret, Peter's strength, and the womanliness of Beatrice.

The last act, with Margaret waiting, fearing, hoping for the return of her boy, while Beatrice is at her side, and the subsequent disclosure of the sentiment that still lives in the hearts of the two lovers, brings a delightful blend of things that cause the smile or tear.

Mr. Chambers's characters are admirably written, and in the production at the Criterion they are for the most part very ably acted. Certainly Richard Bennett need not fear comparison with Gerald De Maurier, the originator of the part of Peter Waverton in the production at Wyndham's. He has the variety, charm, naturalness, ease. And he touches both the sentiment and the comedy of the rôle deftly and neatly. Moreover, he is at all times earnest, sincere, and convincing. He was particularly delightful in the scene of the first meeting with the child, and he conveys throughout a sense of earnestness and dominating masculinity.

Few richer character rôles than that of Mister Samuel Burns have come along, and in this eccentric figure Earnest Lawford was continuously amusing. In makeup, movement, and speech his picture of the wastrel completely reflected the sense and purpose of the rôle. In playing the later scenes his touch was especially sincere, and he removed from the figure the one trace of theatricalism which was present in its originator's performance.

One of Mr. Chambers's best written rôles is that of the valet Pine. In London it was superbly played by Mr. Gayer Mackaye. Here Mr. Julian Royce was effective without being always as incisive as might have been desired. The rôle of the cabby was well outlined by Mr. A. G. Andrews.

It would have been surprising had Miss Louise Rutter equaled Miss Irene Vanbrugh's performance of Margaret, for in rôles of this sort Miss Vanbrugh is unequaled on the English stage. Miss Rutter has charm and youth, however, and she played prettily. In a less complex part, but a most appealing one, Miss Rosalie Toller gave the truest performance of the woman. And a word is due Miss Ivy Herzog for general excellence in manner, speech, and looks.

Mr. Chambers was called before the curtain and expressed regret at Mr. Frohman's inability to be present, a regret which, it need hardly be added, was generally shared.

"SWEET SIXTEEN" AT DALY'S.

Victor Herbert Conducts the New Song Play—Lyrics by Hobart.

"WHEN SWEET SIXTEEN," a song play in two acts. Book and lyrics by George V. Hobart. Music by Victor Herbert. Daly's Theatre.

John Hammond	Frank Belcher
Mrs. Hammond	Josie Intropidi
Victoria	Harriet Standon
Jefferson Todd	William Norris
Stanley Morton	Roy Purviance
Zeke	Harry S. Fern
Gertie Greene	Eva Williams
The Laird of Loch Lomond	George Ridgwell
Monsieur Beaucaire	Arthur Lipson
Eleanor Bradford	Mabel Mordaunt
Mabel Bradford	Belle Taylor
Gridley	R. M. Dolliver

With Victor Herbert conducting lustily and Kitty Gordon, looking alternately like Mary Garden and Eleanor Glyn, sitting in a stage box with M. and Mme. Victor Maurel, "When Sweet Sixteen" was performed last night at Daly's Theatre. Miss Gordon bestowed her most hearty approval on an orchestral feat accomplished by the fife in a song called "Graft"; M. Maurel was most interested in that portion of the finale of the first act which showed how laughing is done at the Metropolitan Opera House, (and the greatest of the Iagos and Falstaffs ought to know;) the audience was most interested in a medley of songs taken from other operas by Victor Herbert.

Mr. Herbert is undoubtedly the American Offenbach, Lecocq, and Franz Lehar, but he has never had the good fortune to set as good librettos as have been handed to each of these foreign gentlemen by the half dozen. It would not be strange, therefore, if his inspiration sometimes failed him. Strangely enough it does not seem to, and, although he has written many a more tuneful and musicianly score than "When Sweet Sixteen," still it can be truthfully said that there are not many others who could write so good a one.

The principal tunes of the piece are "Graft," "The Wild Rose," "Honey Love," "Hearts Are Trumps," and "Rosalind." These have melody and swing to recommend them. There are novelties in the orchestration, a feature one may always expect in a Herbert score. There is a very clever use of the drum in "Oh, Those Boys," the French horn plays its subtle part in "Hearts Are Trumps," and the aforementioned fife in "Graft" caught many ears besides Kitty Gordon's.

Still any one of the many songs introduced in the medley, which included numbers from "The Wizard of the Nile," "The Serenade," "The Babes in Toyland," "It Happened in Nordland," "Babette," "The Red Mill," "The Fortune Teller," and "Naughty Marietta," proved that he has done better on many another occasion. Perhaps Mr. Hobart's lyrics, which offered little inspiration, were responsible for this.

In one instance the song called "The Golden Long Ago," Mr. Hobart seems to have listened carefully to the words of "There were Two Princes Children" from "The Merry Widow." However, he soon forgot "The Merry Widow" to plunge into the "Laugh" song, which closed the act, and which tells how they laugh in opera in the South and many other places. This, with Mr. Herbert's accompanying music, and the performance by the company, brought the curtain down with good effect. It had to be raised many times. Part of the finale was repeated, and finally Mr. Herbert and Mr. Hobart appeared to share the applause.

It has been suggested that Mr. Hobart's book struck an ungainly trot. This was in a measure due to the fact that he attempted to stick quite closely by a plot which was too thin to stick to. However, there were funny lines and an attempt to create types rather than characters, which succeeded in part. The miserly Mr. Todd had his amusing moments, the valet Zeke was always funny, and Gertie Greene, although a familiar enough stage manicure girl type, still aroused a great deal of laughter.

Perhaps the three actors who were intrusted with these three rôles had something to do with the success with which they were projected beyond the footlights. At any rate they were the most successful in the cast. William Norris was the Mr. Todd, Harry S. Fern, Zeke, and Miss Eva Williams, Gertie Greene.

Of course, in any Herbert score there is singing to be done, and most of that last night was underdone. Why, for instance, was Roy Purviance intrusted with "The Wild Rose"?

The chorus was comely and sang well; the orchestra played with spirit under Mr. Herbert's direction; the piece was prettily mounted, and the costumes were charming in a simple way. And "When Sweet Sixteen" contains enough comedy and entertaining music to while away an evening for many people.

DRAMA OF TEARS AT WEBER'S

Judge Amos Kingsley	Edmund Breese
Richard Kingsley	Hans Robert
Geraldine Kingsley	Muriel Starr
Porter Kingsley	Ben Johnson
Sylvia Kingsley	Fay Wallace
William Price	Ralph Delmore
Burton Wills	Edward H. Robins
Court attendant	Hermann Korn

Isaac Landman, author of "A Man of Honor," that had its first hearing at Weber's Theatre last night, is a clergyman—a rabbi—and so the preaching in the play was forgivable. As Edmund Breese, the star, said in his speech after the third act, it was the sort of preaching that would impel people to attend the author's religious services, because it was interesting. Without quibbling about faulty construction, about too much "fine writing," last night's audience liked the effort. It took the climax of the second act to its heart—or more accurately, to its eyes—and wept without shame. But it must be confessed that all of the applause that followed the dropping of the curtain and resulted in the appearance of all of the company and the star did not seem quite genuine. A large part of it was, but toward the last it seemed born of curiosity about the personal appearance of the author, and about the extent of nervousness into which the star had been goaded. The curiosity was satisfied.

The play is about a Judge, Judge Kingsley, who has two children, Dick and Geraldine. Dick is employed by the Consolidated Company of something or other in Butte, Mon., and Geraldine has a sweetheart, Burton Wills, an attorney, who has a suit for $10,000,000 against the Consolidated in connection with a mining proposition. The decision of Judge Kingsley will either ruin the Consolidated or break the heart of Wills, whose suit has been brought to revenge a wrong done his father by the said Consolidated. The Judge, incidentally, wants to become Governor of Montana, and he also has a brother who is wealthy.

In order to get the better of the Judge and force a decision in their favor the Consolidated Company has its attorney, William Price, involve young Dick Kingsley in an embezzlement. Price tries to bribe the Judge and tries to bring Wills to a compromise. He fails. Dick, a moral coward until he has had a chance to talk to his father, does his best to arrange things so he won't go to jail. Geraldine rather sides with Dick on the question of expediency, and breaks with Wills, and the family gets quite upset.

However, Dick and his father, the Judge, have a talk, and Dick comes to the realization that his father is a man of honor, and the father begins to understand that he has not done his entire duty by his children. It all ends happily, because Price oversteps the line in trying a too general bribery, and is obliged to retire in the rather weak third act, a defeated and contrite man.

Mr. Breese played the Judge and confessed to the audience that it was the first time that he had appeared as a star on Broadway. That took a little thinking out, until it was remembered that his other starring appearances had been on streets off the main thoroughfare. Dick—programmed as Richard Kingsley—was in the hands of Hans Robert, who received applause second only to that of Mr. Breese. Muriel Starr had the rôle of Geraldine, Ben Johnson was the brother, Fay Wallace was the brother's daughter, whose place in the play could not be discovered—she had not even a sweetheart—Ralph Delmore was the Corporation Attorney, and Edward H. Robins the young attorney with a suit against the company. Hermann Korn appeared for five minutes in the picturesque attitude of a court attendant, but had nothing to say.

This must be recorded, and it probably gives a hint as to the future success of the piece: All of the women and most of the men in the audience were frankly in tears at the end of the second act, and not one of them seemed ashamed of it.

$800,000 THEATRE OPENS ON EAST SIDE

Big as the Hippodrome, but Many Are Turned Away from First Night's Performance.

THE MAYOR THERE TO SPEAK

More Applause for Him Than Actors, and He's Named for President—Actor David Kessler an Owner.

Mayor Gaynor helped to dedicate the David Kessler Second Avenue Theatre, the new theatre of the Ghetto, at Second Street and Second Avenue, last night, and laughed from a box at the Yiddish jokes just as if he understood everything. It was a big event on the east side, and the Mayor was so well thought of for having honored the Bowery with his presence that the large audience voted that he really ought to be the next President of the United States. The theatre cost $800,000.

It is to represent everything that is artistic in the Yiddish drama. David Kessler, the Henry Irving of the east side, and Max R. Wilner, the general manager of the theatre, are the sole owners. Mr. Kessler is to lead a stock company in the production of particularly Yiddish plays by such playwrights as Jacob Gordin, Sholom Asche, Adolph Philipp, Joseph Lateiner, and Isidor Zolatarofsky.

It is expected that the new theatre will meet the requirements of east side "intellectual theatregoers," as one of the orators expressed it, "for some time to come." Yet thousands were turned away from the doors last night.

The excitement began at 7 o'clock, and the fifth act of Jacob Gordin's "God, Man, and Devil" was not over until long after midnight. The Mayor remained through the prologue and the first act, and he said that he would like to have remained until 2 A. M. except for the condition of his throat. He got even more applause than the principal characters in the play.

"It is magnificent," the Mayor said at a part of the opening exercises during which he sat on the stage with the actors and actresses while a spotlight occasionally played on his beaming face from the gallery. "This wonderful theatre is of the greatest credit to this part of the city, which creates a demand for a great theatre. I only wish that I could speak Yiddish to do myself and you justice."

The crowd laughed at this, and the Mayor congratulated them on being able to see "the point."

"I'm afraid," he continued, "that it would be too hard a job to learn Yiddish. How many languages do you have to know before you can learn Yiddish? Too many for me, I know. Its too bad, for I would so much like to tell you what I think in real unadulterated Yiddish.

"I like the title of this play, 'God, Man, and Devil.' It strikes me as being a pretty comprehensive play. It takes in the heavens above and all the fire and water below. Nothing is left out. I think after being your Mayor for a year and a half that I could almost write a play on that subject myself. The great trouble would be, however, in distinguishing the man from the devil. From all that I have seen I am sure that they often look and act alike to be inseparable.

"You people are worthy of a good theatre. Your history itself is a lifelong drama. This theatre was built because your genius demanded it. Now you have given me the key to your theatre and I intend to use it occasionally. I would rather that you keep the outer door locked than to let anything foul or indecent in the way of plays enter this theatre. Hold the drama up. Honor the people that come here. I am sorry to say it, but there are some people in New York of a base mind that only want to pull down the drama into the very mud. That never will happen here so long as the people of the east side will remain what they are—pure of mind, aspiring to advance in the world, pure in heart, and with an artistic temperament.

"I tell you that since the beginning of the world art and filth never went hand in hand, never. And they never will. Look at the masterpieces of comedy and tragedy. Look at the pieces played by Bonne, and Von Sonnenthal, and Rachael, and Bernhardt. Why, those were great actors and actresses because they played legitimate plays, plays filled with morality and genius which did not degrade the community, but elevated it to the skies, brought angels down, and purified the minds of many. That this is the future of this theatre is the hope which I now express in declaring it open."

It was then that David Kessler, the actor, put the vote which, if conclusive, would make Mayor Gaynor the next President of the United States. The Mayor then adjourned to his box, which was decorated with welcome signs. Across from him sat Simon Steingut, Mayor of Second Avenue.

In area David Kessler's Second Avenue Theatre is as large as the Hippodrome. It seats 2,000 people without crowding. Besides the large orchestra floor there is a balcony, a gallery, and twelve boxes, arranged in tiers. The building extends from First Street to Second Street, and from Second Avenue, half way to Third Avenue.

Rows of floral offerings decorated the spacious corridors of the theatre last night, which, unlike Broadway theatres, was not crowded with life-size photographs of theatrical stars. In the interior the decorations are unique and not unlike the finest theatres in Times Square. The draperies and upholsterings are in olive green, in contrast with the deep bronze walls and ceiling. The drop curtain, of the same shade of green as the draperies, is painted in conventional design, incircling the letters D. K., for David Kessler. The building is thoroughly fireproof, even the floors being of cement. There are twenty-one exits, and the fire preventive conditions are said to be superior to anything in the city.

Davies Summoned by Father's Death.

Hubert Henry Davies, the English playwright, author of John Drew's new play, "A Single Man," and of "The Mollusc," in which Kyrle Bellew is appearing this year, sailed for London yesterday on the Cedric in response to a cable summons announcing the death of his father. Mr. Davies originally intended remaining in America for several months, but as it is he had barely time to see his new play launched in New York. He had to deny himself a trip to Buffalo to see Mr. Bellew in his other comedy. He took with him, however, a contract with Charles Frohman to provide a new play for Mr. Drew next season. He expects to return to America in about six months.

WEDDED AFTER SEA ROMANCE

J. G. Haugh Marries Miss Castaing, to Whom He Proposed by Wireless.

Miss Marguerite Castaing of La Rochelle, France, and Joseph Guy Haugh of Indianapolis were married at 5:30 last evening in St. Andrew's Methodist Church, Seventy-sixth Street and Broadway, by the Rev. George B. Peck. Their marriage was the culmination of a romance which began at sea, and in which the wireless and cable had a part, for it was Mr. Haugh's wireless proposal that brought Miss Castaing's cabled acceptance.

It was when Mr. Haugh went to France in June that he met his future wife, who had been visiting friends in this country, and who was on the same steamship. While on his return to America he decided to propose, hence the wireless inquiry from mid-ocean and the subsequent cable of affirmation, which he found awaiting him on his arrival at port. The bride arrived Wednesday on the liner Bretagne, after several days' delay, which postponed the wedding until yesterday.

Owing to the bride being in mourning there were only about seventy-five guests asked to the wedding and the reception which followed in the State Apartment at the Plaza. The bride wore a gown of white rose point lace over duchess satin. Her veil was caught up by a diamond clasp. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Esterbrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Esterbrook of Brooklyn, acted as flower girl, and Mrs. Noble McConnell was matron of honor. Mr. McConnell was best man.

The bride is a daughter of the late Col. Castaing of the French Army. Mr. Haugh is a manufacturer, and divides his time between New York and Indianapolis.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 14.—The Giants made a clean sweep of the Boston series to-day, submerging the lowly Rustlers under a steady gush of runs and a shower of hits on the South End grounds, winding up their visit with a 13 to 9 victory, continuing their mad rush toward the National League pennant at breakneck speed. Their victory to-day and Chicago's two defeats places New York 32 points in the lead. The Giants gained 10 points over the Cubs.

They laced Mattern, then Weaver, and finally Hogg. They piled up sixteen hits and thirteen runs with all the careless abandon of a team that is out warming up for practice. But don't think that Boston was sleeping. Puzzled for seven innings by the tip-top pitching of George Wiltse, they fell on him savagely in the eighth inning and drove him from the mound. Mathewson came in coolly and cautiously and brought Boston's rally to an abrupt end.

Believing the game practically over, Manager McGraw sent Crandall in to pitch the ninth inning. Suffering crickets! how they went at him. Hits rained over the meadow, cracking off the Rustlers' bats like a volley of rifle shots. The Giants had such a safe lead, they didn't care much what was happening to old Dr. Crandall. The Boston team batted all the way around, lacing out seven hits and five runs. Then Crandall pulled himself together, and finally retired the side.

It was the Boston National's last game of the season at home, and the faithful 938 folk who had the courage to sit in at the wake turned up their coat collars and went home to beans and brown bread. What the Boston's played to-day wasn't exactly baseball; it was something like it, but not nearly so difficult. It was more like "one old cat." The Giants went to the extremes of carelessness, playing a brand of ball they would never dare to show against a real ball team.

In the intricate maize of hurly-burly ball playing a few things stand out prominently. In the fourth inning Miller shot a liner toward right field that was taking a route high over Merkle's head. The first baseman, as if on springs, leaped in the air, raised his mitted hand like a political orator expounding the tariff, and the ball stuck as if imbedded in mud. Then there was the great batting of Pitchers Wiltse and Mathewson. "Hooks" drove in two runs with a hit in the second inning, and just to show that it wasn't a fluke he drove in two more in the fourth. In the fitful ninth, with the bases full, Mathewson hammered a terrific two-base drive against the centre-field bleachers and shoved three runs across.

Merkle and Herzog were the only regular Giants who didn't get a hit. All of the others left themselves open to the serious charge of assault and battery in their doings with the leather sphere. The laugh was very much on Boston. They hit the ball just as much, but the trouble was there were not enough sprightly young Rustlers on the bases to profit thereby.

But why tarry on the misfortune of poor William Hepburn and old Fred Tenney of Winthrop? Let's pitch headlong into the excitement and see what happened.

The Giants failed to make good use of their chances in the opening inning. Devore walked, but was too daring off the bag, and was caught napping by Mattern's quick throw. Doyle hit through Ingerton's legs and Snodgrass fanned. Murray singled, sending Doyle to second. Both runners were stranded when Merkle died at first.

Mattern's pitching began to unravel in the second. After Herzog walked, Fletcher rode a hit to centre. Meyers drove one to left. Fletcher went to third and Meyers to second when Jackson threw the ball to third. Wiltse put forth a strong argument in his own behalf by cracking a single to left, which scored Fletcher and Meyers. Devore popped a fly to the infield, which Ingerton muffed, but forced Wiltse at second. Doyle dropped the curtain on the session by fouling to Rariden.

Well, what do you think of young Jack Spratt of the Bostons? In the third inning he pushed a tremendous drive into the centre-field bleachers for an excursion trip. The nerve of him!

Jumping hoptoads, but the fourth inning was another Boston massacre! Herzog went to first by the Pop Weston route, Fletcher bounded out an infield hit, and Meyers sacrificed them along a notch.

What's this? "Hooks" Wiltse, the slugger, beaned out another single to centre and sent Herzog and Fletcher home with two more runs. Who said pitchers can't hit?

Devore rapped the ball to right and up ambles Lawrence Doyle with fire in his eyes. He cudgeled the ball viciously over the right-field fence into Columbus Avenue. Nothing to that, but three more runs. Snodgress flied to Spratt and Murray singled and stole. Merkle fanned for the third out.

Wiltse's pitching loosened in the eighth. Scotty Ingerton greeted him with a single, Bridwell forcing him at second. Jackson's smash sent Bridwell to third, and he scored on Kaiser's drive to centre. Miller drilled another hit to centre, scoring Jackson. Wiltse was taken out and Mathewson went in to halt the Boston rally. McDonald, the first hitter to face Big Six, forced Miller at second. McDonald stole second. Spratt spun the ball to the infield lawn and Matty threw him out at first.

Just to be doubly sure of the game, the Giants became mathematical again in the ninth. Weaver hit Devore in the ribs and Doyle jammed the ball to the darkest recesses of centre field for a three bagger, scoring Josh. Larry came through on Snodgrass's single. And still the hits came. Murray singled to right and Snodgrass went to third, attracting the throw so that Red could go to second. Weaver was pulled out of the game, and Hogg hurried to the mound.

Couldn't call him a rescuer, because at this stage there was nothing for the beaneaters to rescue. Merkle sent a liner into Bridwell's hands, and when Fletcher grassed to Hogg, Snodgrass was forced at the plate. Hogg forced Murray in with another run by giving Wilson a pass.

Zowie! More dynamite. Matty hammered the ball to the centre-field bleachers for two bases, sending Herzog, Fletcher, and Wilson home. Devore was safe on a scratch hit to first and stole second for the second time in the same inning. Doyle walked, jamming the bases full again. Snodgrass ended Boston's agony by forcing Devore at third.

Once again it was too easy for Matty, so Crandall was sent in to pitch the ninth inning, with Grover Cleveland Hartley to receive him. Crandall got a bad start, Rariden and Flaherty getting singles. Ingerton doubled to left, scoring Rariden, Hogg reaching third. Bridwell flied to Murray.

Will the game never end? Jackson's grounder bounded badly for Herzog and Flaherty scored. Kaiser's bad bouncer got away from Fletcher and Ingerton scored. Help!

Miller smashed a single to right, scoring Jackson. More help. McDonald's double got away from Devore and Kaiser scored. Here comes a gleam of hope. Spratt struck out. Rariden ended the colossal scare by grounding out, Crandall to Merkle. Glad that's over.

GOING AFTER BIGGER GAME NOW.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—Too bad Thespian Donlin's crockery arm wasn't in the game. May be the Giants could have added a couple of more runs.

The Giants are getting speed-mad. Once on first, they take a lead half way to second.

The striking milk drivers of Boston forgot their troubles and saw the game, and then went back to striking again.

Jimmy McAleer and John I. Taylor were at the game and surmised what they would do if the Rustlers were only in the American League.

Ban Johnson was in town, but didn't attend. His Secretary, Bob McRoy, looked over the Coogan Bluff clan and opened his eyes wide when he saw the Giants gallop.

Matty is now ready to go against the Pirates in Smoketown on Saturday.

In the Giants' spasms of joy they don't overlook the little favor that Pittsburgh handed them to-day.

Way up here one can almost hear a silken flag flapping against a gilded flagpole as the breezes waft over from the Harlem River. Almost is close.

Rube Marquard limbered up his arm a bit to-day, and thinks all the lameness will be out of the south elbow about Monday.

The whole Giant cavalcade, with outriders, postillions, Dick Hennessy, Arlie Latham, Rube Faust, and a carload of confidence, steamed out of here to-night for Pittsburgh to call on Buccaneer Fred Clarke.

PIRATES BEAT CUBS TWICE.

Giants' Great Rivals Suffer Severe Blow in Pennant Race.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 14.—Pittsburgh today took both games of a double-header from Chicago by scores of 3 to 2, and 4 to 2. The first was most exciting and developed into a pitchers' battle between Camnitz and Brown. Pittsburgh won in the eighth inning on Carey's single and a home run by Clarke. Clarke's home run was stopped by Schulte on a hard run, but he could not hold the ball.

In the second game Pittsburgh had Chicago shut out until the ninth inning. Before that period not a Chicago man had reached third base. In the ninth Leifield weakened just a bit, the bases being filled by two hits and a base on balls before a man was out. Two men were then forced at second, and Shean, who batted for Richter, sent a fly to Carey. Scores:

ZIMMERMAN RELEASED.

Brooklyn Infielder Returns to Newark—New Pitchers Join Team.

Eddie Zimmerman, who has been the regular third baseman of the Brooklyn team all season until Smith, the Southern Leaguer, reported about a week ago, was yesterday released outright to the Newark Club of the Eastern League. The fine showing made by Smith since he joined the Superbas was responsible for the change. Zimmerman was secured from Newark at the close of last season and has played a great fielding game for the Superbas, but was very weak with the stick. He was the best third sacker in the Eastern League last year.

Pitcher Burk of the Brooklyn team was sent home yesterday, and will not be with the team on the coming Western trip. Pitcher Scanlon is also at home. Elliott Dent, the pitcher secured from New Haven, has joined the squad, and will probably be given a try-out on the trip. Kent, another pitching recruit, is also with the team. Allen, the sensational southpaw secured from the Southern League, who was ordered to join the squad, has notified President Ebbetts that he needs a rest after his strenuous work in the Southern League season just closed, and he has been notified that he need not report until next Spring.

BRITISH GOLFER PUTS TRAVERS OUT

Harold H. Hilton Takes Measure of Montclair Crack in National Amateur Match.

Golf history was made yesterday when Harold H. Hilton of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club, champion of Great Britain, defeated Jerome D. Travers of Upper Montclair, twice American champion and present holder of the Metropolitan title, by 3 up and 2 play in the third round of the National Amateur Championship tournament over the links of the Apawamis Club at Rye.

One of the largest galleries that ever attended a contest over the links turned out, the spectators numbering close to 4,000. In another contest, even closer, C. W. Inslee of Wykagyl, eliminated P. W. Whittemore, Boston's last chance, by 1 up. On the other side of the draw, Fred Herreshoff, a former metropolitan champion, had no difficulty in disposing of Oswald Kirkby of Englewood, by 7 up and 6 to play. Charles Evans, Jr., of Chicago, mastered Albert Seckel, another Westerner, by 2 up and 1 to play.

The semi-final stage in the championship contest has now been reached and the play to-day will bring together Inslee and Hilton, while Herreshoff will be pitted against Evans. In the championship at Brookline a year ago, the last named pair came together, the Westerner running away from Herreshoff, consequently the far driving Westbrook man now has a chance to get even. Incidentally Herreshoff checked off an old score with Kirkby yesterday, for it was the record holder of Englewood who put the former out of the last metropolitan championship at Garden City.

Few there were that found interest enough in the other matches to forsake the struggle between the most prominent of two continents. The gallery that followed Hilton and Travers was of sufficient numerical strength to stretch all the way across the first fairway several deep. Travers was the first to drive, and he pulled it into a trap, out of which he reached the green 160 yards away with one of his most brilliant recoveries. He came within two inches of holding a long put for a 3, but he won the hole when the British champion, after an approach put seven feet from the hole, missed for a halve in 4.

Hilton got down a put of fifteen feet at the second hole for a 3, Travers falling short on his approach. The American had a chance for a 3 at the third, but he was unable to negotiate a difficult curve put and a halve resulted. Hilton missed a short one of less than a yard at the fourth, and secured a halve out of what looked like a sure win. The fifth was more or less of a botch on the green, though somewhat relieved by a beautiful run up shot by Hilton when his tee shot fell short. Travers missed a two-foot put for a 3, but left his opponent a stymie. Hilton's try was vain, and the hole was halved in 4, and the match remained even.

Hilton's approach to the sixth was low and straight as an arrow for the pin, while Travers took a slightly circuitous line to arrive at the same station for a halve in 4. The same distinction between their methods of play was in evidence again on their approaches to the seventh, only this time the Britisher got down his put for a 3.

To those who were not influenced by patriotism it was patent that in the long run the steady, straight-for-the-pin game is the winning combination in the royal and ancient game, especially when a man is such a remarkably good player as Hilton. He had the better of the driving on the outward journey both as to distance and direction, except at the seventh green.

The match was squared at the short eighth hole after both had hooked into the same trap to the left of the green. Hilton required three to get out and one more before he was dead for a 6. Travers also lost one stroke getting out, but a 5 won the hole. The visitor made the ninth green in three. For some reason or other Hilton's putting thus far had been very much off color, and he took three of them there, the last not more than a yard, enabling Travers to halve in 6. Putting is usually one of the Englishman's strong points. The match square, each required 40 going out.

Three putts was the cause of Travers losing in the tenth hole. After the next two were halved in fours, Hilton made it 2 up with a 3 at the thirteenth hole. His drive was not on, but his short running-up approach was of the usual high quality and he holed the putt. He won the fourteenth and became three up. The play to the fifteenth hole increased Hilton's lead to 4 up, as he had a perfect 4 and Travers a 5. It was now becoming more or less of a route, with the gallery gloomy. The gloom deepened when Hilton won the sixteenth hole in 3 to 4 and became 5 up. It was the deadly little shot from off the green that told the story. Travers did not cease his efforts despite the bad situation. He won the seventeenth, where Hilton's ball hung on the lip of the cup for a half, and as they were four apiece on the home hole Hilton led the morning play by 4 up.

The gallery was even larger and more brilliant in the afternoon. Fully 4,000 persons followed the two champions and cheered lustily. The play of both men was hampered to an extent by the throng which surrounded every green and at one time approached so closely that a ball driven by Travers struck one of the spectators.

The American played splendid golf on the outward journey. He seemed to be getting back into his usual form, notably lacking during the morning. Following his capture of the first three holes, he held his own for the rest of the trip to the turn, earning an ear-splitting cheer when he pulled off a 2 at the eighth. On this occasion both men drove the green, Travers twelve feet from the pin and Hilton seven feet away. Travers holed his putt and Hilton missed by an inch. The hole is a matter of 175 yards, and par is 3. Going to the ninth hole, Travers sliced his drive, but avoided trouble. Hilton's drive was straight. Both second shots were clean. Hilton pitched twenty feet over the hole, while Travers went over twenty feet. Hilton missed his putt and half stymied his opponent, but the Montclair lad holed and won, 5 to 6. Hilton was then 1 up.

Another outburst of vocal appreciation for the effective work of the metropolitan champion was elicited at the tenth hole, when, after falling short in his approach, he brought off a wonderful recovery and halved the hole in 4. At the thirteenth a groan went up from the gallery as the American lost a chance to square the match. He missed a six-foot putt. Hilton made one of five feet, and the American, instead of squaring the match, halved the hole, leaving Hilton 1 up. The drives to the fourteenth were not six feet apart. Hilton carried far up the hill over the brook with the shot, while Travers was well behind with an iron. Travers played his next shot short while Hilton overran the green. Travers on his chip shot was six feet wide, while Hilton was a foot nearer the hole. Travers missed and Hilton holed and became 2 up.

Mild applause of a knot of the spectators around the fifteenth green announced that Hilton had played his approach shot within six inches of the cup. It was like the death knell for America's hope. Travers was over the green, and after making a stab with his third gave up. Hilton was then dormie, 3 up. A halve in four at the sixteenth made the Briton the winner by 3 up and 2 to play. The cards follow:

WARD 138 MILES NEARER PACIFIC

Flier, Seeking to Reach San Francisco, Lands at Callicoon Late in the Afternoon.

HE WILL FLY ON TO-DAY

Fowler, Wrecked on Way from Pacific, Will Not Resume Eastward Flight Till Sunday.

SUSQUEHANNA, Penn., Sept. 14.—James J. Ward, who left New York for San Francisco Wednesday, flying for the W. R. Hearst $50,000 prize for a transcontinental flight, reached Callicoon, N. Y., a few miles from here, at 4:35 o'clock this afternoon. He covered 59 1-10 miles in 57 minutes, having left Middletown, N. Y., at 3:38 o'clock. The total distance covered from New York so far is 138 miles. The airman lost his way after his start from Governors Island yesterday, and, though he flew far in zigzags, got no nearer the Pacific than Paterson, N. J.

Ward will start again on his long journey early to-morrow morning. He plans to make his first stopping place to-morrow Owego, N. Y., which is about 90 miles from Calicoon as the aviator flies. He expects to pass over Binghamton about midday.

As soon as Ward got his machine tied up for the night he hurried to the railroad station to inquire about Fowler, who is trying to fly East from the Pacific for the same prize. He seemed surprised when told that the latter had not left Colfax.

Ward started from Paterson, N. J., this morning, and was in the air only a minute when he had to come down on account of engine trouble. At 9:20 he took to the air again and flew 20 miles to Sloatsburg, N. Y., coming down at 9:46 to get his bearings. He went up again, but after a few miles had to come to earth to fix his engine, near Middletown, N. Y. After lunching he went on to Calicoon. He said that aside from engine trouble his machine was working well.

From Middletown to Calicoon his engine, which had caused him so much trouble in the morning, worked well, and he reeled off mile after mile at a mile a minute and better.

Hundreds of people on the hills, on tops of buildings and other points of vantage, watched the sky for the airman, who followed the mountains and kept usually about 500 feet from the ground. Ward made a turn southeast of Port Jervis, and then took a westerly course. The day being perfect, he could be plainly seen as he passed the Erie station and he leaned forward and waved to people who loudly cheered him. At Calicoon, Ward found it necessary to descend because his gasoline had run out.

Ward's wife, who spent a great part of yesterday trying to reach her husband on his zigzag course, reached Paterson this morning in time to see the airman's start from that place.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, Cal., Sept. 14.—Robert G. Fowler, who started from San Francisco Sept. 11, hoping to win the Hearst fifty-thousand-dollar prize for an aeroplane flight across the continent by flying to New York, but wrecked his machine in the Sierras Tuesday, announced that he would be ready to resume his journey next Sunday morning. With the arrival of extra parts of his aeroplane from Reno to-day, Fowler began in earnest his task of reconstruction, and, with the assistance of half a dozen mechanics, had made such progress that he expected to be able to make some trial flights to-morrow, in order to adjust his machine.

The damage to the aeroplane is slighter than was at first supposed, and it was only necessary to replace the broken wings and repair some of the braces, after which the machine will, it is said, be as good as ever. The motor escaped damage entirely, as far as could be ascertained without the actual test of a flight. Fowler has been studying the effects of air currents in high altitudes, and he feels sure that he will have little difficulty in crossing the mountains.

AVIATOR FATALLY HURT.

ALBION, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Frank Paine, an aviator from Wilkesbarre, Penn., was fatally injured this evennig in making a flight from the Orleans County Fair grounds. Five thousand persons witnessed the accident.

Paine made his first run across the field without developing speed enough to rise. The biplane was then wheeled back into position for a second attempt. After speeding over the rough ground for about 300 feet Paine turned the machine upward. He had not ascended over thirty feet when he suddenly stopped the engine, with the evident intention of descending, when the aeroplane turned turtle and crashed to the ground.

Paine was pined under the machine, which was a mass of wreckage. He was unconscious and breathing slowly when released, and his head was covered with blood. An ambulance was sent for and he was removed to a hospital.

The wind was quiet at the time. Paine has not regained consciousness.

FLIGHTS AT BRIGHTON.

George W. Beatty Makes Three Trials—Grahame-White to Fly Saturday and Sunday.

George W. Beatty was the only aviator in sight yesterday at the Brighton Beach racetrack, from which flights had been scheduled. There were probably seventy persons on the ground when Beatty ventured in the air with his Wright biplane. He made three flights, and at no time did he go higher than 300 feet. On his first attempt he went up alone, in order to test the air currents. In his second and third trials he had a passenger with him.

Mr. W. B. Davis, 116 Nassau Street, New York.

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of even date, and to notify you that I accept the terms of the proposition therein contained.

I am arranging to have one of my monoplanes in readiness to fly by 2 P. M., on Saturday afternoon next, at Brighton Beach Race Track.

I do not think it will be possible to have my Nieuport monoplane repaired in time, and should this be impossible, I will fly in the "Grahame-White Baby," a new type of machine not yet seen in this country.

AERIAL RACE MEET.

Timothy L. Woodruff, in outlining the plans of the aerial race meet to be held at Nassau Boulevard Sept. 23 to Oct. 1, said yesterday that the New York Aero Club has laid out its aerodrome, the first air track ever constructed, and that the first meet will consist of almost entirely real speed contests.

There will be nine days of racing, beginning daily at 3:30 P. M., except on Saturdays and Sundays, when the first event will be started at 3 o'clock.

Besides Grahame-White, Sopwith, Ovington, Beachey, Ely, and Atwood of the more prominent aerial artists, Mme. Detrieux will be here to take part either as a contestant or an exhibitor. Mme. Detrieux is willing to race against any feminine aviator that can be induced to try conclusions with her.

The ex-Lieutenant Governor, who is personally conducting this meet, has some ideas of his own that he intends to put into practice in working out the details of the nine-day event, and besides new departures in the way of pylons and other physical features of the meet he insists that the various contests shall come off inside the limits of the aerodrome. Even the cross-country races, besides starting and finishing in front of the grand stand, will be laid out in their courses so that the contestants will be compelled to fly across the grounds a number of times in the progress of the races.

The aerial track is over a mile long and without any sharp turns, and most of the events will be contested around this course.

The professional events will be divided into sped races, including handicap events, in which the handicaps will be determined on the basis of the construction of the planes. Then there will be passenger and weight carrying contests and cross-country flights, all of which will be for money prizes. There will also be a number of amateur events, as at the present time there are about forty craft in the thirty-one hangars of the aerodrome.

Lieut. Towers Wins Pilot's License.

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Lieut. J. H. Towers, U. S. N., the second naval officer to receive his aviation training at the Curtiss Aviation School here, won his pilot's license to-day by flying over Lake Keuka. He used the new eight-cylinder Curtiss navy hydro-aeroplane, and handled the machine with exceptional skill in a strong wind that would have taxed the ingenuity of the most skillful aviator.

YOUNG NITCHIE WINS FAST SLUGGING BOUT

Frank Loughery Outpointed in Ten Rounds of Fighting at the National S. C.

Young Nitchie and Frank Loughery, near-welterweights from Philadelpnia, slugged each other through ten interesting rounds at the National Sporting Club last night, and when the final bell sounded the bulk of the evening's honors rested with Nitchie. The contest was a return affair, the pair having clashed at the same club about two months ago in a sensational ten-round draw.

Both boys showed strong punching ability last night, and each seemed to be equipped with an iron jaw. Punches that ordinarily put boxers of their weight to the canvas, or even knock them out, bounded off their respective jaws last night as if bounding off a stationary iron pillar. Nitchie had a shade on Loughery in the ability to take punches without wincing. He repeatedly paid no attention to the defensive end of the game and left his jaw exposed so as to draw punches from his opponent, and while Loughery was swinging at the unguarded spot Nitchie proceeded to tear in with terrific body punches, allowing Loughery's right and left jabs to land on his jaw and bound off.

It was on body punches that Nitchie gained the advantage. He did no better work in the open fighting than his opponent, the latter showing a strong enough guard to escape a big portion of Nitchie's swings to the head, but Nitchie was strong with his wallops to the stomach and ribs. He doubled Loughery up repeatedly with these hard blows and did most of the forcing, even though he had to take considerable punishment to follow up this style of attack.

Loughery started off strongly and outboxed Nitchie in the first and second rounds. Loughery used both hands to good effect on Nitchie's jaw in the first round. The second session was a slugging affair with a great finish, and Loughery was the leader. In the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh rounds Nitchie forced the fighting and landed the hardest blows, forcing Loughery to give ground repeatedly. In the eighth Loughery came back and set the pace all the way, easily outboxing Nitchie. The ninth, which was another slugging session, belonged to Loughery by a shade, but Nitchie came back again in the tenth and finished up with a fair lead. There were no knockdowns and neither was in distress at any time.

The other ten-round bout brought together Young Cohen, an English featherweight in his first American bout, and Young Mitchell of Philadelphia. Cohen was more clever than Mitchell, and led in most of the rounds, but his margin of victory was slight. Mitchell showed considerable cleverness and enough aggressiveness to make the bout interesting all the way. In the first round each scored a knockdown, and in the eighth Mitchell again dropped Cohen with a right swing to the jaw. Both boys were strong at the finish.

MORRIS AND FLYNN IN RING.

Aspirants for Heavyweight Title Will Box Ten Rounds at Garden To-night.

The long-talked-of boxing contest between Carl Morris, the Oklahoma giant, who is heralded as the possible successor to Jack Johnson's title, and Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, who sprang into prominence recently by a victory over Al Kaufman, is to take place to-night at Madison Square Garden. Not since the days when all the world's greatest ring heroes battled for honor in New York has a contest between heavyweights created so much interest in the sporting world.

The articles for the match call for a ten-round "no decision" contest, the men to wear five-ounce gloves and to box straight Marquis of Queensberry rules, one hand free, protect themselves at all times. Charlie White has been selected to be the third man in the ring. Capt. Charles Dieges will be the official timekeeper for the club.

Morris, who has been training at Jimmy De Forest's camp at Allenhurst, N. J., came into town last night. Flynn has been training for the match at Johnson's Road House, up in Jerome Avenue, and will remain there until time to go to the big arena.

Morris's history and a review of his ring engagements show him to be [illegible] above the ordinary. He has engaged in seven contests in his short ring career, and won them all inside of six rounds by the knockout route. While none of the men he defeated stood in the first rank, he has done everything, and more, that has been asked of him. Morris is 24 years old and was born in Kentucky. He was a soldier in the Philippines, and during the thirty months' campaign there took part in eighteen battles, and it was there that he developed his boxing ability, as he beat every one of the army's glove champions.

Flynn has been boxing for the last ten years and has fought every great pugilist of his time, including Jack Johnson, but has been regarded as something of an "in and outer," as he has lost and won from the same men, Sam Langford and Al Kaufman being two notable cases. He is a sturdy, strong, rushing, bulldog sort of fighter, much on the style of Tom Sharkey. He will enter the ring weighing about 180 pounds, while Morris will tip the scales close to 230 pounds.

Following are the measurements of the two men:

Morris.	Measurements.	Flynn.
24 years	Age	29 years
230 pounds	Weight	185 pounds
42 inches	Chest (normal)	40 inches
47 inches	Chest (expanded)	44 inches
36 inches	Waist	35½ inches
80 inches	Reach	69 inches
17½ inches	Neck	17 inches
26 inches	Thigh	23 inches
16½ inches	Calf	16 inches

George McDonald Trying to Make Match for Madison Square Garden.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 14.—George McDonald, manager of Matt Wells, joined the colony of boxing managers and promoters here to-day and is after Ad Wolgast to box Matt Wells at Madison Square Garden in New York. Wolgast is agreeable, and Manager Tom Jones says he will talk business with McDonald also for a bout with McFarland. McDonald may consider a New Orleans match also.

Jim Flynn wired Hugh McIntosh's representative here to-day that he would not make the Australian trip, as he will get married at Christmas.

Tom O'Rourke of New York to-night wired the Milwaukee Sentinel offering a $20,000 purse for a contest between Wolgast and McFarland.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 14.—Following the calling off of the ten-round fight between Lightweight Champion Wolgast and Packey McFarland, scheduled for this city to-morrow night, it is believed an effort will be made to stage the bout on the Pacific Coast or in New York.

The promoters of the contest did not give up hope that the fight could be given as planned until after the conference late last night between Acting Gov. Morris, District Attorney Zabel, Sheriff Arnold of Milwaukee County, and the promoters and their attorneys. The officials were firm in their stand that the fight would be a violation of the law and would not be permitted.

Wolgast's manager, Thomas Jones, said to-day that offers for the fight had been received from several cities. About $30,000 worth of tickets had been sold, and this will be refunded to purchasers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Packey McFarland was greatly disappointed to-day when he learned that the bout with Wolgast had been declared off by Promoter Mulkern.

"Five weeks of the hardest training I ever did in my life gone to waste," said McFarland. "I have worked harder for the Wolgast fight than I ever did before. Now, I suppose, I will have to begin all over again, even if Wolgast will meet me. I hardly think it possible, however, that Wolgast will sign up again with me. Now that we can't fight in Milwaukee, I would like to take the fight to New York. We could get a $75,000 crowd there."

McFarland to Box Here.

William Gibson, President of the Fairmont A. C. of this city, who went to Milwaukee a few days ago in the expectation of seeing the bout between Champion Ad Wolgast and Packey McFarland, has signed up the Chicago boy for two bouts at the Bronx clubhouse in the near future. It is not difinitely known as yet who will be McFarland's opponents. In a telegram received here last night Mr. Gibson stated that everybody in Milwaukee is talking fight and there seems to be widespread disappointment over the action of the authorities in preventing the bout. Mr. Gibson further stated that McFarland was in shape to put up the best battle of his life.

Boxing at Coney Island.

The second show of the Mardi Gras boxing carnival takes place to-night at the Johnstown Flood Building, Surf Avenue and West Seventeenth Street, Coney Island, under the auspices of the Brighton Beach Athletic Club. The main attraction for this show will bring together Young Ahearn, the Brooklyn dancing master, and Eddie Mack of Brooklyn. The rivalry existing between these two boys should furnish a very exciting and interesting contest. Eddie Mack, who is finishing his training at Bath Beach, is confident that he will outpoint the elusive Ahearn. The main event will be preceded by a semi-final of six rounds and three other four-round bouts between evenly matched boys.

F. J. GOULD'S YACHT LOSES $5,000 RACE

A. E. Smith's Little Motor Boat Hazel Beats Helenita in 68-Knot Event.

NOVEL BET OF YACHTSMEN

Mr. Gould Contended That Hydroplane Could Not Run Distance Without Breaking Down—Course Laid Out on Sound.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Sept. 14.—Hazel, the little sixteen-foot hydroplane, owned by A. E. Smith, triumphed over Frank J. Gould's steam yacht Helenita this afternoon in the novel race from Huntington, L. I., to New London, a distance of sixty-eight knots, for a side bet of $5,000. The diminutive motor boat reached the end of her journey at 4:53 o'clock, exactly two hours and fifty-three minutes after the getaway, finishing with an average of twenty-seven miles per hour. When the Hazel crossed the finish line the Helenita was nowhere in sight, and it was almost an hour later before the 185-foot steam yacht came into view. She finished three hours and forty minutes and twenty seconds after the start.

At no time during the race did the big yacht threaten to take the lead. The Hazel jumped ahead in Huntington Bay, and from the starting gun to the finish of the race the hydroplane continued to widen the gap between her and Gould's yacht. She kept up the same steady pace all the way. Her engine worked perfectly, and the choppy sea failed to hamper her as she traveled along at almost top speed. An average of twenty-eight miles an hour is her speed under ordinary conditions, and to-day she made the trip with an average of one mile less per hour.

"This has been the greatest race I was ever up against," said Mr. Smith, "and I have just been mixed up in some fast events at the international races at Huntington.

"We ran into a school of porpoises soon after leaving the Helenita astern outside Huntington Harbor, and just after having congratulated ourselves on not having cut some of these big tumblers in two we came within an ace of sending the Hazel to 'Davy Jones's locker' when we passed a big floating plank that escaped us by only eighteen inches."

About twenty gallons of gasoline were burned by the Hazel, and three gallons of high-grade oil was fed to the intricate mechanism during the entire trip.

The Hazel was hoisted aboard the Helenita, and Messrs. Smith and Chase were Mr. Gould's guests on the latter's yacht to-night. To-morrow the Helenita will leave for New York.

Aboard the Helenita, which anchored off the New York Yacht Club station after her arrival, were Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Gould, Mrs. Gould's two sisters, the Misses Kelly; Henry R. Sutphen, Capt. John M. Shaw, and Henry L. Yates.

Aboard the Helenita, Mr. Gould, Capt. Gunner, all hands, and the cook were in high glee at the yacht's fine showing on the race down Long Island Sound. Ten years old, no time for "grooming," having three green firemen on account of the regular stokers taking a notion to have their belated Summer vacation, the Helenita came into port at a speed that sent waves ashore, causing consternation to small boat owners.

First Assistant Engineer H. W. Parker was pressed into service as a fireman, and the way he shoveled coal into the Helenita's furnaces on her run across the Sound made the greenhorns aboard wish they had taken their first lessons in a school of correspondence for shovelers.

The Helenita averaged a little better than eighteen knots on the run from Huntington, or, in statute land miles, twenty and one-half miles.

The race was the outcome of a discussion between Mr. Gould and Mr. Smith at Huntington, L. I., last Sunday. In discussing the merits of the hydroplane, Mr. Gould stated that it would be impossible for such a craft to go any great distance without breaking down. Mr. Smith held a different opinion, and the argument was concluded with a challenge by Mr. Smith to race his hydroplane against Gould's Helenita, a steam yacht measuring 185 feet in length, credited with a speed of twenty-five miles an hour. The offer was promptly accepted, and a side bet of $5,000 agreed upon. It was planned to send the two boats away immediately, and they were brought to the starting line, but the main drive chain of the Hazel broke just at the start and the race had to be called off. Mr. Smith acknowledged defeat, but Mr. Gould refused to consider it, stating that it was not a proper test. It was then agreed to send the two boats away this afternoon.

The start was made from Huntington Bay this afternoon at 2 o'clock, the starting point being the same as in the recent international motor boat race, just off the buoy in the bay. Many small boats and a few yachts were on hand, and about 200 persons witnessed the getaway from the various craft. Only a few spectators were on the adjacent shore to see the start.

A. E. Smith, owner of the Hazel, was at the wheel of his hydroplane, and the only other occupant of the boat was Irvin Chase, who had charge of the engine. Both were stiff from cold and exposure to the wind on their arrival here.

The water was very rough at the time the start was made, due to a stiff northwesterly wind, and it was feared that this would handicap the little sixteen-foot hydroplane. But to all appearances the Hazel was equal to the task, and until she passed out of view she cut through the rough water without any ill effects. She jumped to the lead as soon as the starting signal was heard, and steadily increased the distance between her stern and the Helenita's bow until both passed out of view. As the Hazel passed out through the entrance of the bay she was at least one-half mile in advance of the Helenita.

The Hazel is a replica of a larger boat that is being built by the Elco Electric Boat Company of Bayonne, and when completed will be sent to Monte Carlo in April to compete in the international motor boat races. Mr. Smith intended christening this new boat Yankee, but owng to a strike in progress at the motor boat works decided the name Yankee was a hoodoo, and has chosen Columbia for the title of the coming racer, which is expected to reel off about forty miles an hour.

Reliance Wins Motor Boat Race.

BUFFALO, Sept. 14.—The second annual power boat meet of the Motorboat Club of Buffalo began to-day on the Niagara River with a 32-foot class race for the Edward H. Butler Trophy. The event was won by the Reliance IV., owned by J. J. Ryan of Cincinnati. The Latruda, owned by H. T. Vars of Buffalo, was second. The winner went over the course at the rate of thirty-two miles an hour. She is a 26-foot hydroplane, equipped with a 90 horse power engine.

To-morrow's event, which will be for the championship of the United States, will be one of the biggest of the meet, the competitors being the Dixie IV. of New York, Disturber II. of Chicago, the Gretchen II. of Pittsburgh, the Reliance of Cincinnati, the Courier III., Latruda II. and Dolphin II. of Buffalo, and the Eph IX. of Indianapolis. Saturday's event will be for the international inter-lake championship. Summary of to-day's race:

SOPRANO'S MADDEN STAKE.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Soprano, 2:03¾, won the Madden sweepstakes, the feature event of to-day's Grand Circuit racing, defeating Hallworthy, 2:05¼. It took five heats to decide which of the trotters would get the greater share of the $4,200 stake, and the race furnished 35,000 spectators with plenty of excitement.

Soprano, driven by Billy Andrews, was an easy winner of the first heat, Hallworthy breaking in the stretch. A hair-raising drive by Geers in the stretch, the last quarter being trotted in 0:29¾, won the second heat for Hallworthy. In the third heat the Geers bay gelding was never headed.

Geers was unable to keep his entry steady in the next two heats and the son of Bellini-Operatta raced to the wire first in each of them. Geers made valiant efforts to overcome lost ground, due to breaks, but the lead was too much.

The league challenge cup for amateur drivers in the intercity matinée was won by Ernest I. White of Syracuse, with Wataga.

The free-for-all trot went to Doctor Treg, owned by R. H. Boggs of Pittsburgh, Penn., and the 2:11 gold cup event to Foxey Boy, owned by S. A. Pickering of Pittsburgh. Eva Cord, owned by F. G. Jones of Cleveland, Ohio, won the 2:24 trot, which was the fastest race ever held in this class. Former Gov. Horace White of Syracuse won the trophy in the 2:15 trot with Myrtle Garnett. NO WIRES TO RACE TRACK.

Kentucky Racing Association Strikes Blow at Pool Rooms.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 14.—At a meeting of the State Racing Commission to-day it was decided not to permit any racing news to be sent from the local track. All the telegraph and telephone wires were ordered removed and the messenger service stopped. The commission declared that the action taken was to prevent pool rooms from obtaining information. The offer of a telegraph company to allow the commission to appoint a censor and station him in the telegraph office and to delay all dispatches twenty minutes was turned down.

Another important action taken by the commission was the formal adoption of a rule stopping the selling of auction pools on tracks in Kentucky. This rule was discussed thirty days ago, but was laid over until to-day.

Haworth Club's Field Day.

A unique field day has been arranged for the Haworth Club at Haworth, N. J., to-morrow. The object is to celebrate the success of the club and the rapid increase in membership since the acquirement of an eighteen-hole course and additional tennis courts, and the opening of a new building for lockers and dormitories.

Besides track contests the day's events will include tent shows, raffles, a tea-room, and various booths.

An open event for high school relay teams is arousing interest throughout New Jersey, as considerable rivalry is felt between a number of teams, besides the uncertainty as to what entries from New York and other sections may show. The prize for this will be a banner, presented by F. S. E. Gunnell, President of the club. There will be other races, open to all—three-legged races, potato races, and a baseball game.

Johnson-Wells Fight to Go On.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The Directors of Earl's Court, which is controlled by the American amusement promoter, Calvin Brown, decided to-day to allow the Johnson-Wells fight to take place, having been advised that the holding of the contest will not conflict with the terms of their license. The Church, army, and other religious bodies have petitioned the County Counsel to prohibit the fight.

New Jersey State Tennis.

Mrs. Marshall McLean won her place in the final round of the women's lawn tennis singles in the New Jersey State championship tournament yesterday by defeating Miss Marie Wagner, the playing through title holder, at 6—4, 6—3. In the lower section of the same event Miss Elizabeth C. Bunce secured her place in the final by defeating Miss Ina A. Kissel, 6—2, 6—3.

The women's doubles went along with a rush with the result that Miss Wagner and Miss Bunce arrived in the final round in the lower half. In coming through they disposed of Miss Allita Emery and Miss Hurlburt in two sets to the score of 6—love and 6—1.

C. K. F. Andrewes, the English expert who recently appeared at Newport in the All-Comers; James S. Cushman of the West Side Club, and W. C. Grant arrived in the semi-final round of the men's singles. YALE MEN ON GRIDIRON

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 14.—Yale ushered in the football practice season to-day with a record-breaking squad of players and coaches and weather that made record-breaking drill possible for the opening day. Nearly four hours were spent on Yale Field, morning and afternoon work being ordered. The squad numbered thirty this morning, and jumped to fifty in the afternoon. All the 'Varsity veterans except Scully were present this afternoon, and he arrived to-night. Cooney, centre, is the only member of the strong eleven of the freshmen last year who has not reported. Cooler weather than ever before at the beginning of practice greeted the players, although no strenuous activity was attempted.

Head Coach Field said to-night that finish of detail was aimed at, and the drill in rudimentary play will be exact and constant all the season. Not even a signal line-up or team play of any kind was approached. The coaches are inclined to let scrimmaging wait until later in the practice season than usual. Morris alone of the coaches was not present. Walter Camp, head of the coaching system, reported for the first time in many years on opening day. Head Field Coach Field, Springer Brooks, and Dr. Arthur Brides of the resident staff were here, and they, with Jack Owsley, formerly head coach, directed the work. Brides began the task of finding a snap-back, one of the main problems of the season. Ketcham of the freshmen last year, Read and Bronson, 'Varsity substitutes last season, were tried. Foss, freshman Captain last season; Dunn, also of the freshmen, and Capt. Howe were used as quarter backs. Dunn may be held up temporarily by scholarship technicalities.

Brooks took up the problem of turning out two new end rushes. Warren, a freshman guard, and Gallauer and Harbison, the freshmen ends of last season; Bomeisler, and Walter Camp, Jr., were tried on the wings to-day. McDevitt and Paul, guards, were on hand and in the back field. Philbin, Baker, Waters, Reilly, and Freeman were used. Baker, who was shelved oftener than any one else last year, reported with an injured hand.

Word has been received from ex-Capt. Shevlin in St. Paul that he will be here to-morrow to spend two or three days with the squad.

West Point's Schedule Light.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The West Point schedule of football games this year is the lightest the cadets have arranged for some time. Of the eight games listed Yale and the Navy are the only two big games on the Army schedule. The soldiers were disappointed in not arranging their annual game with Harvard, and owing to the lateness of Harvard's decision not to come to West Point this Fall the soldiers were unable to fill the date reserved with another big team. An effort was made to secure either Michigan or Dartmouth, but both teams had their schedules filled. Georgetown will make its initial appearance on the West Point gridiron Nov. 4, and the first game will be with the University of Vermont, Oct. 7. The West Point team has secured the services of Harry Tuthill of the Detroit Americans to train them this season in place of James Temple, who has resigned. The schedule of games to be played on the West Point grounds follows: Oct. 7—Vermont University; Oct. 14—Rutgers; Oct. 21—Yale; Oct. 28—Lehigh; Nov. 4—Georgetown; Nov. 11—Bucknell, and Nov. 18—Colgate.

Pennsy's First Football Drill.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—More than a score of candidates for the University of Pennsylvania football team reported for the first practice of the season to-day at Franklin Field. Capt. Mercer and Dillon were the only members of last year's 'Varsity to don their togs, but a number of last year's freshmen were on hand and made an excellent impression. W. Crawford, a former University of Minnesota guard, is a formidable candidate for one of the tackle positions, while Minds, Barr, and Marshall seem assured of positions in the back field. Head Coach "Andy" Smith was assisted by Miller, Gaston, Mulford, Ziegler, Scarlett, and Torrey of former teams in instructing the candidates in the fundamentals.

King and Ballin Coaching Tigers.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 14.—With the advent of Phil King, '94, and Cy Ballin, '04 as the most recent additions to Princeton's coaching staff, the Tiger football squad went at things strenuously to-day. Bill Roper is general supervisor of the team and Alec MacGregor '11, goes after the linemen. Immediately after their arrival here this afternoon King and Ballin respectively took the backs and ends under their coaching direction. Two practices a day will be in order on Osborn Field until the opening of college next Thursday. Snappy formation drills without signals were in order to-day and there was a noticeable lack of the open play. Farr, a recruit, seemed to know his business at quarter back and Sawyer, Vaughn, and Pendleton, made a speedy trio in the backfield.

Conservative Investment

THERE is no greater incentive towards thrift and economy than that induced by conservative investment. It is a mistake to imagine, however, that conservative investment is to be determined by surface conditions alone. Margin of safety, stability of earnings, marketability, interest rates and other important factors all have a bearing upon safe and profitable investment.

Stability of Earnings

The operation of several Public Utility corporations by a single management reduces the operating cost because of the numerous economies that can be effected. This means larger and more stable net earnings than could be secured were the same properties operated separately. It also insures better service to the community in which they operate.

With stability of earnings assured and ample property back of the bonds of such corporations, the only other element desired is a satisfactory return on the investment, and this is supplied in the high-grade bonds of Public Utility corporations that we control and operate and the bonds of which we offer to conservative investors.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

SOME FOREIGN BUYING HERE

But Liquidation from Abroad Was Still Under Way—No Trouble at London Settlement.

Trading in stocks was more active yesterday than on any day since Aug. 16. That, too, was a day of heavy declines in the stock market, which much resembled yesterday's session on the Stock Exchange, with this difference, however, that there was much more rebound from the low prices yesterday than occurred on the similar day of heavy trading a month ago. In the interval prices had fallen considerably, and as lower levels are reached it is natural that the ability of the market to recover from periods of acute depression should increase. Yesterday's up-turn from the early declines (no less than fifty-eight new low prices for the year were recorded) was sufficient to wipe out most or all of the declines in a number of the active stocks and to bring actual net gains in a few. Less active issues in many instances ended the day with large net declines. Gains of 1¾ points in Missouri Pacific and 1⅛ points in St. Paul were the largest of the gains made by the active stocks. Union Pacific closed unchanged, and United States Steel at a net loss of ⅝. Europe was again a seller of stocks at the opening of our market, but it was noted that the pressure of these sales from Berlin was much less pronounced. Partially offsetting the foreign selling of American stocks were purchases made in behalf of substantial foreign interests. Here, too, buying by people of large means assumed sufficient volume to attrace attention in some banking quarters, although in others equally well informed the day's experience created the impression that a large amount of long stock had come upon the market during the day. The extravagance of bear rumors which were freely circulated yesterday morning pointed directly to the conclusion that bear operators were resorting to this means to increase the unsettlement of the market. If such, indeed, were the case the sharp rebound which took place in the afternoon was a fitting sequel to such unprincipled tactics.

Nothing occurred to increase the uneasiness over the European situation, for the pressure of foreign sales was to some extent relaxed, and the private cables reported an easier tone in London discounts with no change in the rates at Paris and Berlin. The weekly statement of the Bank of England showed an increase of over $5,000,000 in the gold holdings of the bank, which have been brought up to a record figure for this season. The percentage of reserve was maintained at the high figure of 58.10, reported a week ago. The statement of the Bank of France, instead of showing a strengthened position as a result of the gathering in of French funds from abroad, reported a decrease of $3,400,000 in gold holdings, while the bank's circulation increased by $8,000,000, and its bills discounted by $20,000,000. The London settlement was concluded without embarrassment, although the cables reported the belief in London that this had been accomplished only by the extension of help to some who held weak positions. This contained a suggestion of further probable liquidation for foreign account, but the fact that at least some foreign buying was induced by the further decline in American stocks yesterday indicates a lessening of the tension abroad, which in turn holds at least the promise that the pressure upon the New York market from abroad will become less and less urgent. Some of the substantial interests which purchased stocks yesterday did so on the ground that irrespective of the possibility of still further declines purchases for investment were warranted, and this even on the assumption that coming months may bring a fulfillment of some of the current predictions of decreased dividends. It was partially this sort of support which brought about the recovery from the day's law prices, though short covering may well have accounted for a larger share of the afternoon buying.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Two things particularly operated to turn the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange and stimulate a heavy short covering movement, which continued until the close. One was a report, which reached the floor in the early afternoon, that banking interests had taken over privately a large weakened account which had been overhanging the market; the other advices, via Paris, that indications were more pointed to an early peaceful settlement of the Moroccan difficulty. In the forenoon liquidation again swept prices downward. The decline to new low records for the year was accompanied by trouble rumors, some of which were of such a character that they were discredited even by the bears. At the lowest levels, however, short covering was a feature. It imparted relative firmness to prices compared with the New York Stock Exchange range of quotations.

CONFER ON REORGANIZATION.

Tobacco Trust Conferrees Say More Time May Be Needed—Have No Plan.

A fourth conference of representatives of the Federal Government and American Tobacco Company was held yesterday in Judge Noyes's chambers to discuss the company's plan for dissolution, as required by the Supreme Court. While some details were settled at this meeting it was said by some of the conferrees leaving the Federal building that a final agreement appeared to be still far off, and it may become necessary to ask for an extension of the six months allowed the company in which to reorganize.

Lawyers who attended yesterday's meeting were non-committal as to the points in dispute, and the probable terms of the plan under discussion. It was said by one that the Tobacco Company had not offered a rounded-out plan, but had submitted its proposals in a general form for discussion. It is understood that Attorney General Wickersham let it be known that the reorganized companies will be kept under Government supervision to see that the spirit as well as the letter of the decision is obeyed.

Judges Ward, Lacombe, and Noyes of the United States Circuit Court participated in the conference. The Tobacco interests were represented by James B. Duke, President of the American Tobacco Company, and W. W. Fuller, Junius Parker, De Lancey Nicoll, and Lewis Cass Ledyard, counsel; S. M. Stroock, counsel for the United Cigar Stores Company; Charles R. Carruth, counsel for the R. B. Richardson & Sons Company, Inc., and W. W. Miller, counsel for the Imperial Tobacco Company of England. Attorney General Wickersham and James C. McReynolds, appeared for the Government. Solicitor General Lehman also was present for a few moments, having called to see Mr. Wickersham on another matter.

A committee of five, who said they represented the Independent Retail Tobacco Association, called upon Mr. Wickersham to complain that the American Tobacco Company has not been living up to the rules laid down by the court. The Attorney General said he was too busy to hear their protest, but would meet them after the next conference in the Federal Building on Sept. 25.

CLOVER LEAF OUTLOOK GOOD

It Makes Connections with the Erie and the Chesapeake & Ohio.

After a meeting of Directors of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western yesterday, at which the regular preferred dividend was declared, President T. P. Shonts said that traffic arrangements had been made with the Erie by which all Erie business from Ohio Junction to St. Louis, which formerly moved over the Wabash will in future go to the Clover Leaf. A similar arrangement with the Chesapeake & Ohio will secure business from Marion, Ohio, to St. Louis, which formerly went to the Big Four.

The Clover Leaf has not earned a surplus sufficient for the payment of its preferred dividend, but President Shonts said that the Directors felt justified in making up the deficiency out of surplus, in view of the favorable outlook for future business.

American Stocks Return.

No accurate estimate can be made of the amount of stocks which are being returned to this market from abroad, but the receipts by incoming steamers bear witness to the fact that Europe has sold a very large amount of American stocks which it had previously purchased either for investment or speculation. It was noted in respect to yesterday's selling from abroad that the orders indicated less urgency on the part of those who were liquidating their American holdings. A larger proportion of the orders, it was said, were at prices above the market, showing that the sellers were less inclined than on most recent days to accept whatever prices might be current in the New York market when the orders reached this side. Canadian Pacific is one of the stocks which Germany has been selling heavily, but yesterday there were said to be fewer offerings of this stock from abroad. The sales included a number of the active international issues, with some smaller blocks of Western Maryland.

Decline in New Haven Issues.

When ten shares of Boston & Maine stock sold in Boston at 99⅝ on Wednesday, it was the first time in thirty-three years that this issue, long regarded as a safe investment for what is popularly called the widow and orphan class, had sold below par. At about the time that a statement from President Mellen, in which he said that the New Haven would earn its 8 per cent. in the current year, was appearing on the tickers yesterday, the shares of that company were breaking a record of even longer standing than that of its subsidiary. A sale at 126⅞ was at the lowest point touched in thirty-seven years. In January, 1874, New Haven sold down to 122, although the stock was then on a 10 per cent. basis. At the worst stage of the panic of 1907 the bottom price for New Haven was one-half point above yesterday's low. The highest price ever reached by the company's shares was 271, in February, 1891. The New Haven has maintained a remarkable dividend record. It has not paid less than 8 per cent. in any year since 1873. The present rate has been adhered to for sixteen years.

Willard to Stay with B. & O.

When it was erroneously reported that Charles S. Mellen was to resign as head of the New Haven system, some of the newspapers proceeded to elect Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio, to succeed him. When Mr. Mellen recalled the statement put out by his press agent it was reported that Mr. Willard was to become a Director and perhaps Vice President of the New Haven system. In denying these stories yesterday, Mr. Willard took occasion to say that even such a flattering offer as that which was reported to have been made him by the New Haven would not tempt him to leave the Baltimore & Ohio. "I like the Baltimore & Ohio, and am going to stay with it," he said.

Fifty-eight Low Records.

In yesterday's market, in which the total of 885,642 shares made the largest day's trading since Aug. 16, fifty-eight stocks made new low records. This is just about 40 per cent. of the total number of issues that appeared on the tape. Practically all of the market leaders were included. United States Steel common sold down to 65¼, Union Pacific down to 157¼, Reading to 136, New York Central to 100¼, Pennsylvania to 118⅛, New Haven to 126⅞, Lehigh Valley to 151, American Smelting and Refining to 66½, St. Paul to 110, and Amalgamated to 54½. Southern Pacific, whose low was 105⅝, and Canadian Pacific, whose low was 219½, were still above the lowest levels of the year.

Deutsche Bank a Lender.

Denials have come from both ends of the story that the Société Générale of Paris had refused to renew a large loan to the Deutsche Bank of Berlin. Supplementing the French institution's denial that such a loan as that referred to had existed, the German bank made the statement reported by cable yesterday, that far from having accommodations refused by the Paris bankers, it was itself maintaining important short-term credits abroad.

Van Schaick Liquidation.

Although the exact amount could not be learned yesterday, it was stated by the assignee of the failed Stock Exchange house of Van Schaick & Co. that there had been continuous liquidation of the firm's bank loans since the assignment on Tuesday. The loans were put at $2,500,000, with the securities behind them roughly placed at $3,500,000.

Standard Oil Contracts.

Trading in Standard Oil "old" stock, carrying all the rights to the distribution of the subsidiaries in December and dividends, necessitated the framing of careful contracts by the specialist to insure protection of the purchaser. To dissipate the inference drawn that the contracts were in some way obligatory on the Standard Oil Company, the specialists made a statement yesterday explaining that they were merely instruments between buyer and seller.

Early Losses Made Up When the Afternoon Rally Set In.

CHICAGO ISSUES SELL OFF

Marked Declines Follow Attempted Liquidation in Several Leading Stocks.

There was a dispirited tone in the markets in other cities yesterday, with higher prices in the afternoon following New York's lead.

As there is no pressure to sell, prices on the Baltimore Exchange show little change, but there is lack of firmness and buyers find no difficulty in obtaining small concessions in prices.

Further liquidation was seen in the Boston market Thursday, some issues reaching a new low figure. The mining shares were weak from the very opening and prices continued to decline until late in the day, when a buying movement made its appearance, resulting in a sharp rally. The general market closed steady at the recovery.

Some marked declines were made on the Chicago Stock Exchange, where prices ruled heavy. Liquidation in Sears-Roebuck continued and resulted in a further loss of more than two points at the lowest, with a recovery of a fraction by the close. Pneumatic Tool was another heavy feature and sold at 43, two points under the previous close, before a partial recovery took it to 44. Booth Fisheries lost 1½ and Diamond Match a fraction, as did also Commonwealth Edison and People's Gas. Chicago Elevated Railways common sold at 24, down two points. Oats common dropped 3.

The sudden change of front in the New York market in the afternoon was reflected as usual in Philadelphia through the arbitrage group. On the other hand the strictly local list remained dull and but little affected. This was merely consistent with the regular movement of Philadelphia stocks of late. Just as they failed to go down much when New York broke, so did they refuse to rise materially when such stocks as Lehigh Valley and Steel suddenly rallied sharply. Lehigh Valley, in fact, sold well above last night's close in the final hour yesterday, and so did Reading.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Prices Drop in London—Heaviness in Paris—Recovery in Berlin.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Money was in better demand and discount rates were firmer to-day.

Although the settlement on the Stock Exchange was concluded without a failure the belief that some accounts had been helped made the tone easy, and the decline was accelerated later by further weakness in American shares, Continental and local selling, and labor unrest. The last-named factor caused a loss of a point in home rails.

American securities opened about unchanged, and during the forenoon moved irregularly. Trading was quiet and price changes were limited to small fractions. Later New York and Berlin offerings depressed the leading shares from one to two points. There was a fractional recovery in the late trading. The closing was dull.

Money, 1@1¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 per cent.; for three months' bills, 3⅛@3¼ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted at Madrid, 8.65, and at Lisbon, 8.00.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—A heavy tone prevailed on the Bourse to-day.

Private rate of discount, 3 per cent.

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—The Moroccan situation was considered better on the Boerse to-day, and prices were strong.

Money, 2¼ per cent.

Private rate of discount, 3⅝ per cent.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 14.—The rate of discount of the Bank of Belgium was raised from 3½ to 4½ per cent. to-day.

Higher Wages Reduce Earnings.

The failure of the New York, Ontario & Western to show earnings for the last fiscal year equal to previous periods is explained by President Fowler in the annual report as being due to the higher wages and shorter work hours of the employes. The gross revenues of the road were in 1911 $717,000 more than in 1910, but it ended the year with a deficit of $247,000 after dividends had been paid. There was an increase of $550,000 in operating costs and of $206,000 in fixed charges. The destruction of a coal colliery by fire helped to keep down the company's profits.

DON'T NEED EASTERN FUNDS.

New York Premium in Chicago Indicates the West Has Ample Money.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—The fact that the New York Exchange is selling at 15 cents premium in Chicago is taken to indicate that there is not much demand in the West for Eastern funds. The domestic exchange rate at Chicago is more or less a criterion of the relative demand for money in the greater part of the interior and the agricultural section of the country. The present premium for New York exchange compares with 25 cents discount at this time last year, 10 to 20 cents in 1909, 30 cents in 1908, 15 cents in 1907, 40 cents in 1906, 20 cents in 1905, 45 cents in 1904, 35 cents in 1903, 25 cents in 1902, 60 cents in 1901, and 50 cents discount in 1900.

The fact that Chicago has grown in importance as a financial centre of the country in recent years accounts in a large measure for the more stable quotations of the New York Exchange within the last year or two. There are many large banks here which compete very closely with the great institutions in the East, and they are in a position now to finance much of the interior crop movement.

S. P. to Discontinue Dividend Warrants.

President R. S. Lovett announced yesterday that at the request of many shareholders, the Directors of the Southern Pacific Company had decided to discontinue after Oct. 1 the use of dividend warrants on its shares, and to pay dividends by check to the registered owner, as is done in the case of practically all other railroad shares.

DIX ATTACKS COST OF STATE HIGHWAYS

Says That New Roads Planned Will Need Much More Than the $50,000,000 Authorized.

MAY BE A NEW BOND ISSUE

Does Not See Why the Engineering Cost of State Roads Should Exceed That of Railway Construction.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Gov. Dix in his speech to-day at the State Fair grounds, attacked the Good Roads expenditures under the administration of Gov. Hughes. He said there had been waste and extravagance in money spent for road work from 1907 to 1910.

In the course of his speech the Governor said:

"By a vote of the people of this State there was authorized an expenditure of fifty millions of dollars for highway improvement. I think you should know the debit and credit side of this account. In 1907 a map was produced by the Legislature indicating a system of highways known as county roads, aggregating a total of 8,380 miles. In other words, after the authorization of this vast expenditure, it was determined by experts that 8,380 miles of improved roadways would be constructed. Subsequent to this determination another system of highways was established known as State roads, aggregating 3,055 miles, which has been increased to 3,494 miles, making a total of 11,000 miles to be made a direct charge against this fifty million bond issue."

"To-day we find that when all the work under contract shall have been completed and paid for there will have been expended of the $50,000,000 of bond issue $25,500,000, with the result that only 2,479 miles of the county roads will have been improved out of 8,380 contemplated, and only about 543 miles of the State roads out of the 3,494 miles contemplated.

"The average cost to the State of these improved roads has been about $9,000 per mile, not including the money which has been paid by the counties. The Legislature has appropriated in special acts $3,955,000 for certain State roads, which, added to the $25,500,000 already contracted for, makes a total of $39,455,000 expended and leaves approximately but $10,500,000 for distribution on a general allotment.

"It is evident that the distribution of expenditure for improving roads has not been made with the idea of completing roads on the map as approved by the Legislature in 1907 with the money provided. You will observe that 50 per cent. of the money has been obligated and only 25 per cent. of the mileage will have been completed, and, if I mistake not, another bond authorization will be demanded by the people to adequately meet the demands of agriculture and of trade and traffic.

"I was convinced that extravagance permeated the construction of these highways and county roads. There was no sound argument why State roads should cost exceeding $12,000 per mile and an additional cost for engineering greater than the engineering cost of important railroad construction, and it should not, if the public dollar purchases as much as the private dollar."

BANKRUPTCY COSTS CUT.

Referee Reduces Allowances Claimed by Senators Osborne and Cornish.

State Senators Harry V. Osborne and Johnson Cornish of Essex and Warren Counties, New Jersey, respectively, were jolted hard yesterday at Newark when Edwin G. Adams, as referee in bankruptcy, fixed the compensation for services in the American Vacuum Cleaning Company case at $9,000 less than they had asked for. The allowance of $100 a week made by Senator Cornish, the Trustee, to Henry Decker, whom he employed to assist him, was also cut to $50. As Mr. Decker claimed $4,900 for his services and expenses he will have to refund $2,000 or more.

Senator Osborne, counsel for Mr. Cornish, asked for an allowance of $7,500. Mr. Adams, while complimenting him upon his work, directed that $3,500 was sufficient for him. The referee also allowed Senator Cornish only $1,200 for his services in continuing the business and $1,211 as Trustee, making $2,411 instead of the $7,500 he had asked for.

At a hearing before Referee Adams last week Frederick J. Faulks and Frank Benjamin, counsel representing creditors whose claims were disallowed at the creditors' meeting, at which Senator Cornish was elected Trustee, criticised the large administration expenses incurred by Mr. Cornish. It was pointed out that out of the first $73,000 which came into the Trustee's hands the creditors got only $18,000, a 14 per cent. dividend, the balance having been used up in expenses.

The final report submitted by Mr. Cornish showed a balance of $33,000 in his hands available for the payment of allowance to the Trustee and counsel and for a final dividend. Had the allowances asked for been ordered the creditors would have received only about $18,000 more, making $36,000 altogether out of $106,000 which came into the receiver's hands.

MACVEAGH NO PESSIMIST.

Country Pausing for Breath, Says Secretary, of Financial Situation.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—Optimistic views on the business situation were expressed to-day by Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh, who was in this city after visiting President Taft at Beverly.

"Regarding the general business situation," said Secretary MacVeagh, "I am not a pessimist. The country is simply pausing to take breath. After its headlong flight of 1906 and 1909 a setback was inevitable and will be of immense good.

"The banking situation from the reports that I hear is sound enough, and the National Treasury is on 'Easy Street.'"

PRESIDENT MELLEN EXPLAINS

Wrote He Would Retire Sometime Upon Newspaper Request.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in a formal statement to-day gives his version of the manner in which the report of his retirement gained circulation. He denies that there is any basis of fact for that rumor, and says he has no intention of resigning. Mr. Mellen also denies that there is in sight any possible reason for anticipating a reduction in the New Haven's 8 per cent. dividend.

Mr. Mellen's statement, dictated by himself, is in part as follows:

Some day last week there was received by Mr. Mellen through the road's press department an article from a newspaper, which, for reasons that will occur to all, he does not wish to name, full of insinuation and innuendo regarding his connection with the New Haven Railroad, and stating that his early retirement from the Presidency was a foregone conclusion, or words to similar effect.

This article was presented to him with the request from the paper that he affirm or otherwise comment upon the report of his retirement.

He wrote upon the request that he was to retire, but the date was not fixed.

He believed this was a statement the real meaning of which was perfectly transparent, as in the very nature of things he must retire some time.

Mr. Mellen further says that he was on the road, extremely busy, and nettled at the article, which he regarded as malicious, and the request for a statement, under the circumstances, he deemed impertinent.

He regrets if the people had been misled, for it was far from his disposition to be a party to any deception.

Mr. Mellen, questioned as to the dividend outlook, says he sees no reason from anything that has happened up to the present time why consideration should be given to the matter of New Haven dividends.

The dividend of Oct. 1, 1911, has been declared, and has been amply earned.

Unless something occurs more than he believes is likely to—unless there is some cataclysm in business impending which he cannot foresee—the question of a reduction should never be raised.

The matter of a reduction of the dividend has never to his knowledge been considered in the New Haven Board, and has never been discussed with him by any of the Directors.

ARREST BANK PRESIDENT.

J. S. Woods Accused of Accepting Deposit Knowing Bank Insolvent.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 14.—Charging that money was accepted for deposit after J. S. Woods, President of the defunct Franklin Bank of Louisville, knew the bank was insolvent, an attorney for Miss Lillian Kimball of New Albany, Ind., to-day brought about Mr. Woods's arrest. Miss Kimball avers that she deposited $10.60 in the bank last Monday, and that on that date Mr. Woods was cognizant of the bank's condition.

State Bank Examiners took charge of the institution last Tuesday. Officers of the bank issued a statement saying that the bank had been unable to realize on some of the paper it was carrying, but that depositors would be paid in full.

WORK FOR STATE TROOPS.

Entire National Guard May See Field Service Next Summer.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The matter of the field instruction of the National Guard of the State next year is already being considered by Adjt. Gen. Verbeck, and it is probable that the entire guard will be given camp or field service during the Summer.

It is not yet definitely known whether there will be a joint manoeuvre camp of the regular army and militia in 1912 or not, but it is considered probable that there will not be. In this event, it is in contemplation to mobilize a tactical division of the National Guard of this State, with as nearly as possible the proper proportion of infantry and auxiliary troops.

This would necessitate the selection of nine regiments of infantry to form three brigades, leaving four regiments of infantry to be given field or camp instruction separately from the balance of the division.

THE COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—Prices ruled at slightly lower levels during the session. Foreign news is not of a character stimulating to the undertone and the heavier corn market had effect at various times during the day. Outside markets, particularly the Northwestern, were relatively steady, due to rather light movement, while unsettled weather in many parts of the belt led to claims of further deterioration in the quality and probably had some influence. Sentiment continues to be slightly bullish, but pending a vote on the reciprocity measure the disposition is to await developments. There is a diversity of opinion as to the effect of this agreement if it is ratified by Canada, with the claim in some quarters that only a temporary recession will occur, as the passage of the amendment is generally anticipated. On the other hand the Washburn, Crosby Milling Company is credited with a statement that the proposed agreement will fail. In this event cause for bull aggressiveness would undoubtedly be given in the American markets, but in Canada it would be a bear argument; therefore some interests expressed the belief that if weakness should be discernible at Winnipeg it would be reflected in Liverpool and indirectly in American markets.

Foreign news which supplied ammunition for the bulls several days in the nature of firm German and French feed crop situations and unsatisfactory Russian reports, is decidedly more bearish. Yesterday Russia was again offering freely while the continent was said to be endeavoring to resell. Moreover, prospects in Argentina continue fine, and beneficial rains were reported in a large area of India. Buying of American wheats by foreigners is small, business being reported of only 8 loads at outports.

The Price Current report reiterated recent claims of an increased area for new Winter wheat, with conditions favorable for seeding and plowing. Argentine exports are estimated at 800,000 bushels to-day, against 1,288,000 last week and 864,000 last year. Interior receipts so far this week are 4,843,000 bushels, against 4,186,000 last week and 4,867,000 last year. Shipments were in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 for those periods. Cash No. 2 red wheat quoted at 97½c, elevator, export basis, and 99c, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard $1.04, No. 1 Northern Spring $1.10¼, No. 1 Northern Manitoba $1.08.

CORN.—Further excitement, with a sharp advance, was witnessed at the opening in the Chicago September option, but offerings were heavy at the advance. Purchases in the country were larger, with considerable selling by cash interests. There were also rumors of a settlement by shorts. Influential interests that have been actively identified on the bull side were advising profit taking, and although there was some heaviness, the demand for the cash article continued, and important bear aggressiveness was discouraged. Export sales were reported of 50 loads. Weather conditions continue good for the final development of the plant. Cash No. 2 Western quoted at 75½c, elevator, domestic basis, and 75c, free on board, afloat, for export.

OATS.—Fluctuations are governed to a large extent by price variations in other grain. There was considerable profit taking, and while sentiment is bullish on the cash situation, it is apparent that many are disposed to await a reaction. Cash standard quoted at 50c, No. 2 white 50¼c, No. 3 white 49½c.

PROVISIONS.—Initial levels were a shade higher on the fair cash inquiry but offerings proved to be plentiful, and a sagging tendency developed. Packers continue their tactics of selling on the scale up.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Despite reports of some concessions at the South with freer offerings of crude, the spot situation displays inherent strength. There were tenders yesterday of about 400 barrels of oil, but the purpose of this was not apparent, as spot oil commands a premium of 15 points. Obviously these deliveries were readily cared for, and it was intimated that there is a large amount of September oil still owing, with some claims of from 12,000 to 15,000 barrels. Undoubtedly there is some speculative long account in that month also in existence. The buying in the future market at the low levels yesterday was by large commission houses, part of which was claimed to be against export sales. Crude quoted at $4.90@$5.20.

COTTON.

Prosaic trading still characterizes the market, and price changes are as unimportant as they appear insignificant. During the session there was scattered short covering by recent sellers, who were apparently discouraged at their progress, but demand did not broaden, although complaints of worm damage in many of the important cotton States were in abundance. Seemingly the unsettled conditions in Wall Street, liberal movement of cotton, and generally favorable weather conditions are against bull enthusiasm. Not even the bears are inclined to look for hostilities in the Moroccan dispute, but undoubtedly the entire trade situation would be benefited by a definite settlement of the difficulties.

The foreign market at the best is inclined to follow American prices, although spot sales at Liverpool indicate a fair demand for the actual. Manchester cables were received confirming this, it being stated that spinners were calling more freely. Advices, however, from Southern spot centres were not bullish, with further shading of prices reported at the principal points, Mobile being 1-16 lower; St. Louis, ⅛ lower; Baltimore, 1-16 lower, and Savannah unchanged, while Dallas, Texas, reported inquiry at a minimum. Meanwhile the undertone to the American trade situation shows a slight improvement.

Interests working for higher cotton prices bought in small volume at times, and it seems as if there is more aggressiveness on this side than in bearish quarters. Bullish private crop estimates are evidently instrumental for part of this demand. Deterioration for the month of September the past ten years has been 7 per cent. The National Ginners' report, if authentic, showed a decline in condition of 4½ per cent. since the end of August. Norden & Co. in their semi-monthly report made the loss 3 per cent. The Mercantile Crop Reporting Corporation gives deterioration of the past month 8 per cent., making the condition 73.3. The National Ginners' report was said to be 68.9. Agitation throughout the South, claimed to be for the purpose of correcting the "misleading" idea that this crop is to be a record one, still continues. It is noteworthy that hedging pressure, indicating Southern selling, also continues, and the amount of buying orders accompanying the worm complaints are not large. Undoubtedly, however, crop estimates are undergoing some revision, but with the belief still general that a record outturn is a prospect, barring an early frost.

The local spot market was 5 points decline, with middlings at 11.80c. Warehouse stocks are about the same as last year, or 54,000 bales. Port receipts yesterday were 31,000 bales, against 17,000 bales last week and 27,000 bales last year.

COFFEE.

Coffee was only moderately active, total sales amounting to 54,000 bags. At the opening prices were irregular at 2 to 5 points advance for the near months and unchanged for the distant positions, and after showing a firm undertone during the morning values eased off late, closing barely steady at unchanged to 6 points net decline. The European markets were nervous, and after showing quick changes both ways Havre closed at ¼ to ½ franc lower, while Hamburg was unchanged to ½ pfennig advance. Rio was 75 reis lower and Santos unchanged, although the special Santos cable showed a decline of 50 reis.

MEETS LOST SON IN JAIL.

Father, Parted for 20 Years, Finds Him Arrested for Burning Negro.

WEST CHESTER, Penn., Sept. 14.—An affecting scene occurred in the County Jail here this afternoon when, after having been parted for twenty years, Capt. John A. Berry of St. Louis greeted his son, E. C. Berry, who is charged with being implicated in the burning of Zack Walker, the negro, at Coatesville on Aug. 13.

The elder Berry said to-day that he found his son through newspaper accounts of his arrest in connection with the lynching, and added that he would remain in West Chester until the young man was tried. He will engage counsel to defend him.

The younger Berry is accused of murder, the State charging that he was one of the leaders of the crowd who burned the negro.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Rate of Exchange on Turkish Rugs Is Decided in Favor of Importers.

Importers of Turkish rugs scored a victory yesterday when the Board of United States General Appraisers decided a controversy between the Government and Mandel Bros. regarding the rate of exchange to be allowed in estimating the duties to be paid the customs on the importations. It appears that the separate items of the invoice are extended in francs, while the totals are converted into piasters.

The dutiable value was fixed by accepting the franc as the purchasing medium and reducing the total invoice value in francs to the money of the United States at the rate of 19.3 cents to the franc. The importers, on the other hand, claimed that the piasters should have been converted into American currency at the rate of 4.4 cents per piaster, the rate proclaimed by the Secretary of the Treasury for the quarter during which the importations were made. Judge Waite, in his decision for the board, sustains the contention of the importers, and directs the Collector to make a reliquidation of the duties in harmony with the finding of the board.

G. W. Sheldon & Co. were unsuccessful before the board in a controversy involving the classification of celluloid paper cutters in the form of alligators. From the open mouth of the alligators protrude the heads of negroes. The articles were assessed for duty under the celluloid paragraph of the present tariff at the rate of 65 cents a pound and 30 per cent. ad valorem. Against this classification the importers maintained that the articles should be deemed "toys," and as such admitted to duty at the rate of 35 per cent. The board denies this claim and affirms the assessment made by the Collector of Customs.

The board denied claims filed by B. Illfelder & Co. relating to the classification of combination penholders. Duty was exacted by the customs officials at the rate of 40 per cent. on the value under the provision in the act of 1909 for such articles. The articles in question include a pen, pencil, rubber eraser, and metal holders. Judge Fischer says in his decision that while claims for lower rates of duty are made, the articles are clearly provided for in the provision under which they were assessed. The protests are accordingly overruled and the Collector affirmed.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Half Million Dollar Apartment to Replace the Old Saranac on Amsterdam Avenue—Private Dwellings in Good Demand—Brooklyn and Suburban Market Active.

Another evidence of the rapidly increasing apartment house development of the west side was shown yesterday by the filing of plans for a new $500,000 structure to be erected on the southeast corner of Amsterdam Avenue and Seventy-fourth Street. The new house will be twelve stories high, and will replace the old Saranac on the corner and four other flats on the avenue, which were purchased by R. H. MacDonald a short time ago. The new house will have a frontage on Amsterdam Avenue of 106.8 feet and 100 feet on the street. It will be fireproof, and equipped with the latest improvements. Charles E. Birge is the architect. The façade will be of marble, brick, and terra cotta.

The new house will be the largest structure planned in recent years for the upper Sherman Square locality. A few years ago the entire block front between Seventy-second and Seventy-third Streets on the east side of the avenue was improved with two high-class twelve-story houses, and on the south side of Seventy-second Street, just east of Broadway, a twelve-story house is now nearing completion, taking the place of three private dwellings. The old Nevada, occupying the triangular block between Broadway, Tenth Avenue, Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Streets, has been entirely renovated during the Summer. It was recently sold by the McCreery Realty Company.

Besides this important addition to the district, the realty transactions on the west side showed that the private house market was in a very healthy condition.

Private Dwellings in Demand.

The demand for private dwellings on the upper west side by investors as well as speculators was shown by several sales in that location yesterday. The four-story and basement dwelling, 50 West Seventieth Street, was purchased at the stand of L. J. Phillips & Co. in the Vesey Street Auction Room for $48,000 by M. F. Loughman.

It occupies a lot 23 by 100.5, located about 215 feet east of Columbus Avenue, and was offered for the executors of the estate of Ulrich Simon, deceased. The house was erected by John T. and James A. Farley, and was acquired by Mr. Simon in 1893 for $47,500 through L. J. Phillips & Co.

In the West End Avenue section Adolph H. Landeker sold to a speculator 310 West 101st Street, a five-story American basement dwelling, on lot 17 by 100.11, adjoining the Creston apartment house, on the southwest corner of West End Avenue.

On Washington Heights Joseph Seaman has sold to George W. Blanchard 530 West 148th Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 17 by 99.11, between Amsterdam Avenue and Broadway. The buyer recently sold the dwelling 425 East Fifty-eighth Street to Helen Garde.

Further north on the Heights J. Romaine Brown & Co. sold to George E. Hill 458 West 152d Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 16.4 by 99.11.

Lamb 276 Smith Street, a three-story brick flat, with store, between Degraw and Sackett Streets.

The loan is for five years at 6 and 5 per cent. The company also loaned $120,000 to W. H. Weissager on the one and two story and basement store and theatre property located on the east side of Clinton Avenue, 193 feet north of McKinley Square. The mortgage is for three years at 5½ per cent.

THOS. W. LAWSON, BOSTON FINANCIER, author of "Frenzied Finance," in Everybody's Magazine, says (Boston Post, Aug. 16): Western Canada offers the greatest opportunities—The wealth is in the land—This Canada is the greatest place you ever saw—I'm tempted to move out there—The Americans ought to go into partnership with the Canadians—They've got everything," etc. President Schurman of Cornell University, New York, says: "...... no other area left for such agricultural development as is now going on in those rich plains which stretch from Winnipeg to the Rockies, and from the American boundary to the Peace River Valley—700 miles to the north. Twenty years hence the population of Canada may be 20,000,000." (It is now 8,000,000.) Dr. Schurman's address sent free. Write for it. We offer unique opportunities to make large profits absolutely free from risk by investments in one of the most rapidly growing cities of Western Canada, which grew to 17,000 population with only one railway—and is soon to have nine lines east and west, embracing all the Canadian transcontinental systems. We send maps, particulars, diagrams, statistics free. This English corporation's $1,400,000 stands back of every dollar you invest. By our Non-forfeiture of Payments Plan your risk is eliminated. Canada's biggest bank is our reference. Now, don't infer; don't guess; it costs you nothing to write and get the facts. Do it now. ACCUSES MRS. JENKINS IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Counsel Says She Stripped House and Deeded It Away After Defaulting on Payment Due.

FIXTURES SOLD AT AUCTION

Afterward, the Complaint Says, She Contended Deed Was Fraudulent and Demanded Her Money.

Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, who gained much newspaper notice by her reported loss of $300,000 worth of jewels, her testimony against Nathan Allen and John B. Collins, two wealthy men, who were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury for smuggling valuable presents made to her, figured in an argument before Supreme Court Justice Pendleton yesterday.

David H. Taylor, attorney for three women who sold Mrs. Jenkins a house eighteen months ago, told the Justice that Mrs. Jenkins had stripped the house, which is at 39 West Eighty-sixth Street, of its fixtures valued at $3,000, and sold them at public auction, when she learned that she was not to be allowed an extension on a mortgage payment due to his clients. He further said that on the day before foreclosure proceedings were to be instituted, she deeded the house to Anna Levy of Portland, Ore., whom she said was her sister. This caused a delay in foreclosure proceedings, after which, he says, Mrs. Jenkins brought suit to set the deed to herself aside as fraudulent and asked that her first payment be returned to her.

Counsel for Mrs. Jenkins made an argument to have the case tried before a jury. Mr. Taylor submitted an affidavit made by Otto A. Hack, associate counsel, who said that Mrs. Jenkins had bought the house on St. Patrick's Day, 1910, and had lived in it eight months.

Mr. Taylor said Mrs. Jenkins bought the house from Mrs. Rebecca B. Powell, and her daughters, Mrs. Bedell H. Harned and Mrs. Ethel P. Delamater, for $150,000.

"There was a first mortgage on the property of $60,000," said he in his statement to the court, "and Mrs. Jenkins paid $30,000 in cash and gave a second mortgage for the balance, viz., $60,000 to the former owners. The mortgage required Mrs. Jenkins to pay $10,000 one year after the transaction was closed, and as this payment was not made a suit to foreclose the mortgage was commenced.

"The day before this foreclosure suit was instituted, Mrs. Jenkins conveyed the property to Anna Levy of Portland, Ore. This woman, Mrs. Jenkins alleges to be her sister, and states that the conveyance was made to her for convenience only. Deeding the property to a nonresident necessitated the publication of a notice against Mrs. Levy for six weeks and delayed the foreclosure proceedings to that extent.

"At the expiration of the six weeks Mrs. Jenkins interposed an answer in the case alleging that she had been induced to purchase the property through fraudulent misrepresentations as to its value and asking that she be allowed to reconvey the property to the former owners and be repaid the money which she had advanced. Before interposing this plea, however, Mrs. Jenkins stripped the house of all its furnishings and fixtures and sold them at public auction."

Before the foreclosure proceedings were begun, an offer for the premises was made to Mrs. Powell and her daughters for the purchase of the property by the Nippon Society. Mrs. Jenkins was asked to sell out her interest, Mr. Taylor said, but refused to do so. In his affidavit, Mr. Hack gives this version of what followed:

"I desire also to submit the following facts to the court to show that this application is not made in good faith, is entirely without merit and is in line with the usual scheme of an insolvent mortgagor to delay and annoy mortgagees and by harassing them prevent their getting possession of the mortgaged property, forcing them to make some concession by way of settlement. Mrs. Jenkins stated to me at an interview before these proceedings began that she was not able to meet her obligations.

"When I thereafter came to investigate the title to the property for the purpose of making the necessary parties to this suit I found on record a deed made by Helen D. Jenkins to Anna Levy. This deed was recorded on the 17th day of March, 1911, which was sometime after I had talked with Mrs. Jenkins about the installment and interest about to come due. The residence of Anna Levy was given in the deed as Portland, Ore. No change in the possession of the premises was apparently made, the same caretaker being in possession, and the same brokers' signs remaining on the house. Mrs. Jenkins herself in her counterclaim stated that the said deed was made 'for convenience only.' Just what that convenience is she has failed to state, but it is not hard to be imagined.

"I then found that immediately after my conversation with Mrs. Jenkins, and after I had told her that if she did not pay whatever was due on the mortgage, foreclosure proceedings would result, she proceeded to dismantle the mortgaged premises by removing the gas fixtures, chandeliers, and electroliers, which were specifically covered by the mortgage and passed by the deed to her from plaintiffs, and selling the same at public auction. These fixtures were very valuable, having been made specially for the mortgaged premises, and it will cost about $3,000 to replace them.

"I am informed that Mrs. Jenkins sold them and received from the auctioneer the sale price, for I have interviewed him, and I have seen her order for their delivery. My information further is that her spoliation of the mortgaged premises took place even after this action of foreclosure was begun. She was enabled thus to dismantle the mortgaged premises by reason of the fact that no motion for a receiver had been made and she was in possession thereof. Immediately upon learning of such act of waste, I made a motion for the appointment of a receiver, which motion was granted, and the receiver is now in possession of said premises.

"I submit that the deed made to Anna Levy of Portland, Ore., bears all the earmarks of bad faith. It is a device with which the court in this department has become familiar, wherein a mortgagor, unable to pay his interest, seeks to annoy and harass the mortgagee by transferring the mortgage property to an unknown person.

"Mrs. Jenkins has paid but one installment of interest and has hung on to the mortgaged premises as long as she could. She has made every attempt to sell them.

"Since this action was begun, I have been approached several times with offers of settlement. It has been intimated to me by the attorney for the defendant that I could settle for the sum of $5,000. It was also intimated to me by a real estate broker, who represented himself to be speaking for Mrs. Jenkins, that I could settle it for the sum of $2,500. It is perfectly apparent that the defendant, Mrs. Jenkins, knowing that she cannot avoid the foreclosure of the mortgage sued upon, is seeking to harass and annoy the plaintiffs, and thereby induce them to pay something for cessation of hostilities on her part."

Mrs. Jenkins did not appear at the County Court House to hear the argument.

LIEUT. LYKES MISSING.

St. Paul Friends Fear He Has Met with Foul Play.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 14.—In circumstances as mysterious as those connected with the disappearance of Capt. John O'Connell of the Twenty-eighth Infantry a year ago, Lieut. Gibbes Lykes, Ninth United States Cavalry, is missing from St. Paul, and friends fear he has either met with foul play or is being held for some unknown reason. The police have been asked by officers of the Department of the Lakes to help in the search for Lieut. Lykes, and several detectives have been assigned to the task.

The officer came from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, on a thirty days' furlough, beginning Aug. 16. He introduced himself at the army building and was entertained by several officers. He was last seen on Sept. 8, when he told friends he had a theatre engagement.

His disposition and actions are described as similar to those of Capt. O'Connell. Both were extremely active and nervous. Both were much alone and their habits were considered peculiar. Capt. O'Connell was fifteen years the senior of Lieut. Lykes, the former being 42 and the latter 27. Lieut. Lykes is said to have had several hundred dollars with him. Suicide has been hinted at in connection with his disappearance, but no body has been found, and the police do not accept this theory. His family, living at Trenton, S. C., fear that he has either become temporarily deranged or has met with foul play in St. Paul or Minneapolis. His mother received a letter from him Sept. 2 postmarked St. Paul, but there have been no communications from him since that time.

The search for Lieut. Lykes in St. Paul was instituted at the request of Senator Tillman of South Carolina, who requested the War Department to direct Gen. R. W. Hoyt, commanding the Department of the Lakes, to help to find him. It is said that officers are entirely at a loss to account for the disappearance of the Lieutenant and that his accounts with the Government are correct.

RECTOR MAKES CHICAGO DEAL

Disposes of Rector Building in That City for Apartment Property.

It was learned last night that Charles E. Rector, proprietor of the Hotel Rector in this city, will dispose of the Rector Building, at Clark and Monroe Streets, Chicago. On Mr. Rector's behalf it was said at his hotel that such a deal would be closed and the papers signed to-day.

Mr. Rector some years ago sold out his restaurant business in Chicago, but retained ownership of the building and permitted his successors to keep the name "Rector's."

Charles E. Greve, representing the Lehman estate in Chicago, came to this city yesterday and agreed to take over the Rector Building in Chicago in exchange for apartment house property. It is not known where this property is located, but it was said that it was valued above $1,000,000. The rental of the property was said to be $45,000 a year. It was also said that Mr. Rector did not intend re-entering the restaurant business in Chicago. It was intimated, however, that something interesting underlay the transfer of the properties.

STOLE AHEARN'S PARADE.

Harlem Primary Fight Leads to Arrest of Hines's Banner Bearers.

There is a Tammany primary fight up in the Twenty-first Assembly District. James J. Hines, known to his followers as "The Honest Blacksmith," is trying to displace James Ahearn as leader.

The Ahearn followers held a parade and rally last night, 500 strong, headed by a brass band. The Hines followers got out two wagons with big Hines transparencies and sneaked in ahead of the Ahearn procession, giving people on the sidewalk the opinion that the shouting marchers were supporting Hines. This angered the Ahearn lieutenants and they had Patrolman Joseph McGrath of the West 125th Street Station arrest the Hines drivers, William Cleary of 452 West 143d Street and Frank Smith of 276 West 115th Street.

A crowd of several hundred angry men followed the prisoners to the station. Lieut. Theodore Miller had to clear the station of about fifty men, professing to be lawyers, who had elbowed their way in and were offering hints to McGrath on the charge to be preferred against the prisoners. Finally a charge of parading without a permit was entered on the blotter. When the men were taken out of the station to begin a patrol wagon journey to Night Court they were hooted by the discomfited Ahearn men.

Fair Play for Queens Sweepers.

News that in the pension system for Street Cleaning Department employes, as set forth in the projected new Charter, Queens was not mentioned, raised a storm in that borough, with a result that Arrow C. Hankins, Superintendent of Street Cleaning in Queens, wrote to Mayor Gaynor, Gov. Dix, and every member of the Legislature. Replies were received from many, and all assured Supt. Hankins that if the new Charter is presented they will see that the Queens employes get fair play.

CITY BREVITIES.

Angelo Rebeccolimi of 2,026 First Avenue died yesterday in Bellevue Hospital of hydrophobia. While on his way home on Wednesday he was bitten by a stray dog.

Dock Commissioner Tomkins addressed some five hundred Bronx citizens in their Borough Hall last night on his department's plans to improve the borough docking facilities.

Colored Republicans of the Ninth Assembly District held a meeting last night and decided to back John J. Curry and oppose Michael H. Blake. If Curry did not please them, some of the speakers declared, they would try to elect a colored leader of the district.

ROWDIES AT CONEY MAR MARDI GRAS

Gangs March Through the Streets Insulting Women and Wrecking Stores and Restaurants.

SEVERAL HUNDRED ARRESTED

Crowd of 500,000 Sees the Parade in Which the Vamps March—Mayor Gaynor Not There.

The largest and roughest crowd of Mardi Gras week gathered last night at Coney Island. Beginning at 6 o'clock, cars on all elevated and surface lines leading to the island were run on emergency schedule, all loaded to capacity. Deputy Police Commissioner Walsh, who had charge of the police arrangements, estimated that 500,000 persons were at the beach.

One hundred members of the Strong-Arm Squad mingled with the crowd, and early in the evening had corraled almost as many rowdies as had been arrested since the celebration began. At the Coney Island Police Station it was said that, at the rate the prisoners were coming in, there would be 200 to 250 arrests before the night was over. On Wednesday night, which was the previous high-water mark for rowdies, there were ninety-six arrests.

By 8 o'clock all traffic in Surf Avenue was stopped. The police kept sightseers off the pavement, and they were so thick on the sidewalk between the curb and the building line that movement was almost impossible. Through this crowd gangs of rowdies, in tandem formation and flying wedges, forced their way. The strong-arm squad brought in groups of prisoners charged with stuffing confetti into women's mouths, tearing their clothes, or otherwise roughly handling them.

Straw hats were a special mark for the rowdies. All along Surf Avenue, after 8 o'clock, hats could be seen, tossed up in the air by rowdies, who, with loud shouts, would trample on them. Souvenir canes in the hands of pleasure seekers were seized and smashed. The actions of the rowdies made it impossible for several restaurants opening directly in Surf Avenue to serve their patrons. Every few minutes a gang of rushers would hurry through, knocking over tables, sweeping glasses to the floor, and upsetting chairs.

The passing of the parade did little to check the boisterous horse-play. The parade was longer than usual last night, because of participation in it by hundreds of exempt firemen from Brooklyn and Long Island. There was much disappointment because Mayor Gaynor, who had been expected to review, did not appear. The Mayor was represented by his secretary, Robert Adamson.

In the reviewing stand at Feltman's restaurant, facing Luna Park, were Police Commissioner Waldo, Deputy Commissioner Walsh, Fire Commissioner Johnson, Bridge Commissioner O'Keefe, and Borough President Steers of Brooklyn. A host of minor officials and politicians surrounded them. After the parade a dinner was served to the reviewers.

Moe Baron, King of the Mardi Gras, gave a dinner at Henderson's last night to 500 friends who aided his campaign of election. His wife, Queen Nettie, presided with him. All the restaurants, cafés, and amusement resorts of the island did a rushing business.

In the Coney Island Court yesterday Magistrate Voorhees sent ten of Wednesday night's batch of rowdies to Raymond Street Jail for ten days. He fined sixty others $10 each. The Magistrate suspended sentence on Russell J. Hare, a lawyer of 534 West End Avenue, and his wife, Florence, who were arrested at the Culver Line station for climbing through the windows of an express train. Both had spent the night in a cell.

Among those arrested by the strong-arm squad was Edwin S. Merrill of 1,902 Marmion Avenue, the Bronx, a lawyer, of 52 Broadway, and Secretary and Treasurer of the Weber-Earley Company, printers, of 12 Warren Street, Manhattan. Merrill became impatient when held up in the Culver terminal and tried to clamber over the gate. He was taken to the Coney Island Police Station.

Of more than 100 prisoners taken to the Coney Island station before midnight, not one had been arrested by a uniformed officer. The uniformed men, of whom there were 500 on duty, including reserves from nearly every Brooklyn precinct, devoted their efforts to keeping traffic and crowds moving.

Policeman John W. Sperry stopped a runaway team in Surf Avenue, near the West End Terminal. The horses, which had been frightened in Mermaid Avenue and West Fifteenth Street, broke away from their driver, Carmen Neil, a hackman, and dashed through the crowd. Several policemen reached for the bridles, but failed to catch them. Sperry, who did so, was dragged several hundred feet. He was semi-conscious when they stopped. He was taken to Coney Island Hospital, and sent home after Graboff had dressed his wounds.

MRS. JAMES FISK DYING.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Lucy D. Fisk, widow of James Fisk, the Erie Railroad wrecker, whose shooting thirty-nine years ago in the Grand Central Hotel, New York, by Edward S. Stokes was followed by one of the most sensational murder trials in the history of the country, is dying in a humble home in South Boston.

Mrs. Fisk, who figured in three trials of Stokes as the wronged wife, is now 70 years old, and too feeble to survive the second stroke of paralysis which she suffered to-day. She has lived in a little two-story wooden house for the last twenty-five years upon an income that would not have paid her florist's bill in her prosperous days.

In the days when James Fisk was the partner of Jay Gould Mrs. Fisk was in absolute control of a fortune in her own right valued at millions.

"King of Gamblers" Says His Wife Is a Drunkard and She Tries to Attack Him.

Lou Betts and his wife, Anna A. Betts, who calls her husband "the king of gamblers," got into a wrangle in the Supreme Court yesterday, where they were striving for the custody of their two children pending the settlement of Mrs. Betts's suit for separation. Betts told Justice Gavegan that his wife had been a drunkard for six years, and infuriated at this, Mrs. Betts sprang toward him, crying:

Moe Levy Announces His New Fall Suits and Overcoats

Always room at the top is an old saying, and I've proved it in my clothing values for this Fall. I thought I had reached the top rung of the ladder of my clothing ambitions last season, but I've got a little higher this Fall, found "more room" to improve and brought out the finest clothing New York can show at prices no other clothier can touch.

This may sound boastful to strangers, but patrons who know my values will understand. Those who don't know should inspect my offerings this Fall. It will be an education to them, even if they don't buy.

Doing things in a big way, buying direct from the mills, saving middlemen's profits and contractors' profits, makes it possible for me to sell a

$25 Service Guaranteed Suit or Overcoat for $15

This $15.00 line has always been my pride, and I am prouder than ever of the values I have been able to put into it this Fall. Cloth and trimmings are better than ever and can be found about town only in $25.00 clothes. The tailoring, too—the most important feature in men's clothing—is all done in my own workrooms under my own supervision. English Models—"Well I should say so"—Come in and see them.

My Other Suits and Overcoats

Below my $15.00 line are my $10.00 and $12.50 values that I defy any clothier to touch this side of $15. and $20. Going upward, $17.50, $20., $22.50, $25. and $35. introduces values that Broadway is marking all the way from $30. to $50.

Stetson Hats

No need to talk about them. Soft shapes and Derbies. $3.50 and $5.00.
